Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 27.—President Roosevelt tonight staked his claims for a fourth term on his record as commander in chief of the army and navy.

Making his third major address of the campaign, he claimed for his administration, which he said had been assailed by the opposition as "old and tired and quarrelsome," the credit for the nation's "incredible achievement" in the war effort.

A roaring throng of 80,000 filled Shibe Park and spilled upon the field to hear Mr. Roosevelt's address.

The President's open car was driven upon an elevated platform and a battery of microphones placed in the rear seat, almost in his lap. In his previous appearances in the same park here, Mr. Roosevelt left his car to deliver his speech while standing on a platform. This time he remained seated in the car thruout his address.

Shielded by Heavy Cape.

Under the glaring lights the President's face was gray. He was shielded against the sharp, drilling October wind by a heavy cape which he threw off as he began speaking.

He also doffed his fedora and bared his thinning gray locks to the night air. His hands were bare and trembled as he turned the pages of his speech. The President coughed slightly at several points in his address. He has spent two rigorous days riding in rain and cold during the past week's campaigning.

In reporting that half of our army of 8 million is overseas, the President departed from his text to describe this fact as "a piece of news."

Speaks of Disappointments.

Apparently speaking extemporaneously, he again left his prepared text to speak of the "disappointments" that must be suffered by a "commander in chief."

"I don't know how often I've been told that a certain operation will take 3 or 6 months," he remarked. "But that's part of the job of a commander in chief. You see, sometimes I'm disappointed, too."

The President's voice throbbed with emotion as he said he spoke as one who knows the feelings of a parent with sons who are overseas. The crowd gave one of its loudest cheers to his following pledge of speedy demobilization.

Rebuilding of Navy.

The President said he had started rebuilding the navy almost from the first minute of taking office—a navy, he said, which had been "whittled down" during previous Republican administrations. When Pearl Harbor came, he asserted, tremendous progress had been made toward building the greatest war machine the world has known.

Listing the great gains in the size and efficiency of our armed forces since 1940, the President said these statistics were the answer to the charge of Gov. Dewey [to whom he referred as "a Republican candi-

Kelly Admits Blast at Ousted Navy Vote Aid

Mayor Kelly admitted yesterday that he had remarked that it would be a good thing if a Chicago naval officer were removed as supervisor of sailor ballots in the Pacific theater. The officer, Lt. Comdr. Edward F. McGinnis, was removed after the mayor had spoken, it was disclosed Thursday by Sen. O'Daniel [D., Tex.], who asked for an investigation by the senate campaign expenditures committee.

The mayor's admission substantiated reports from Washington, D. C., that McGinnis was denied the Pacific theater post and moved out of the war ballot office in Washington at the insistence of Sen. Lucas, who was doing the mayor's bidding. It was reported that Lucas told Asst. Secretary of the Navy Bard that Kelly was preparing to go to the White House and have McGinnis removed.

Transferred to Other Duties.

Subsequently, McGinnis was transferred to other duties, altho his services as voting supervisor had been requested by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific area.

Mayor Kelly's remarks on McGinnis were made in the Washington home of a lame duck congressman, James P. McGranery [D., Pa.], now an assistant attorney general. The mayor admitted yesterday that McGinnis was discussed at a buffet supper in the McGranery home.

"We were standing around in a group, talking about the soldiers and sailors voting," Kelly said. "I remarked that there was a red hot Republican from our district handling navy ballots, and I added, 'I don't think that's right.'

Terms It Casual Remark.

"It was just a casual remark, and that's as far as it went and all I thought about it. I knew McGinnis as a working politician, I said, and as a one time candidate for office. He was known as a politician all his life, and a leopard doesn't change his spots.

"McGinnis is a nice fellow and I have nothing against him. I'm sure my words had nothing to do with his removal unless somebody took it up and went ahead and investigated. Certainly I never dreamed it would be taken up at that time. And certainly I never remarked that I would go to the President to see that McGinnis was removed.

"I just groused about it and several people heard me. Aside from McGranery, I don't know who heard me."

Legion Leader Demands Quiz.

Another demand for an investigation of McGinnis' transfer was made yesterday by William R. McCauley of Olney, second Illinois department commander of the American Legion. McCauley, who is a national figure in the Legion, characterized the transfer as "one of the most shameful episodes in our history," and asked that the inquiry be conducted immediately—before election day.

"I have had occasion to work with Eddie McGinnis on behalf of war veterans," McCauley continued. "No one should know better than Scott Lucas that McGinnis has always possessed the highest intelligence, honesty, and integrity, and that he would not be a party to anything that was not of the highest character.

Charges Ballots Opened.

"I have personal knowledge that in numerous counties in Illinois ballots from overseas service men have been opened in violation of the constitutional rights of these fighting men. If big city bosses are to be permitted to manipulate United States senators and high ranking government officials in a partisan way to the end that there is tampering with the ballots and voting rights of service men, we can no longer say that we have freedom of the ballot or freedom of any kind in this country."

Another denunciation of the transfer of McGinnis came from John T. Dempsey, Republican candidate for state's attorney.

"This is shocking evidence that Kelly in his desperation to protect his vast power will stoop to anything," he said. "Lt. Comdr. McGinnis is a man of sterling character, a veteran of World War I., and a leader in community and veteran affairs. There is no question that as naval officer in charge of balloting he would have done an honest, efficient, and impartial job."

Police Guard Soldier Votes in N.Y. Scandal

New York, Oct. 27 [Special].—Ballots cast by service men were under strict police guard in all five borough offices of the board of elections today as a result of charges that S. Howard Cohen, president of the board, had taken a box of the ballots into a closed room where he conferred for 20 minutes with Democratic party leaders. Cohen also is a Democrat.

The charge was made by Commissioner David B. Costuma, secretary of the elections board, who accused Cohen of being guilty of "reprehensible conduct" in the matter.

His protest followed a meeting at the board's office yesterday. Those attending the meeting, in addition to Cohen, were William J. O'Shea, chairman of the state Democratic law committee; Thomas L. J. Corcoran, chairman of the New York county Democratic law committee, and John McGrath, chairman of the Kings county Democratic law committee.

All Doors Closed.

"Cohen went into the general office," Costuma related, "and took a box containing voted war ballots. All doors were closed. Later he called for a clerk, who also is a Democrat. The five of them spent the greater part of 20 minutes in private."

Cohen explained that the Democratic officials merely had been seeking information. He expressed surprise at the action of Costuma, a Republican, in asking Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine to detail policemen to guard the ballots.

Costuma said he had given the policemen the following instructions: A patrolman will sit beside the clerk on duty at the safe in which voted ballots are kept in each borough elections board office. The patrolman will remain at his post all day to watch the incoming ballots being placed in the safe. He will see to it that no one—not even a board commissioner—removes anything from the safe and that the safe is closed at night and the board of elections' seal placed on the door.

To Escort Clerk.

In the Manhattan office an extra patrolman has been assigned to the clerk who receives the ballots from the state war ballot commission. This policeman, Costuma said, will stand over the clerk as he makes any necessary notations and will escort him to the room where the ballots are placed in the safe.

William T. Simpson, chairman of the state war ballot commission, said to date 218,964 ballots voted by service men had been transmitted to local boards of elections in New York City.

EX-FEA OFFICIAL IS SENTENCED IN $10,000 BRIBERY

New York, Oct. 27 [Special].—Charles Margolis, 44, former department head of a New Deal agency, today was sentenced to serve a year and a day in a federal prison on his guilty plea to a charge of soliciting a $10,000 bribe for his services in helping a Colombian business man press a $600,000 claim against the United States.

Margolis was head of the chinchona bark purchasing mission of the foreign economic administration when arrested Sept. 1 in an FBI agents' trap sprung just after he had accepted a sum of marked money hidden in a bag of bananas which the Colombian handed to him in a midtown hotel.

Defense Atty. Henry Epstein pleaded for leniency, asserting that Margolis had sought the bribe "in a moment of weakness." But Federal Judge Samuel Mendelbaum rejected the plea and imposed the sentence recommended by United States Atty. John F. X. McGohey.

There Is a Santa Claus, but His Pack Is Inflated

Brigham, Utah, Oct. 27 (AP).—Residents of this town were plenty excited when they received circulars advertising steel tricycles, steel runner sleds, electric trains, and many other pre-war toys. They flocked to the store to buy junior's Christmas present. Harried clerks explained the circulars had been given to boys for the waste paper salvage drive. The boys thought it would be fun to distribute them.

British Soldier Jilts Bride; Elopes with Bridesmaid

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Thomas L. Williams, 26, a British soldier, admitted before the Grimsby police court that on what was to have been his wedding day he eloped with the bridesmaid whom he had first met the night before. He got a six month jail sentence for obtaining $40 by fraud from the brother of the jilted bride.

WAC Murder Suspect Calls Accuser 'Liar'

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 27 [Special].—Confronted in the Marion county jail by her former husband, who had accused her of slaying WAC Corp. Maoma Little Ridings in the Claypool hotel here Aug. 28, 1943, the divorced wife of a prison inmate today screamed a denial that she had any part in the murder. She charged that her former mate was "trying to put me on the hot seat."

William Luallen.

The ex-wife, Mrs. Wynona Luallen, 23, a former laundry worker, who was arrested at Knoxville, Tenn., this week on the same burglary charge that sent her former husband, William, to Indiana state prison at Michigan City for 10 to 20 years, was taken into a room with him and heard Virgil Quinn, a sheriff's investigator, read the convict's statement saying she had admitted killing the WAC. She divorced Luallen after he had been sentenced on the burglary charge.

Drinking Party Story Told.

The statement said Mrs. Luallen had admitted slaying Corp. Ridings with a bottle when she became enraged at the attention her husband had paid to the WAC during a drinking party involving the three in the WAC's hotel room.

Luallen told Quinn he had left the room during the quarrel because he had been arrested previously and did not want to risk further trouble with authorities.

"Lies, lies, lies!" she screamed, beating her fists on a table as the statement was read. "You're trying to put me on the hot seat!"

Admits Dress Ownership.

Quinn placed on the table near Mrs. Luallen a dark blue and white polka dot dress and asked if she recognized it. Quinn said she admitted its ownership.

The convict's statement charged that the woman had returned home the morning after the slaying, wearing a blood stained dress and carrying a blood stained khaki skirt.

Authorities said they would try to identify the dress as that worn by a "woman in black," who was said to have been seen in Corp. Ridings' hotel room the night of the slaying by a bellhop carrying ice and soft drinks to the room. They said the dress was of such a dark blue that it could have been mistaken for black.

Lie detector tests were given today to both Mrs. Luallen and her convict former husband, but results were not disclosed.

14,045 JAPS CRUSHED; ENEMY'S 'MARCH OF DEATH' ARMY DEFEATED!

Tokyo 'Probably' Lost 40 Warships, Admiral Says.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Oct. 27 (AP).—The Japanese probably lost 40 ships sunk or crippled in the three naval battles of the Philippines, Rear Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, chief of staff to Adm. Nimitz, said today.

The navy previously had announced that six American warships were lost in the engagements which crushed Japanese seapower.

"The box score is not completely filled in," Adm. Sherman said in a Navy day broadcast, "but it appears 40 Japanese ships were sunk or crippled. So far we have only the bare outline of the story.

Bases Won for U. S.

"It seems probable that the Japanese will not give up the Philippines without a hard, strenuous fight, but our success here will give us the bases for further operations.

"It will be a long time before the Japanese fleet again is fit for sea."

Nimitz told the Honolulu chamber of commerce that the Japanese fleet has been rendered incapable of challenging any sizable American naval force for some time. The imperial fleet, he said, "right now is limping away from the scene of its disaster."

Official bulletins, based upon incomplete reports, have listed a minimum of 27 Japanese warships sunk or damaged in the three engagements which saved the Leyte island beachhead. Eyewitness accounts and other reports have said the total will be considerably larger.

The navy's announcement identified only the light carrier Princeton among the lost American warships. The unidentified vessels were two escort carriers, two destroyers, and one destroyer escort.

Details Not Disclosed.

Details of personnel losses were not released, pending notification of next of kin. It was unofficially estimated that the six vessels carried a total of around 3,900 officers and enlisted men.

Nimitz, however, already had said that the Princeton's captain, 133 other officers and 1,227 enlisted men had been saved from the carrier.

American sea losses total 217 ships destroyed or overdue and presumed lost since the Pearl Harbor attack.

Tokyo broadcast an imperial headquarters bulletin admitting six Japanese warships had been sunk and two damaged—an increase over the enemy's previous admissions. The new figure included a carrier, a battleship, two cruisers, and two destroyers sunk; a carrier and a battleship damaged.

List Japan's Losses.

Disputing the Japanese claims were American bulletins and eyewitness reports. They said the enemy fleets limped home minus two carriers, two battleships, five cruisers, and three destroyers, all sunk; one carrier and two battleships probably sunk, and six battleships, five cruisers, and at least one destroyer damaged. Other destroyers were believed sunk or damaged, but confirmation was lacking.

The end of the far flung battle was not yet in sight.

Gen. MacArthur said American aircraft were still pursuing Japanese vessels fleeing from Leyte gulf.

The Japanese meanwhile shuffled the figures in their listing of American ships which they said they put out of action. Today's Tokyo bulletin said the Americans suffered these losses:

Five hundred planes shot down.

Eight carriers, three cruisers, two destroyers, and more than four transports, all sunk; seven carriers, one battleship and two cruisers, damaged.

F. D. R. WAR VOW TO CHURCHILL TOLD BY MAAS

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 27 [Special].—Amplifying charges he made here last week that President Roosevelt was personally responsible for success of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Rep. Maas [R., Minn.] charged in a radio address tonight that the President had led the United States into war with Japan as a means of getting us into the European war.

He said Mr. Roosevelt had given a secret pledge to Prime Minister Churchill of England to "take the United States into the European war thru the back door of the Pacific."

"The commander in chief chose to override the highest professional and naval experts and ordered the splitting of our Pacific fleet in the face of the most serious crisis in the Pacific," said Maas, who had charged here Oct. 18 that the President knew six hours in advance the hour set for the attack but withheld the information from officers at Pearl Harbor.

Tells of Provocation.

Maas also charged here on Oct. 20 that the President has withheld a report on the debacle by a naval board because it "would be politically embarrassing."

"The commander in chief, against the strongest advice of the nation's military leaders, issued provocative ultimatums to Japan," Maas charged tonight. "This was done in the face of his knowledge of our inability to make good our ultimatums due to our dangerously reduced naval strength in the Pacific.

"I charge that Mr. Roosevelt was carrying out his personal and secret pledge to Prime Minister Churchill that he would take the United States into the European war thru the back door of the Pacific."

Invites Reply of F. D. R.

Maas, ranking member of the house naval affairs committee who saw action at Guadalcanal and other Pacific areas early in the war as colonel in the marine aviation reserve, challenged the administration to answer charges he made tonight and in his two speeches here last week.

"If I am wrong in my charges, why are they not denied or answered?" he asked. "All of the proof as to the accuracy or inaccuracy of my charges is in the hands of the administration. Why is it not made public?

"I dare the administration to open the record to public examination. No question of military security is involved. I warn the administration that either it will make public the facts about Pearl Harbor or a committee of congress will bring out all the facts, if it has to drag them out of the White House.

Asserts F. D. R. Prolonged War.

"Many military leaders have expressed to me their opinion that we will be at war much longer, and our losses will be much greater as a result of the commander in chief's decision.

"The time has come to change commanders in chief."

Maas commented on the naval court of inquiry report, which came to light after his talk before the Business and Professional Men's association last Friday. Secretary of Navy Forrestal admitted he had received the report but said it was partly "secret" and partly "top secret."

"Secret means embarrassing and top secret means very embarrassing," Maas said tonight.

70 Miles of Leyte's Coast Won; Foe in Retreat.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., LEYTE, Philippines, Oct. 28 [Saturday]—(AP).—Gen. MacArthur's mud caked Yanks have gained control of Samar Island adjacent to Leyte. They also have "completely defeated" the 16th Japanese division responsible for the infamous "March of Death" on Bataan.

Gen. MacArthur's bulletin, which today announced his full revenge against the 16th division troops of Lt. Gen. Shiro Mackino on Leyte, gave this picture of the Samar situation:

"With the aid of organized local guerrillas, practically the entire island of Samar is now under our domination and civil government will shortly be organized for the entire province."

Yanks Take Capital.

Samar's capital, Catbalogan, was captured. The Americans then advanced nine miles to the north.

Samar is the third largest island in the Philippines and closest to Luzon on which Manila is situated. It has an area of 5,030 square miles and a population of about 225,000.

MacArthur said that 14,045 Japanese soldiers—half of the enemy force on Leyte—have been killed or wounded in the week of fighting since MacArthur led American troops back to liberate the Philippines.

The 16th division, which the general said he was particularly anxious to meet, is in retreat from the east coast of Leyte and is completely disorganized.

518 Americans Slain.

American casualties were 518 killed, 139 missing, and 1,503 wounded, or a total of 2,160.

Elements of the American 1st cavalry smashed forward 10 miles on the northern end of Leyte and captured their objectives, Balud and Barugo, on Carigara bay. Other elements of the same organization captured Samar's capital.

The 24th division broke the stubborn Japanese defenses north of Palo, fought on to the Leyte valley, and captured the towns of Santa Fe and Pastrana. This success bottled up the Leyte valley.

Show Sign of Collapse.

The 7th and 96th divisions drove to within two miles of Dagami, supply concentration center and road junction. Other forces moving south on the coast entered Abuyog, 14 miles south of Dulag.

Thus control of nearly 70 miles of Leyte's coastline has passed into American hands—from Barugo in the north on around to Abuyog.

"The enemy in all areas is exhibiting signs of complete disorganization and disintegration," the bulletin said.

"Additional Philippine towns and barrios [villages] liberated include Mayorga, Lanajon, Alegri, Tolosa, Castilla, San Francisco, St. Esperanza, Malirong and Lucay.

"Light and ineffectual enemy air attacks against our beachhead installations and shipping continued. Ten enemy planes were shot down. Advance elements of the 6th air forces have been brought forward and are operating from Leyte air bases. The far east air forces have now relieved the naval air carrier force in the area. Our PT boats at night sank 10 enemy barges loaded with troops and two coastal freighters in Ormoc bay, on the west coast of Leyte."

Japs Blow Up Bridges.

In a field dispatch an Associated Press war correspondent with the 24th division said the Japanese systematically were blowing up bridges while making a withdrawal at the mouth of Leyte valley.

Infiltrating Japanese crept thru American lines in the center of the valley and harassed the rear. One regimental command underwent a fairly stiff attack at dawn today.

A war correspondent with the 7th infantry said this outfit, supported by tanks, is pounding its way thru bypassed Buri airdrome, pillbox by pillbox, in the most rugged fighting yet on the southern beachheads.

Land Based Planes Arrive.

AT A LEYTE AIR BASE, Oct. 27 (AP).—A group of topnotch fighter pilots flew here today, the first land based American air combat crew in the Philippines since the reinvasion.

The arrival of the speedy land based fighters gave a tremendous morale boost to troops which have been harassed by Japanese sneak bombers. Happy grins flashed on faces everywhere.

Soldiers lined roads and beaches to cheer.

"Boy, don't they look beautiful," one exclaimed.

With most navy planes busy at sea, troops anxiously had awaited the army fighters from an air force [once based on New Guinea] to end Japanese daylight sallies.

MacArthur and his air force chief, Lt. Gen. George C. Kenney, greeted the pilots at the field.

Bomb Fleeing Jap Ships.

CHUNGKING, China, Oct. 27 (AP).—United States 14th air force Liberator bombers probably sank 8,800 tons of Japanese shipping and damaged 1,200 tons more in attacks yesterday on remnants of a Japanese task force fleeing from Adm. Nimitz's fleet, a bulletin of Gen. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

Two direct hits were scored on a transport, a freighter was left listing, and a tanker was bracketed by bombs and left smoking, the bulletin said.

The attacks took place in the South China sea east of the Luichow peninsula. None of the aircraft was lost.

JOSEPH C. GREW CALLS ON JAPS TO SURRENDER NOW

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27 (AP).—Calling upon the Japanese to surrender now unconditionally, Joseph Clark Grew, American ambassador to Japan from 1932 to Pearl Harbor, tonight warned the American people that with the Japanese fleet defeated in a major battle "an enticing peace offer may come from Japan at any time."

In a Navy Day address Grew told a Navy League audience "there are many shrewd, level-headed, coldly-calculating Japanese" including statesmen and business men who "are almost certain to make an attempt to save something from the wreckage."

Grew said the only alternative remaining to Japan is to surrender unconditionally now if it would avoid useless sacrifice of lives and wholesale destruction. "I address these words directly to the more intelligent elements in that misguided country," he declared.

HINTS BRAZIL WILL AID U. S. WAR ON JAPS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 27 (AP).—A highly placed government official said today that Brazil's attitude toward Japan remains unchanged and that he personally felt it is "only natural and logical" that Brazil will continue to cooperate fully with the United States in the prosecution of the Pacific war after the defeat of Germany.

He said Brazil at present had absolutely no intention of declaring war against Japan with which this country severed relations at the Rio De Janeiro conference in January, 1942.

Asked whether after the defeat of Germany, Brazil would continue to allow the United States use of air bases in this country the official said, "I cannot make an official statement at this time, but I regard that as only logical and natural."

Indian Troops Attack Japs on Burma Peak

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 27 (AP).—Indian 5th division troops advancing southeastward in Burma from captured Tiddim have attacked an enemy concentration on Sialem, a peak north of the Fort White road. Sharp fighting is in progress, Adm. Louis Mountbatten's headquarters announced today. The Japanese remain in positions astride the road 11 miles from Tiddim, the bulletin said.

ILLINOIS YANK GOES BACK TO WAR AS OFFICER

Promoted on Leyte for Kwajalein Feat.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE 7TH INFANTRY DIVISION on Leyte Island, Oct. 27.—For assuming leadership of two platoons after their officers were killed during the Kwajalein battle, Tech. Sgt. William L. Engsley, 25, Route 1, Champaign, Ill., was promoted to 2d lieutenant yesterday by his division commander, Maj. Gen. Art V. Arnold.

Engsley and two companions were relieved from the front line and given their new commissions, congratulated by Gen. Arnold, and transferred to another regiment to start their careers as officers.

"I don't feel any different," Engsley grinned.

He said he will allot the extra pay to his wife, Jessie, for their post-war nest egg. Lt. Engsley was a farmer before entering the army in March, 1941, but says he will do something else after the war.

His hottest fight on Leyte occurred near Darauen two days ago. His platoon moved forward just before dark when the Japs opened fire on them from all sides, wounding two of his men. They fell back, established a line, recovered their casualties, and dug in for the night. Next morning the Japs were gone.

The enemy's abandoned material included American machine guns presumably taken at Corregidor.

Two Chicagoans are members of a mechanized cavalry reconnaissance outfit which has entered the front lines on Leyte after a scouting mission. They are Sgt. Jerome Koranea, 26, son of John and Josephine Koranea, 3647 Sunnyside av., and Pvt. 1st Class Sam Matale [address uncertain], son of Joseph and Mary. Sam is a former brewery truck driver. His most exciting experience so far was heavy sniper fire at Dulag the first night ashore.

Torpedoing of 8 Ships Off Australia Disclosed

CANBERRA, Australia, Oct. 27 (AP).—Prime Minister John Curtin today announced that eight merchant ships, including three United States freighters, were torpedoed off the eastern Australia coast between July, 1942, and December, 1943. Four of the vessels were sunk, but the remainder reached port safely. Casualties totaled 156 killed and nine injured.

AN EYEWITNESS STORY OF JAP AIR ATTACK ON SHIPS

[This broadcast was recorded aboard a ship off Leyte in the Philippines by Gordon Walker, war correspondent for the Mutual Broadcasting company. It apparently was recorded at the close of the naval battle in Leyte gulf when a Japanese force attacked transports and other auxiliary craft. For security reasons it was not released for broadcast until yesterday.]

ABOARD A BATTLESHIP IN LEYTE HARBOR, Philippines, Oct. 24 [Delayed].—At this very moment we are in the midst of one of the heaviest air raids that the Japanese have flown against shipping here in the harbor.

Everywhere around me ships are partially hidden by a large smoke screen which has been thrown up to obscure them. About five minutes ago three planes came over flying very low . . . facing a terrific barrage of anti-aircraft fire and dropped their bombs harmlessly among the ships.

Japs Come in Low.

Just a moment ago over in the direction of Tacloban [capital of Leyte], that's to my right, a group of enemy planes went sweeping in low with anti-aircraft fire trailing far behind them. . . . Looks like Tacloban is getting a real heavy bombing now.

Boats are sweeping in around the harbor now, ready to come to the assistance of any ship that might be hit. . . .

Over on my right a gunboat is laying a smoke screen around a group of LST cargo ships that are standing out. There is a plane sweeping in low over Tacloban that is only up about 1,500 feet.

I don't see any ack-ack being thrown up at him. He is apparently too low and caught them unawares. A moment ago over on my left one plane was hit by ack-ack fire and, covered in flames, landed close to the beach. . . . There is an LST on fire. . . .

U. S. Planes Have Hard Time.

There are two Japanese planes over Tacloban at this moment. . . . One can't be more than 600 or 700 feet off the ground. . . . It is impossible to get them with anti-aircraft fire. . . . Now there are two of them—one is still lower. . . . Can't be over 200 feet. . . . They can't get the guns trained on them.

Our navy planes are in the air all around, but they are having a hard time. . . . They can't dive down on the Japanese plane when they come so low. Over on the left on the beach I see an LST smoking heavily. . . . It has been hit.

The Japanese planes are dispersing now and our fighters are going in after them very rapidly.

I think the raid is about over. It is beginning to drizzle here and it is probably one of the luckiest breaks that we have had.

Flyer's Battle Story.

LEYTE, Philippines, Oct. 27 (AP).—When Ensign James Lischer took off from his carrier "the Jap fleet was so close to our tail we could clearly see the fire from the gun flashes."

Heavy shells from big guns of the Japanese battleships and cruisers were straddling the carrier as Lischer took off in his Wildcat fighter.

"We took off in such a hurry it was catch as catch can strafing for us until the torpedo bombers could form up," said Lischer of Davenport, Ia.

"We went in after the cruisers. I made three strafing runs on one cruiser and four on another while bombers went after the battleships. The Japanese ack-ack fire was the best I have ever seen. It was right on the level and range. I don't know how much damage we did to the Japs, but I believe we slowed them up enough to let the carriers escape."

Lischer and other flyers couldn't get back to their carriers so they landed on an unfinished Leyte landing strip.

Ex-President Ubico arriving at the New Orleans airport yesterday.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 27 (AP).—Former President Jorge Ubico of Guatemala arrived here today, completing a flight from his country where the government of his political friend, President Federico Ponce, was overthrown by a revolution a week ago. Ubico and Senora Ubico were met at the airport by Guatemalan Consul General Felix Estrada Orantes. They retired immediately to their hotel. The couple took the first plane from Guatemala after the revolution started but were delayed at Brownsville, Tex., for clearance of immigration papers and plane reservations.

JAPS ADVANCE 60 MILES, SEIZE CHINESE CENTER

CHUNGKING, China, Oct. 27 (AP).—Japanese troops sweeping southward from their base at Kiyang have advanced 60 miles in eight days and captured the Hunan communications center of Ningyuan, 110 miles east of the Kwangsi province capital of Kweilin, the Chinese high command announced today.

The Japanese thrust was made to safeguard the left flank of the enemy's Kwangsi offensive. It came as Chinese troops stabbing at the Japanese right flank pushed southward nine and a half miles from recently captured Sinning in Hunan, 90 miles north of Kweilin.

Japanese troops at their closest approach to Kweilin are approximately 20 miles to the north, but the enemy advance there is virtually at a standstill, Chang declared.

MIKADO BACKS PLAN TO REVAMP ADVISORY BOARD

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 27 (AP).—Tokyo radio today reported Emperor Hirohito approved a Japanese reorganization plan to "rejuvenate the machinery for advising the premier."

The change in the advisory system and personnel reflected the impact of military and naval defeats in high administrative quarters.

The announcement by Japan's board of information, recorded by the federal communications commission, said "efficient and capable persons" would fill the new posts. It explained the change by saying: "The war situation has become more pressing than ever" and managing national affairs has "become more and more delicate."

EX-AUTO DEALER SPEEDS UP B-29 ENGINE LOADING

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

A vital time saving device with which three men can load seven 2,000 Wright B-29 Super Fortress engines in a freight car in 8½ minutes—an operation which formerly required six men and a minimum of 32 minutes—has won the 27th Chicago Tribune War Workers' Award for Myron H. Allen. Each carload helps speed the destruction of Japan.

Myron H. Allen.

Allen, a veteran of World War I. and a former automobile dealer, is employed at the Dodge Chicago plant—world's largest factory.

Presentation of the award—symbolized by a diamond studded gold Victory pin—will be broadcast by station W-G-N at 10:45 o'clock tonight. The presentation will be made by Maj. James Sheridan, air technical service command of the army air forces, on behalf of the award committee headed by President Heald of the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Makes Car Loading "Dolly."

Allen's war contribution was the invention of a "car loading dolly" for loading the big Wright aviation engines, packed in boxes, into freight cars. The device eliminated a lot of backbreaking work, saved 88 per cent of time required under the old method, and reduced the number of men required to load a car from six to three. It made it possible to get freight cars—vitally needed in war service—in and out of the plant faster. And it reduced the hazard of damage to engines on which the lives of many young Americans depend.

Allen, among other duties, had the job of supervising the loading of freight cars with engines destined for the bomber plants. I's no easy matter to handle a 2,000 pound package which must be treated about as gently as a case of eggs. Under the old method engines were delivered to the box car on electric trucks and then pushed with crowbars into position in the car. Besides consuming time, the crowbars frequently damaged the engine box and the freight car.

Spends Much Time in Study.

Allen set about improving the method, spending much time in home study to solve the problem. He first devised a "dolly" with a row of rollers on which an engine was rolled into position. That device helped, but did nothing about stopping the engine boxes from catching on the sides of the car. Then he hit on the idea of mounting a second set of rollers lengthwise of the dolly which would give the boxed engines free play as they were rolled into designated spot.

Besides the 50 per cent saving on man power an electric truck is freed for more time.

Device Made from Scrap.

His device was made from scrap produced at the plant.

He was born Nov. 12, 1896, on a farm in Warren county, Illinois. He went to high school in La Grange and spent two years at Knox college, Galesburg. He was a sergeant with the 23d infantry, 2d division, during World War I. In 1942 he closed his business as a Dodge dealer in Macomb, Ill., when he could get no more cars and took a job at the big Chicago plant. He is working on a number of other engine and engine handling improvements in his spare time, including use of a plastic coating to cover engine parts. He lives at 6234 S. Green st. and has one daughter, Shirlee.

TILBURG WON AS BRITISH RACE TO TRAP GERMANS

Break-Thru in Holland Cuts Nazi Escape Road.

LONDON, Oct. 27 (AP).—British troops driving to trap the German 15th army in the watery lowlands of southwestern Holland have captured Tilburg, German keystone bastion on the west flank of the allied Dutch salient, a field dispatch reported tonight.

Except for a few snipers, this rail and road center of 81,000 population was in British hands, the dispatch reported. Cheering throngs greeted the British.

Meanwhile, other British and Canadian forces—joined tonight, the Germans said, by American troops—plunged across the Dutch countryside following the British break-thru was reënforced during the day.

Cut Nazi Escape Route.

Field Marshal Montgomery's armor cut the German escape route at Loon op Zand, five miles north of Tilburg and six miles south of the Maas [Meuse] river earlier in the day.

Above Antwerp, British and Canadian armor and infantry have linked up in force. The British have thrust within two miles of Roosendaal from the southwest and Canadian advance armored elements are within 1,000 yards of Bergen op Zoom.

British and Canadian troops on Beveland Island now have joined up in one holding operation which was reënforced during the day.

Nazis Evacuate Town.

The German pocket in the Scheldt estuary continued to dwindle. British troops, pushing beyond Fort Frederick Hendrik along the coast, and other elements which by-passed Groede, virtually encircled Nieuwvliet. Groede itself was vacated by the Germans, who left hundreds of wounded there.

North of Aachen, in Germany, units of the American 1st army made minor gains against stubborn opposition. The 3d army front in France was quiet except for the harassing fire of German big guns.

3 YANKS FIGHT BESIDE MAQUIS 15 DAYS; RETURN

WITH THE 7TH ARMY, France, Oct. 27 (AP).—A trio of swashbuckling G. Is are back in their foxholes today after 15 days of mobile guerrilla warfare beside French Maquis [patriot forces].

They are Sgt. Settimio Gualandi, Peoria, Ill., Pvt. Robert Reigle, of Hummelstown, Pa., and Pvt. Howard Fassett, Moshoppen, Pa.

The three were cut off from their main unit during an attack on the Rhone valley near the town of Valence. A French farmer hid them in his hayloft. The next day Frenchmen hid them in the comparative safety of the Valence jail. They were taken to the Saone river from where they made their way to headquarters of the French forces of the interior. There they were given guns and joined the French in harassing German outposts, blowing up bridges and erecting road blocks.

The Yanks stayed with the Maquis until 7th army advances made it possible for them to hitchhike to Bourg where they rejoined their company.

"The damndest thing was when we had to serve as a guard of honor at the execution of a French traitor," Fassett said. "They wanted us to be the firing squad but we declined. We just stood by and watched."

Reveal Thorez, Red Chief, Will Return to France

PARIS, Oct. 27.—Speaking at a communist meeting for the Paris region tonight Jacques Duclos, party secretary, said that Maurice Thorez, a Communist leader who had been frowned upon by Gen. Charles De Gaulle and who is now in Moscow, would soon be in France. Duclos added that the party would abjure sectarianism and narrow views and strive to become "a great party of the masses, the great party of the French people."

132,000 British Laborers Repair London Damage

LONDON, Oct. 27 (AP).—War damage repairs are being made in London by 132,000 laborers, 40 per cent of Britain's total building industry personnel, the house of commons was informed today. During the 1941 battle of Britain only 40,000 laborers were employed in this work in London.

116,000 NAZIS CUT OFF IN 5 PORTS, CHANNEL ISLES

Forces Cause Allies No Real Trouble.

LONDON, Oct. 27 (AP).—An estimated 116,000 German troops are isolated in five pockets in France and the channel islands, apparently by-passed until they choose to surrender or until it is convenient for the allies to liquidate them.

They are scattered thus: Dunkerque, 8,000; Lorient, 22,000; St. Nazaire, 20,000; Bordeaux, 26,000; Vannes area, 30,000; and channel islands, 10,000.

Causing No Trouble.

All are hamstrung by lack of transport, munitions and supplies, and are causing the allies no real trouble.

When France was divided into an eastern "military zone" and a western "zone of the interior" on Oct. 20, under an agreement between the allies and the French government, it was acknowledged that there still was fighting within the interior zone. Gen. Edgar de Larminat was named commander of French forces operating against German nests of resistance on the Atlantic coast.

Attack Only at Dunkerque.

Only allied operation [American, British and Canadian] presently involving these by-passed points was at Dunkerque, where Canadians brought the city under siege Sept. 9. Since Oct. 1, it has been the sole channel port remaining in German hands. A brief truce Oct. 4-5 allowed evacuation of approximately 19,000 civilians, and the Canadians later resumed their attack.

STEPS TO PEACE WITH ITALY TOLD BY STETTINIUS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27 (AP).—Acting Secretary of State Stettinius today said the resumption of formal diplomatic relations with Italy is intended "to facilitate our return to a state of peace."

He stated at his press conference that altho the United States and Italy are still formally at war, Italy is a "co-belligent" of the United States and other allied powers in fighting Germany.

As a result of joint allied action earlier this week, he said, the Italian government is now formally recognized as a friendly government, but it remains under allied military control.

He said only congress can pass upon the final step of restoring a formal state of peace.

Canada Will Remain on Daylight Saving Time

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 27.—Canada will remain indefinitely on daylight saving time, Norman A. McLarty, secretary of state, announced today. One reason, he said, is that the United States is expected to continue on that system thruout the winter. McLarty added that standard time might cause electric shortages in some Canadian cities.

ALLIED PLANES HARASS NAZIS FLEEING GREECE

ROME, Oct. 27 (AP).—Constant air attacks are achieving good results on German columns retreating thru Greece on the road leading from Larisa northwest 60 miles to Kozane and then 40 miles to the Yugoslav frontier, allied headquarters announced today. British land forces have joined Greek guerrillas harassing Nazi rear guards in the Larisa area.

Athens newspaper reports said the Germans suffered 400 casualties in their withdrawal from the Volos district, 35 miles southeast of Larisa. Athens advices placed the German rear guards north of Larisa at Meluna, about 25 miles along the road leading to Kozane.

Other reports in the Greek capital said hundreds of Greeks had been interned and shot in Salonika, 40 miles northeast of Larisa. Theodorus Pangalos, former dictator of Greece, has been arrested on a charge of collaboration with the axis, the Greek government announced.

ALLIES CAPTURE HUGE GERMAN TORTURE CAMP

VUGHT, Holland, Oct. 27 (AP).—The largest concentration camp in Holland, where an estimated 30,000 internees died at the hands of German torturers, fell into allied hands today. The Germans had barely been thrown back from the area near Vught, where the 640 acre estate of horrors was located, when allied civil affairs officials entered to transform the vast system of barracks into a shelter for refugees.

It was disclosed in one instance that for 13 hours 67 women were crowded into an airless, lightless room 12 feet by 7 feet and 8 feet high. Twelve died, three became insane, and 30 were hospitalized.

Inmates were beaten until their bones were broken, then ordered to get in line for roll call. They were tortured in special chambers until their bodies were broken, then shot and cremated and buried in lime pits.

FINDS RELIGION A BARRIER TO NAZI GRIP ON GERMANS

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 1ST ARMY, in Germany, Oct. 27.—The Nazi party is fast losing control of the Rhineland civilian population along the 1st army zone of approach to the Ruhr industrial area. The exigencies of war are preventing the party from exercising its former rigid controls over the lives of citizens.

This was reported tonight by a high ranking American officer who said it was rapidly coming to light that religion was the insurmountable barrier for the Nazis in this region, always devotedly Catholic. He explained that the Germans did not seem to object to being pushed around in the ordinary sense of taxation, limitation of personal conduct and compulsory military training.

Interfere with Church Routine.

Such checks on their liberties was their fate under the imperial regime and again when Hitler rose to power. But questioning of the Germans in territory now occupied by the Americans has revealed that they began objecting when the Nazis sought to interfere with time honored church routine of individual families and particularly of the young children.

Party duties were scheduled for the time ordinarily reserved for worship. When the youngsters reached the age of 10 they were tapped automatically for the Hitler youth movement. The first thing a youth leader told them was that they need not tell their parents their doings as long as they followed his directions. Then the time set for training always coincided with the usual hours for communion, confession, church, and school, according to stories told American interrogators.

Mothers Quarrel with Leaders.

Immediately mothers began quarreling with the youth leaders who, in turn, complained to the gauleiters. The latter sought to put the heat on the husbands who were supposed to make their wives listen to reason. They were not always successful but the gauleiters admittedly held vast powers over the ordinary civilians, being in a position to inflict heavy punishment for any one's failure to follow party dictates.

"It is amazing how nasty little domestic details of the Nazi attempts to broaden their power over the German population are being uncovered as we get deeper into Germany," the American officer said. "There was haggling and quarreling and the party had to hold pistols at the heads of the people to keep them in line. Now they haven't time for that and they are no doubt losing control of the Rhinelanders living in our zone of approach to the heart of the reich.

"Plainly it was the aim of Hitler to stamp religion out of the hearts of the new generation of Germans. The idea was first to divorce the children from family control, then make it inconvenient for them to attend church. This is where they aroused the opposition of the mothers."

GREEK PARTISAN DEMONSTRATOR SLAIN BY MAJOR

ATHENS, Oct. 27 (AP).—A 20 year old Greek demonstrator was shot to death in a partisan parade today within a stone's throw of a building which British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was visiting and opposite the temporary headquarters of the Greek ministry of war.

The youth, one of a formation of EAM [national liberation front] supporters allegedly shouted an accusation against a regular army major standing upon the sidewalk. The major, it was reported shot him and fled into the ministry.

Demonstrators mobbed the doorway of the ministry, but were held off by police. They demanded vainly that the major be turned over to the Elas, the army of the national liberation front, for summary action. The clamor finally was abated by the arrival of an Elas officer who obtained a statement from the Athens police chief promising an immediate investigation.

CHICAGO FLYER RETURNS AFTER 65 MISSIONS

Capt. Albert Riede, 26, credited with 65 bombing missions over Europe during 18 months overseas, is spending a furlough with his wife, Patricia, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Bolger, 656 Buena av.

Questioned yesterday regarding his missions, Capt. Riede replied modestly that they were "regular routine." Nevertheless, he holds the distinguished flying cross and the air medal with nine clusters. He has been in the service three years.

Mrs. Riede formerly was employed in THE TRIBUNE'S classified ad department. After 10 days Capt. Riede will report for reassignment at Santa Monica, Cal.

FRENCH COURTS DOOM 20 MORE COLLABORATORS

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 27.—Passing of the death sentence by the provincial military tribunals on 20 more persons found guilty of treason and intelligence with the enemy, was announced today by the war ministry. The condemned included Jean Buffet, former chief of the secret service at Vichy, his assistant, George Delsahut, and Louis Tilman, assistant chief of the secret service at Tourcoing.

The war ministry's list also included two women, Lucile Quesnal, city hall employe at St. Brieux, who operated a radio for the Germans, and Marie Houdoin, who denounced a group of Rennes youth to the militia.

Four Militia Men Executed.

In southwestern France four militia men were executed at Perigeux 24 hours after the death sentence while an Italian woman, Irene Pez, and her father were sentenced to death for handing over American parachutists and members of the French Maquis to the Germans.

The court of justice in Paris finished its first week of collaboration purge trials today by condemning Lucian Felignes, 43-year old radio commentator, to 20 years at hard labor for his activities in urging French workers to go to Germany to relieve prisoners of war.

Today's trial was enlivened by the novelty of introducing phonograph discs into court. Speeches which Felignes had made over the radio and in factories were played before Judge Ledoux, reproducing the voice of the accused man launching propaganda for forcible deportation of French workers to Germany.

Three Get Death Sentences.

Today's trial was the fourth this week. Six persons out of the 15,000 awaiting trial have been sentenced. Three of the sentences were death and three were to long terms of imprisonment.

Great interest attaches to the trial next Monday of Stephen Lauzanne, former editor of the Paris paper Le Matin. Lauzanne, once on Anglophile, turned violently pro-German during the occupation.

Among the dozens of new arrests in Paris was that of Charles Fremicourt, formerly head of the supreme court and the minister of justice during the first few weeks of the occupation.

Meanwhile, the military tribunal of appeal in Paris held its first session under Judge Ordonneau and rejected five appeals, including that of Jeanne Denion, 36, who, together with her husband, Henri, 48, were sentenced respectively to one year and six months imprisonment for denouncing two farmers in the villages of Viel and Bauge.

GEARS BLAMED IN LIFT CRASH.

Investigators reported yesterday that stripped gears caused an elevator to fall 25 feet Thursday night at the Triune Paper Box and Specialty company, 320 N. La Salle st. Five persons were injured in the accident.

HERE IS PICTURE OF JAPS' 3-WAY STAB BY FLEET

How Battle Started and Ended Described.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Oct. 27 (AP).—A powerful Japanese carrier force bearing down from Formosa to surprise American invasion troops and warships in the Philippines was itself surprised by alert United States carrier planes, and thus received a stinging initial setback.

The American aircraft spotted the carriers, part of a three way Japanese naval stab, and tore in with such ferocity the enemy could put up only weak defense.

Thus the vital element of surprise worked in reverse for the Japanese in this week's historic naval and air engagement.

How Battle Developed.

This is how the battle developed:

The Japanese sent three naval task forces converging on Adm. Halsey's 3d fleet, lying east of the Philippines, and on Vice Adm. Thomas C. Kinkaid's 7th fleet, covering Gen. MacArthur's Leyte invasion.

All three were sighted Monday. A submarine made first contact Monday morning, reporting that four battleships, 10 cruisers, and about 13 destroyers were moving northeast thru the South China sea.

This fleet, probably from Singapore, continued a course along Palawan Island, turned thru Mindoro strait into the Sibuyan sea and headed southeast toward Leyte.

Planes, presumably from Adm. Kinkaid's escort carriers, discovered a smaller Japanese force Monday afternoon steaming northeast thru the Sulu sea toward Leyte.

Reach Leyte Gulf.

This consisted of two battleships, one cruiser, and four destroyers. They may have been from Singapore or may have been detached from the imperial task force which two weeks ago refused to meet the Halsey force off Formosa. This group eventually reached Leyte gulf before it turned back.

The third armada was a carrier task force comprising the bulk of the imperial fleet, including at least three carriers, four battleships, five or six cruisers, and possibly 15 destroyers moving south of Formosa.

Halsey ordered full speed toward this Formosa carrier force. Meantime, he detached a strong carrier force from his mighty armada to speed west and engage the Japanese battleship units from the Sibuyan sea.

Attacked by Planes.

Both Japanese battleship forces were attacked repeatedly Monday afternoon by planes from Kinkaid's escort carriers. In the larger northern force from the Sibuyan sea, American flyers damaged all four battleships with bombs and torpedoed one of the battleships and one cruiser. In the Sulu sea force, they bombed both battleships and strafed severely all lighter units.

Despite damage, both enemy battleship forces continued toward Leyte with suicidal desperation — and a suicidal move it became.

The Sibuyan sea battleship force steamed thru San Bernardino strait between Luzon and Samar Islands Monday night. Tuesday morning it engaged one lightly protected Kinkaid escort carrier group in the first surface battle since the battle of Empress Augusta bay in November, 1943.

Flees Back Thru Strait.

Allied cruisers and destroyers returned the fire, supported by airplanes from both the Kinkaid escort carrier force and a strong group of large carriers which were rushed over by Halsey. The combined aerial surface attack routed this Japanese force, which Tuesday night fled back thru San Bernardino strait.

This battle cost the Japanese one heavy cruiser sunk by aircraft and one by ships' gunfire, four battleships heavily damaged by bombs and fleeing, trailing oil, and one destroyer left dead in the water.

This action presumably was the one in which supporting Japanese land-based planes mortally wounded the light carrier U. S. S. Princeton.

[Earlier dispatches had indicated the Princeton was sunk by the Jap fleet coming from Formosa.]

MacArthur reported allied casualties as one unidentified escort carrier sunk and several escort carriers and destroyers damaged.

The Sulu sea battleship force steamed thru Surigao strait into Leyte gulf Monday night and attacked transports, and other auxiliaries engaged in MacArthur's landings. Allied surface units rushed to counter-attack. It is known that cruisers and destroyers participated but it is uncertain whether battleships made contact with the Japanese.

Force "Completely Routed."

MacArthur reported that this Sulu sea force was "completely routed," losing a battleship of the Yamasiro class plus a cruiser and several destroyers. This battleship earlier was reported damaged by aerial bombs. The Japanese force fled back thru Surigao strait and was subjected to aerial attack again Tuesday morning.

Presumably it was this action in which the H. M. S. Australia was superficially damaged. MacArthur reported extremely light losses in Leyte gulf, saying several P-T boats were sunk or damaged and one destroyer was damaged.

The fiercest tho shortest of the three battles began Tuesday morning when Halsey engaged the imperial carrier force from Formosa about 300 miles northeast of Luzon.

Repeated carrier plane attacks took the Japanese so completely by surprise they were able to launch only a few aircraft.

Aerial bombing and torpedoing was followed Tuesday night by cruiser and destroyer bombardment of Japanese cripples.

Nimitz' first incomplete report on this action listed two carriers and two light cruisers as definitely sunk, one carrier and two battleships probably sunk, and two battleships, three cruisers, and a number of destroyers damaged.

He said none of the United States ships were damaged altho attacked by Luzon-based land planes.

JAPANESE FLEET CALLED 'SUCKER' BY U. S. ADMIRAL

ABOARD ADM. THOMAS C. KINKAID'S FLAGSHIP, Leyte, Oct. 27 (AP).—The Japanese battle force of 12 to 15 warships which entered Surigao strait before dawn last Monday was a victim of the gambler's maxim, "Never give a sucker an even break."

That was the basis for the action, said Rear Adm. Jesse Oldendorf, whose forces annihilated the Japanese in a four hour engagement.

The Japanese were suckers enough to enter the strait. Oldendorf didn't give them a chance to survive.

The admiral placed his cruisers and destroyers on either flank and threw his battle line of pre-Pearl Harbor battleships squarely across the strait off Point Mingatungen, some 30 miles inside the entrance. A number of PT boats waited for the first contact.

Japs Start Entering Strait.

Shortly after midnight the enemy force began to sweep into the comparatively narrow waters of the strait. The little PT boats sent back word that the Japanese ships were "big ones."

There were two Nipponese battleships, five cruisers, and six to eight destroyers grouped in two divisions.

About 3 a. m. the Japanese force was about 20 miles inside the strait when Oldendorf ordered his destroyers to make a close quarters torpedo attack.

The destroyers steamed swiftly to either side, then the American battleships under command of Rear Adm. George Lenweyler opened up with heavy salvos from 16,000 to 17,000 yards.

There was a blaze of fire as those salvos landed. Oldendorf said "some of the enemy sank, some blazed with fire, but they kept coming forward another 6,000 yards before they turned away."

Cross Enemy's "T."

"We gave them hell on the turn," he said. "Instead of turning simultaneously they turned in column. It was the sort of naval battle you dream about. We completely crossed their 'T.'"

One of the cruiser forces, commanded by Rear Adm. Russell S. Berkey and the other by Rear Adm. George Haler, hit the enemy from all sides at once with five, six, eight, 14 and 16 inch guns, after a smashing torpedo attack.

The American big guns fired almost continuously from 4 a. m. until 5 a. m. The Japanese returned fire at our almost perfect semi-circle of exploding guns but succeeded only in damaging one destroyer, Oldendorf said.

Three Ships Sink.

"At one time there were eight enemy ships turning simultaneously," Oldendorf said. "One large cripple, which we believe was a battleship, with two destroyers alongside, was making 11 knots when one of our battleships landed a salvo directly on the target. All three ships sank. There was a large enemy dest oyer ablaze in the center of the strait, but it still was able to fire.

"Then the cruisers got him under fire and sank him. By this time the remnants of the enemy fleet were starting to flee and the cruisers pursued."

PRESS OF PARIS RENEWS CLAMOR FOR MORE PAPER

Fights Return of Big Pre-War Dailies.

BY ROBERT SAGE.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

PARIS, Oct. 27.—The new government ordinance requiring newspapers to publish their circulation was employed today as a pretext for the newspaper Liberation to renew its clamor for more newsprint.

The paper gave its circulation as 180,000 and said that preliminary investigation in a single sector of Paris disclosed a public demand for 200,015 copies daily.

Echoes Others' Complaints.

This complaint echoed that by other Paris papers that their paper allotment is "only sufficient to satisfy a fraction" of their respective readers. The quantity of newsprint allotted to Liberation is on a par with that received by other morning papers, most of which say they could sell well over 200,000 copies if paper were available.

The present newspaper situation in Paris is admittedly troublesome, due to the fact that there are 12 big morning papers as compared with six or seven before the war. All official efforts to cut down the number were snagged by the fact that with two or three exceptions all were published clandestinely under occupation and the elimination of any would bring a charge of favoritism.

Fight Occupation Papers.

Meanwhile, the Paris press is fighting to prevent the return of the powerful pre-war dailies by approving a proposed law voted by the Provincial Press association forbidding the resumption of any north zone paper that continued publication openly after the armistice or any south zone paper that went on publishing after the Germans occupied the whole of France.

The press also is keeping up the cry for the arrest of Jean Prouvost, the so-called "man of trusts," who, at one time was the Vichy minister of ithformation and is former publisher of the Paris Soir.

JAP SUBS FORCED TO CARRY CARGOES, SAYS U. S. ADMIRAL

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 27 (AP).—Belief that growing American naval power has forced the Japanese to divert their submarines to logistical [supply bearing] use was expressed today by Rear Adm. DeWitt Clinton Ramsey, chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics.

"As the Japs' position changed from the offensive to the defensive," Adm. Ramsey told a press conference, "I believe they found it necessary to use their submarines for other than destructive purposes.

"We found that was the case at Bougainville and again in the eastern Marshalls," Ramsey commented.

ILLINOIS FLYER COMING HOME WITH NAVY UNIT

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Oct. 24 [Delayed]—(AP).—Navy air group 2, which damaged 402,050 tons of Japanese shipping and 550 Japanese planes from Makin to Manila in less than a year of combat, is homeward bound for rest and reassignment.

CHURCHILL ASKS EARLY PARLEY BY 'BIG THREE'

Reports to Commons on Polish Problem.

LONDON, Oct. 27 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill said today that the results of his recent Moscow conferences with Premier Stalin were "highly satisfactory," but declared that "all permanent arrangements await the presence of the United States." He called for another three power meeting before the end of the year.

"I am quite sure," he told the house of commons, "that no final result can be obtained until the heads of the three governments have met again."

"The future of the world," the prime minister added, "depends upon the united action in the next few years of our three countries."

Two Big Polish Issues.

Of the Polish problem, he said:

"In this sphere there are two issues—two crucial issues. The first is the question of the eastern frontier of Poland with Russia and the Curzon line, as it is called, and the new territories to be added to Poland in the north and west.

"That is the first issue, and the second is the relation of the Polish government with the Lublin national liberation committee. On those two points we held a series of conferences with both parties. I had several very long talks with Marshal Stalin.

"I wish I could tell the house we had reached a solution of these problems. It is certainly not for want of trying. I am quite sure, however, we have got a great deal nearer to it.

"I hope Mr. Mikolajczyk [the London Poles' premier] will soon return to Moscow, and it will be a great disappointment to all the sincere friends of Poland if a good arrangement cannot be made which will enable him to form a Polish government on Polish soil, a government recognized by all the great powers concerned, and indeed by all those governments of the united nations which now recognize only the Polish government in London.

Free Poland His Goal.

"Altho I do not underrate the difficulties which remain, it is a comfort to feel that Britain and soviet Russia, and I do not doubt the United States, are all firmly agreed in the recreation of a strong, free, independent, sovereign Poland, loyal to the allies and friendly to her great neighbor and liberator, Russia.

"Speaking more particularly for his majesty's government, it is our persevering and constant aim that the Polish people, after their suffering and vicissitudes, shall find in Europe an abiding home and resting place which, tho it may not entirely coincide or correspond with the prewar frontier of Poland, will nevertheless be adequate for the needs of the Polish nation and not inferior in character and in quality, taking the picture as a whole, to what they had previously possessed."

Churchill seemed to rebuke the London Poles' government by adding:

"If the Polish government had taken the advice we tendered them at the beginning of this year, the additional complication produced by formation of the Polish national committee of liberation at Lublin would never have arisen."

F. D. R.'s Absence Felt.

Declaring that at Quebec President Roosevelt and he "felt very much the absence of Russia," and that "at Moscow Marshal Stalin and I were deeply conscious that the President was not with us," Churchill said that agreements reached were "workaday arrangements" which "must be looked upon as temporary expedients to meet an emergency."

Churchill said "all is solid, sure, and sound" in both military and political fields among Britain, Russia, and the United States as they drive together down "the last lap" to victory.

Churchill said that "the present stage of the war is dour and hard, and the fighting must be expected on all fronts to increase in scale and intensity."

The Nazis, he asserted, have two hopes—to lengthen the war and to wear down the allies' resolution and to see a rift develop among the three great powers.

Stating that "our relations with Soviet Russia were never more close, intimate, and cordial," Churchill said that "over a very wide area . . . we found ourselves in full agreement."

Reaffirming the Moscow announcement that complete agreement was reached on "the tangled questions of the Balkans," Churchill stressed that the decisions were temporary.

"All permanent arrangements await the presence of the United States, who have been kept constantly informed of what is going forward," he said.

GERMAN TANKS HALT 8TH ARMY SMASH IN ITALY

ROME, Italy, Oct. 27 (AP).—The British 8th army bumped against the main German defenses on the Ronco river two miles east of Forli today after a two and a half mile advance up the Rimini-Bologna highway in northern Italy.

Leading British elements which forded the rain-swollen river at that point were hurled back by Nazi tanks, but Indian patrols crossed successfully south of the highway.

In the Adriatic sector, the British pushed ahead two miles in their drive toward Ravenna.

The Americans repelled a heavy German counter-attack on Monte Belmonte, now in 5th army hands.

American troops captured Il Poggio and Mount Mezzano, west of Vedriano, four miles below Castel San Pietro on the Bologna-Rimini highway.

Reds Advance in Czechoslovakia

REDS CAPTURE PRINCIPAL CITY IN CZECH PROVINCE

LONDON, Oct. 28 [Saturday]—(AP).—Russian mountain troops virtually completed the conquest of Hungarian-annexed Ruthenia in eastern Czechoslovakia yesterday by capturing Ungvar [Uzhorod] in a 15 mile advance, and also penetrated six miles into neighboring Slovakia.

The toppling of Ungvar [Uzhorod], former capital and main city of Ruthenia, was achieved by units of the 4th Ukraine army. A total of 2,500 Germans and Hungarians in this city, which has a population of 24,000, were captured, a bulletin said. Fifty other localities also were reported captured.

On a 65 mile front extending across Czechoslovakia the 4th Ukraine was closing on Csap, rail junction 13 miles south of Ungvar.

4,800 Miles Overrun.

The 4th Ukraine in less than two weeks has overrun almost 4,800 square miles of territory grabbed by Hungary after the axis breakup of Czelchoslovakia and has joined up with the 2d Ukraine army, which is battering the Germans back in Hungary on the south. The Russians now control three good railways running across Czechoslovakia from Lwow, Polish base.

A Moscow dispatch disclosed that soviet supply difficulties had been eased with a resumption of operations by 25 refineries in the captured Krosno and Rzeszow oil fields in Poland.

A Berlin broadcast asserted the Germans had retaken Nyiregyhaza, an important junction and Hungary's 12th city.

Bombers Fire Budapest.

Moscow announced that soviet bombers attacked Budapest, capital of Hungary, on Thursday night and set 10 fires visible for 125 miles.

In German East Prussia, the Moscow bulletin said, the Russians seized three more villages in two mile gains in the Ebenrode area. One was Enskehmen, 12 miles northeast of Gumbinnen. Berlin said the civilian population had been evacuated from Gumbinnen.

In Yugoslavia, soviet forces aided by Marshal Tito's Partisans captured Novi Sad, Yugoslovia's seventh city, on the north bank of the Danube, 42 miles northwest of Belgrade.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Germany's broadcast bulletin yesterday said:

"In the battle in the East Prussia border district, our tank formations and planes relieved our grenadiers in the bitter struggle southeast of Gumbinnen. The enemy, attacking again with numerous tanks and planes, was checked after achieving insignificant dents.

"In the far north, our troops in three weeks of incessant fighting foiled all soviet attempts to annihilate German forces on the arctic front in encircling attacks. Petsamo and Kirkenes were evacuated."

YANKS GUIDED THRU CLOUDS BY GROUND RADIO

WITH THE U. S. 9TH AIR FORCE IN LUXEMBURG, Oct. 27 (AP).—Guided only by the radio instructions of ground controlers, American Thunderbolt pilots struck thru thick clouds yesterday at Saarbrucken in western Germany, dumping 500 pound bombs on their targets.

This use of ground controlers on front line positions as "navigators" was the first attempt at blind bombing by fighter-bombers. It was suggested by Lt. Arthur P. Wildern Jr., of Cleveland, O., during the course of the flight, when pilots found the target too overcast for a visual attack.

Headquarters declined to identify the specific target or to disclose the distance between the target and the controler.

FRANCE CURBS FRANCO FOES ON SPANISH BORDER

De Gaulle's Regime Shuts Frontier Zone.

PARIS, Oct. 27 (AP).—Despite continued attacks on the Franco regime in most Paris newspapers, the De Gaulle government is restricting Spanish republican activities along the border to clear the way for resuming diplomatic relations with Spain, French foreign office officials disclosed today.

The French government has established a frontier zone about 10 miles deep which will be barred to Spanish republicans, reported clashing with Generalissimo Franco's troops in recent days. In addition Spanish republicans who seized 10 Spanish consulates in southern France are being ousted.

It was estimated that 40,000 Spanish republicans in France will be placed under the league of nations "political refugee" status and accorded sanctuary similar to that given White Russians and German Jews.

REPORT FIGHTING IN SPAIN

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 27.—The fighting to overthrow Generalissimo Franco is going on along the Spanish border and in Spain itself, according to reports reaching Paris. At the same time French newspapers, which are predominantly leftist, are carrying on a vigorous campaign demanding full French government support to the National Union of Spaniards. The union is similar to the Committee of French Resistance which directed the underground movement in France during the Vichy regime and German occupation.

This campaign was conducted in the face of Prime Minister Churchill's recent praise of France's neutrality in the house of commons and Gen. Charles de Gaulle's statement yesterday that relations with Franco were friendly ever since he recognized the committee of liberation in North Africa.

There still is no clear picture of what is going on in Spain. According to the Paris Ce Soir, a Communist newspaper, the Partisans now are in control of a number of villages and hamlets in the provinces of Andalusia, Estremadura, Catalonia, Biscay, and Asturias.

"Inflamed by the example of these patriots," writes Ce Soir, "10,000 Madrilenos took up the offensive on the streets of their capital."

DIPLOMATIC TIES NOT ENOUGH FOR ITALY, SAYS CHIEF

ROME, Oct. 27 (AP).—Asserting "our aspirations have not yet been granted," Premier Ivanoe Bonomi told a press conference today recognition of Italy cannot be limited merely to reestablishment of diplomatic relations with the allies.

Great Britain and the United States announced Wednesday they were restoring normal diplomatic relations with the Italian government.

The Italian premier reiterated his appeal that Italy be granted the status of an ally.

British Navy Chief Hails U. S. Victories in Pacific

LONDON, Oct. 27 (AP).—A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, hailed today the American navy's "great and enduring victories in the Pacific." In a Navy day greeting to United States Navy Secretary Forrestal, Alexander said the British navy soon would be in the Pacific in force to join the attack on Japan.

ARGENTINA ASKS SHOWDOWN TALK WITH AMERICAS

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Oct. 27 (AP).—In a memorandum expressing concern over the situation "facing the concert of American nations because of the attitude assumed by some of its governments regarding Argentina," the Argentine government tonight called for a conference of all foreign ministers in the Americas.

The foreign ministry announced that the request was made in a note handed by Rodolfo Garcia Arias, the Argentine charge d'affaires in Washington, D. C., to the Pan-American union.

"Interests Entire Continent."

"Argentina is accused of the alleged failure to observe its international commitments, which in view of the nature of the commitments involves a problem which interests not one country, or group of countries, but an entire continent," the memorandum said.

In the proposed conference, the memorandum added "All American countries without exception would have an opportunity to express their viewpoints."

"In making this proposal the Argentine government clearly recognizes the unusual importance of its step," the statement said. "It is not in practice customary for a country to wish to consider together with its equals the fundamental aspect of its international conduct."

U. S. Comment Withheld.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27 (AP).—The state department tonight declined any immediate comment on Argentina's request for a conference of Pan-American foreign ministers. It was considered possible that the official position would be to ignore the whole matter on the ground that it lacked the backing of a proper government.

The administration of President Edelmiro Farrell has not had Washington recognition since it came to power almost a year ago. The policy of nonrecognition is based on official statements here that Argentina has failed to coöperate with Pan-American security measures and has become a center of Nazi activities in this hemisphere.

Not Invited to Parleys.

As a part of the practice of nonrecognition the United States has not invited Argentine delegates to recent international conferences nor informed Buenos Aires, at least in any direct formal way, of the plans for world security organization evolved at Dumbarton Oaks.

In proposing a foreign ministers' meeting, the Argentines have seized upon what some American diplomats here regard as a developing issue between Washington and some of the other western hemisphere capitals. In recent weeks there has been increasing talk among non-United States diplomats of need for such a meeting.

The sisters, graduates of the Illinois Institute of Technology, will leave together for Fort Des Moines, Ia., in the next recruit convoy to go from Chicago. After basic training, they will be assigned directly to hospital duty.

PEACE MUST LET GERMANS LIVE, SAYS GOEBBELS

Vows Fight for Reich Independence.

LONDON, Oct. 27 (AP).—Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi propaganda minister, in a broadcast to the German nation, tonight declared the Germans will "go on fighting until a peace is possible which guarantees our people's right to live, their national independence, and the expansion of the basis of their existence."

In what may be interpreted either as a bid to the allies to relax their war aims or as a call for German "bitter end" resistance, Goebbels said:

"One thing is certain—that from our enemies we may expect nothing but hell on earth if we lay down our arms and put ourselves in their power. It appears irrefutably proved by facts that the enemy is not pursuing a single war aim which would be of any benefit to suffering humanity."

Honorable Peace Quoted.

He concluded with a quotation from a letter written by Frederick the Great: "I love peace as much as you do, but it must be honorable and durable. It is not nice to lose friends every day, but, altho I know the benefits of peace, I would not buy them with dishonor."

He said the German people "show a quiet aspect of the deepest determination. They have calmly acknowledged the orgies of hate from London, Washington, and Moscow, and have realized they have nothing to lose and everything to gain."

Goebbels said: "The American President errs if he thinks Germany will collapse once the enemy is at our border.

Every House a Battlefield.

"On the contrary, we shall work until our fingers bleed and fight with dogged tenacity. We shall spare no means to bar the enemy's way into the reich. Every house and street will be a battlefield.

"The Germans have nothing to lose and everything to gain. There is only one answer—fight to the last until victory."

He asserted that Germany's enemies in the west want "to reduce us into a potato field," while the enemy in the east "wants to deport some 40,000,000 of our people."

Goebbels said that Hitler is holding fast to his belief Germany will win the war.

He said German workers were "turning out novel weapons in all spheres of production on which we have great hopes—even the greatest hopes." He warned, however, against expecting "miracles" from them.

STRAWS REVEAL DEWEY MAY TOP WILLKIE'S VOTE

Poll Points to Losses by President Roosevelt.

BY LEWIS HUNT.

Eleven thousand new straws in THE TRIBUNE'S state-wide straw vote for President show Gov. Dewey of New York still ahead of Wendell Willkie's 1940 vote both in Chicago and downstate. President Roosevelt, the straws continue to indicate, is less of a vote getter than he was four years ago, when he carried Illinois by approximately 100,000 votes.

On three days' tabulation of straws, the candidates stand:

	1944 % Straws. Roose-velt.	Dewey.	1940 % Vote. Roose-velt.	Willkie.
Chicago	57.4	42.6	58	42
Cook county towns	58.4	41.6	41	59
Downstate	42.9	57.1	47	53

In straws already taken, Dewey is 4 per cent ahead of the 1940 Republican candidate's election day strength downstate, and in today's straws Dewey gains one-tenth of 1 per cent. These come from a group of communities in which, as a whole, industry and mining, whose workers have been courted by President Roosevelt, are more extensive than agriculture, which the Democrats concede has shifted its support in the midwest to the Republican side.

Many Miners for Dewey.

Voters in the southern Illinois coal mining towns of Du Quoin, Benton, and West Frankfort marked a majority of test ballots for Dewey. Miners there are members of the United Mine Workers, which John L. Lewis has ordered to abandon the New Deal. Dewey also received the edge at industrial plants polled in Springfield.

Farm communities tested yielded Dewey sentiment running up to 79.4 per cent. Edwardsville, county seat of Madison county, whose interests are about even between industry and farming, gave the Republican nominee 52.5 of its straws.

In this group of communities, President Roosevelt received support in Alton, Moline, and Mount Vernon, where The Tribune straw ballot boxes were placed in factory neighborhoods to get the straws shown in today's table. Roosevelt is favored also in the Madison county mine towns of Williamson and Livingston, and in Savanna, which has two railroad division terminals.

Rail Workers Mark Straws.

The Mount Vernon straws were collected from railway car shop workmen of the American Federation of Labor. Alton and Moline workers who marked test ballots were for the most part members of the CIO, whose political action committee is trying to impress them into a unanimous block for Roosevelt.

On the day's tally in Chicago the President is two-tenths of 1 per cent over his rating on the previous days' straws combined, but six-tenths of 1 per cent behind his percentage of the vote given him in 1940 by the wards represented in today's table.

ADDS 500,000 TO DOWNSTATE'S POSSIBLE VOTE

A fresh indication that the downstate vote Nov. 7 may exceed expectations was given yesterday by Secretary of State Rowe in calling attention to the fact that the law permits an unregistered downstater to vote if he did not take advantage of this provision in the 1942 election.

This clause in the downstate permanent registration law easily may cause the vote to be greater than the 1944 registration of 2,090,530, Rowe said. The downstate vote in 1940 was 2,124,046.

Rowe said the permanent registration system for downstate generally did not become effective until 1942 and that many persons still have not gone thru the red tape of registration.

He estimated that there are 500,000 eligible nonregistered citizens in the 101 downstate counties.

The unregistered voter provision [for downstate only] was inserted in the legislation to get it thru the Illinois general assembly.

RAYBURN LISTS PRE-CHRISTMAS CONGRESS JOBS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27 (AP).—Speaker Rayburn [D., Tex.] today outlined a stiff pre-Christmas legislative job for congress. Returning from his Texas home, he listed the work confronting the house when it reconvenes Nov. 14 as:

1. Completion of legislation for a three year post-war highway program. The senate, before adjournment in September, passed a bill authorizing the federal government to spend $1,475,250,000 for this purpose.

2. A bill to resurrect the federal crop insurance program, now being liquidated because congress refused to appropriate funds.

3. Opening of hearings on legislation to revive the bituminous coal administration. Congress refused to renew this legislation last year.

DEMPSEY VOWS HE WON'T SHIRK JOB FOR VOTES

Warrantless Raids Aid Crime, He Says.

Charging the present state's attorney's office with misuse of its powers, John T. Dempsey, Republican nominee for that office, yesterday promised that if elected he will not make raids or conduct investigations without proper warrants and other authority.

"In too many cases," Dempsey said in a talk before a luncheon of the Chicago Crime commission in the Mid-Day club, "the present state's attorney's office has gone out on an alleged raid, but has thoughtfully neglected to obtain proper warrants.

"Fear Loss of Votes."

"Apparently the office is fearful that if some of the local hoodlums actually are arrested and convicted because of these raids the Kelly machine will lose some important votes."

Dempsey promised also that he would not use the power of indictment for political purposes or to threaten or harass innocent persons. Third degree methods of obtaining confessions also will be abolished, Dempsey declared.

Dempsey reviewed his record as an assistant state's attorney and as a practicing lawyer to show his ability to fulfill the duties of prosecutor.

Two past presidents of the Chicago Crime commission, Dempsey said, support his candidacy for state's attorney.

Tells of Loesch Backing.

"I am proud that the late Frank J. Loesch, president of the crime commission for more than 10 years, was one of the principal supporters of my candidacy for office." Dempsey continued, "Bertram J. Cahn, president of the commission from 1938 to 1942, is a member of the lawyer's committe on elections supporting my candidacy.

"Both of these men were fully acquainted with my record as a prosecutor. Their endorsement and support is an endorsement and approval of that record."

Louis N. Blumenthal, a former assistant state's attorney, called on citizens of Cook county to free Chicago from crime by electing Dempsey.

In a radio speech prepared for delivery last night, Blumenthal said that Dempsey "will make the most outstanding state's attorney Cook county has ever had." Blumenthal is a Republican candidate for trustee of the sanitary district.

UNION OFFICIAL'S FRAUD CASE BAIL FIXED AT $50,000

New York, Oct. 27 [Special].—Bail bonds totaling $80,000 were posted today in Westchester county court, White Plains, by three of the five defendants arrested today on a 129 count indictment charging a looting of funds from Yonkers local 60 of the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers union, AFL.

James Bove, secretary-treasurer of the local and vice president of the international, was released in $50,000 bail by County Judge Frederick G. Schmidt. Charles Locurto, president of the local, and Thomas Tringali, vice president, were released in $15,000 each. Anthony Petrillo, former member of the local's executive board, was released in $2,500 bail, while the fifth defendant, Felix Lozi, recording secretary of the local, has not sought release since his arrest.

District Atty. Elbert T. Gallagher said he would bring the defendants to trial jointly before next spring.

CAMERAS AND EQUIPMENT STOLEN. Rufus King, Indianapolis, Ind., yesterday reported the theft of two cameras and camera equipment valued at $239 from his truck parked at 704 E. 61st st.

'SUPER-STATES' PERIL FREE MEN, JOHNSTON SAYS

Easton, Pa., Oct. 27 [Special].—Warning of the dangers of a "super-state" in this country, Eric A. Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, predicted a titanic post-war conflict between collectivism and individualism, and between autocracy and Democracy. Education, he said, must shoulder the "terrific responsibility" of teaching people how to be free.

Addressing the final session of a three day institute at Lafayette college, Johnston spoke at the Founder day convocation, at which he was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree.

Prominent educators, business men, religious leaders, and labor representatives attended the sessions, sponsored by 12 national organizations seeking a world-wide peace movement.

Sees Intensified Fight.

Millions of people, Johnston said, have been struggling to free themselves from political and economic domination, seeking freedom to work out their own destinies in their own way. He expressed fear this struggle will be intensified after the war.

"Everywhere the tide is running strong toward government domination, government ownership," he continued. "All over the world man is uncertain, confused, frightened. He is throwing his problems back upon the government. He is relinquishing and assigning his economic freedom to the state."

Johnston said that in Russia, England, France, and many of the liberated countries' people are relying more and more upon government.

One Employer or Many?

"In Russia there is only one employer, the state," Johnston said. "In America there are millions of employers. In Russia if a worker gets in dutch with his boss, he is out of luck. In America if a worker gets in dutch with his boss, he goes around the corner and gets another job. Can you have real economic freedom in the American sense when there is only one employer? In Russia they said 'Yes.' I said 'No.'"

In England, Johnston said, both industry and labor are seeking governmental protection.

The proposed economic program for post-war development seeks government aid everywhere, Johnston said. Can maximum freedom of movement be attained by artificial assistance? he asked.

"The liberated countries seem to think 'yes,'" he commented. "But I would say 'no.'"

Danger of Super-State.

From the earliest days of this nation, the super-state has been the antithesis of the American concept of Democracy, he said, but "our forefathers knew the dangers of this super-state."

"Officials and burocrats, carrying out their economic tasks for the government, do not become any wiser or better by virtue of titles and impressive powers," he said. "They are merely more irresponsible."

This epic contest between the state and the individual cannot be determined by party labels, religious or geographic lines, Johnston declared. The question that must be decided, he said, is this:

"Shall we follow the new-fashioned liberal whose flaming banner proclaims 'Man belongs to the state; the state will protect him; the state will employ him for the benefit of the state.'

State as a Servant.

"Or shall we follow the old-fashioned Jeffersonian liberal whose blazing banner of many struggles proclaims the state is but the servant of man to be used for his greater achievements and freedom."

Education must provide us with the final answer, Johnston declared, for only thru education "can we seek the truth."

"Let him wear it a few minutes, dear. There's a little girl next door he wants to impress."

TRUMAN CITED AS TYPICAL OF NEW DEAL CREW

Lyons Blasts Record of Nominee.

TICKETS GO FAST.

State Sen. Walker Butler, treasurer, First National Bank building, said that tickets are going fast for the business men's luncheon Monday in the La Salle hotel. Up-to-the-minute political reports will be made on the nation and Illinois by Sam R. McKelvie, director of western Republican headquarters, and Gov. Green. Other speakers will be Sen. Brooks, Richard J. Lyons, nominee for senator, and John T. Dempsey, candidate for state's attorney.

The crazy-quilt pattern of candidates linked under the New Deal label was spotlighted in an address last night by Richard J. Lyons, Republican nominee for senator.

American minorities, which have not been swayed by the repeated disclosures of communist dominance in some sectors of the New Deal's "united front," will take warning from equally sinister exposures of other leaders of the fourth term drive, Lyons told an audience in 47th ward G. O. P. headquarters, 5220 Lincoln av.

Held Measuring Stick.

"Sen. Harry S. Truman has shed more light on the measuring stick applied by the New Deal in judging fitness for public office," Lyons said.

"When Truman was questioned about his attitude toward Hal Styles, the New Deal congressional candidate in California, after Styles was revealed to have held high office in the Ku Klux Klan, the Vice Presidential candidate retorted: 'If he's ours, we're for him.'

"We who subscribe to a way of life which detests intolerance condemn Truman's shocking action."

The reason for Truman's utterance can be understood better, Lyons said, with the background of later news dispatches from Missouri quoting affidavits from Truman's neighbors to the effect that Truman himself held membership in the Ku Klux Klan.

Decries Racial Hatred.

"It is certainly not reassuring to contemplate that if the fourth term candidate is returned to office, and something happens to him, we would have for our President for the first time a man who stands charged with sharing the doctrines of an organization dedicated to the most vicious program of racial hatred and religious bigotry that ever appeared in America."

Lyons saw logic for the Truman and Styles candidacies in the 12 year record of the New Deal, which he said has consistently fomented class hatreds in political juggling to keep the "indispensable man" in office.

JEWELRY WORTH $100 STOLEN. Thieves who entered thru a bedroom window yesterday stole jewelry valued at $100 from the home of Mrs. William Sommerman, 312 S. Hermitage av., she reported to the police.

PERSONAL AIRPLANE 'BRIGHTEST HOPE' FOR BIG POST-WAR SALES

The brightest hope for achieving a mass market that will maintain even a reasonable fraction of the nation's present 20 billion dollar a year aircraft manufacturing industry lies in the post-war sale of personal airplanes, George Burgess of the department of commerce in Washington, D. C., asserted yesterday.

The provision of better planes for civilians use is primarily the responsibility of industry, he told the concluding session of the 21st annual conference of the American Municipal association in the Blackstone hotel.

"But the best of planes need places to land," he declared in pointing out that "only by a multiplicity of airports conveniently located can travel by air become so convenient that it will be widely used for business and pleasure by a substantial proportion of the millions of people exposed to aviation during the war."

NEW DEAL'S EXIT TO BARE ITS RED SELLOUT: BUSBEY

The people of America never will know how this nation has been "sold down the river to the Communists" until there is a change in the White House, Rep. Fred E. Busbey [R., 3d] declared last night at the meeting of the Citizens USA committee at 205 W. Wacker dr.

Busbey, who said he is proud of his position of No. 1 man on the CIO political action committee's purge list, told his listeners that many persons insisted there was no need for the Dies committee, of which he is a member.

"They tell you," Busbey said, "that there are plenty of other investigating agencies in the government and that the Dies committee is unnecessary. But they don't tell you that there is not another investigating agency that can get its reports out before the public. The Dies committee is the only one that can make its findings public and let the people know what is going on.

"They don't tell you that it was evidence uncovered by the Dies committee and turned over to Atty. Gen. Biddle that convicted Fritz Kuhn and the German American Bund leaders. And if some of the government leaders had read the Dies committee report on Japanese activities in California before Pearl Harbor was attacked events out there might have been different."

The congressman declared the "smear attacks" on the Dies committee are not accidental, but part of a well planned campaign because the Dies committee is the only government agency that is exposing the plans of Communists and burocrats to change the governmental system of the nation.

"The house of representatives is the only reason Roosevelt has not completed his plans of dictatorship over the United States," Busbey charged.

DEWEY FAVORED BY WOMAN VOTE IN POLL OF N. Y.

New York, Oct. 27 [Special].—The women prefer Thomas E. Dewey and the men prefer Franklin D. Roosevelt, according to a special canvass conducted for three days in the New York Daily News Presidential poll of New York State. Partly because the women have cast a preponderance of straws for Dewey, the challenger retains a 2.2 percentage points lead.

With a total of 43,675 ballots now tabulated the state-wide civilian Dewey, 22,326 straws, or 51.1%; Roosevelt, 21,349 straws, or 48.9%. Roosevelt, 21,349 straws, or 48.9 0/0.

This represents a gain of .1 of a percentage point for Roosevelt in the last 24 hours.

Upstate the percentage of women for Dewey is 62.6., while the men for Dewey are only 61.5%. In New York City the percentages for Dewey are: men 38.8%, women 43.2%.

G. O. P. WOMEN DEMAND RETURN OF U. S. FAITH

Aver Dewey to Restore Moral Confidence.

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

Five Republican women, participating in a radio broadcast from a women's rally in the La Salle hotel, yesterday stated the women's viewpoint for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee, in terms of restoring belief in the national leader and moral confidence in his leadership.

The New Deal candidate was charged with using deception as major political strategy so long that he has lost the moral confidence of the nation. The program, for Republican women ward and precinct workers in Cook county, became a full fledged political rally as women cheered a parade of Young Republicans who carried broomsticks with the legends: "Clean House with Dewey."

Zasu Pitts Speaks.

Speakers on the broadcast were: Zasu Pitts, stage and screen actress, who also acted as mistress of ceremonies; Mrs. Ernest B. Griffin, chairman of the women's division, Illinois state central committee; Mrs. W. Glenn Suthers, president of the National Federation of Women's Republican Clubs; Mrs. Melville Mucklestone, 1936 national president of the American Legion auxiliary; and Mrs. A. R. Rohlfing, immediate past president of the Illinois Home Bureau federation.

Mrs. Griffin and Mrs. Suthers spoke in place of two national committeewomen, Katharine Kennedy Brown of Ohio and Pearl Sayre of Oklahoma, who could not be in Chicago for the program as originally announced.

Miss Pitts asked for Dewey's election to rid the White House of communism. She said: "The Communists are so strong in the New Deal —and getting stronger—that many Democrats . . . are going to vote for Gov. Dewey." She added she spoke as a "working gal" who had carried four union cards.

The question of whether returning service men would find jobs and opportunities or more New Deal "made work" was posed by Mrs. Griffin, who also charged that the New Deal was afraid of peace in view of the proposal that the state of war be continued 20 years to keep Germany and Japan in line. Gov. Dewey, she said, has promised service men will return at the earliest possible moment after victory, and Dewey has a record of making good his promises.

Deception Is Charged.

In a plea to women to examine the two parties on the basis of the integrity of the two candidates, Mrs. Suthers said: "From the beginning, Mr. Roosevelt has used deception as a major political strategy—has used it until today he has lost the moral confidence of the nation."

Mrs. Mucklestone asked for assurance of just treatment of 10 million men and women veterans of this war, recalling that President Roosevelt in 1933 "delivered the blow of ingratitude" when he cut veterans' pensions and vetoed veteran benefits. Speaking for farm women, Mrs. Rohlfing acclaimed Dewey's farm program in New York state where, she said, "every item on that program either originated with, or was approved by, experienced farm and agricultural people."

The Republican nominee for United States senator, Richard J. Lyons, in an address after the radio talks, accused the New Deal of soliciting support from industrialists by threatening them with loss of contracts after Nov. 7.

John T. Dempsey, candidate for state's attorney, repeated his campaign promise of fair and impartial justice in office and two fisted law enforcement.

SAILOR WADES TO WAR; FINDS TRIPLET BROTHER

(By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.)

WITH AMERICAN 5TH ARMY BELOW BOLOGNA, Oct. 26 [Delayed].—Thru the quagmire of this front yesterday rode a sailor. One might have suspected the navy was about to take over this watery sector, but the sailor was looking for a triplet and he found one, his kid brother. The sailor is Seaman Leo Dodge, 26, and his brother is Pvt. James Dodge, 21, wireman with an infantry division, whose two triplet sisters are at home with their mother in Springfield, Ill. Leo got a pass when his ship put in at Livorno [Leghorn], and hitchhiked to the front to find his brother, whom he had not seen in almost two years.

40 Jamaicans to Work in Fox Valley Foundries

Forty Jamaicans, released this week from work in harvest fields and packing plants near Rochelle, have signed 90 day work contracts with two Fox river valley foundry concerns, Woodruff and Edwards, Inc., of Elgin and the Moline Malleable Iron company of St. Charles, it was announced yesterday by war man power commission officials. Efforts to meet a foundry labor shortage thru local sources failed, WMC said, resulting in recruiting of the British subjects.

Brotherhood Accepts 41 as Citizens of Future

Forty-one boys were accepted by the Boys' Brotherhood Republic last night as future citizens of the organization. The Republic, meeting at 1532 S. Hamlin av., also installed the following officers: Mandel Lerner, mayor; Sam Perlman, city clerk; David Kurzon, treasurer; Don Goldthwaite, judge, and Don Le Boyer, prosecuting attorney, and ten councilmen.

WHISKY, CIGARS, AND FOODS STOLEN. One and a half cases of whisky, three boxes of cigars, 60 pounds of sugar, 14 pounds of ham, and several pounds of butter were stolen from a restaurant and tavern at 754 W. 142d st., George Fairson, the owner, told police yesterday.

HANNEGAN FUND APPEAL TO ARMY OFFICERS BARED

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27.—Democratic National Chairman Hannegan is soliciting campaign contributions from officers in the military services and urging such contributors to call at Democratic national headquarters in the capital to offer suggestions on the conduct of the campaign.

A lieutenant colonel in the army reserve, now on active duty, who asked that his name be withheld, made his letter available to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. It was written on stationery of the Democratic national committee and bore Hannegan's signature.

The letter, addressed, "Dear Colonel," was accompanied by a printed slip, which explained that individuals may contribute up to $5,000 a year in any federal election. It contained a stamped and self-addressed envelope for the return of the contribution.

Other Officers Solicited.

Hannegan's soliciting among army officers was disclosed as the capital was still buzzing over Gov. Dewey's charge that President Roosevelt had lent his name to a plan to sell "special privileges" at $1,000 a head to finance the fourth term drive.

While the letter said nothing about a grant of "special privilege," the colonel said it could be reasonably expected that a contribution would bring promotion of at least one grade. At least, he said, that is the idea he and fellow officers got.

The lieutenant colonel who received Hannegan's letter said several fellow officers had received similar letters, but were afraid to protest because they might be reduced in rank or exiled to some unpleasant post if they dared raise their voices.

The officer said that so far as he could learn the dunning letter was addressed only to reserve officers possibly because solicitation of regulars might be punishable under the Hatch act, but more likely because reserve officers for the most part are better fixed financially than army career men.

Assistance Asked.

The officer in question was highly successful in private life and comes of a moderately wealthy family. He said he believed his name was secured from some list of stockholders and then traced to military service.

The letter read:

"We are asking your assistance in carrying on the work of the Democratic national committee. Our needs today are greater than ever. The cause is the people's cause. No committee alone can possibly carry on a successful national campaign.

"While the solicitation of funds is just as distasteful to us as it is to you, it is the only way for your party to perform its national function in the reëlection of President Roosevelt. I believe, and I am sure you do, that the reëlection of the President to carry on the war and conclude a lasting peace should be the desire of every citizen.

Opportunity Offered.

"The Democratic national committee is in urgent need of funds to accomplish these purposes. It is my intent to afford you an opportunity to participate in this great cause. I know you wish to be numbered among those who after the election can say, 'I helped.' I inclose herewith self-addressed and stamped envelope together with a subscription card which I hope you will use in returning your contribution to the Democratic national committee, Mayflower hotel, Washington, D. C.

"We shall be glad to welcome you to the committee headquarters at any time and to have any suggestions you may wish to make regarding the campaign.

"With all good wishes I am sincerely yours,

"ROBERT E. HANNEGAN,
"Chairman."

BARRETT ACTS TO NIP FRAUDS AT POLLS NOV. 7

Special Guards Set for Bad Spots.

WILL YOU HELP?

If you wish to work for your country election day, communicate with:

The Business Men's committee, 53 W. Jackson blvd., which wants volunteers to work in the precincts now and in the polling places Nov. 7. Telephone Harrison 6515 or 6516. Or

The joint civic committee on elections, 105 S. La Salle st., which is seeking 5,000 watchers to man the polls Nov. 7. Telephone Franklin 8440.

Atty. Gen. Barrett announced yesterday that 25 roving squads from the attorney general's office will circulate in the bad election wards of Chicago on election day to guard against vote frauds.

In addition to these squads, Barrett announced, trained watchers will be assigned to specially selected precincts where election frauds are expected on the basis of past records. Barrett said this action follows a complete survey of Cook county.

Bad Spots Are Known.

"My investigators have been at work for months," the attorney general said, "on a survey of every questionable precinct in Cook county. We have made a thoro study and analysis of every potential vote fraud precinct. We know the bad spots and are in possession of the names of those who are suspected of election law irregularities.

"Because of this survey we will be able to increase the efficiency of the honest elections division of my office immeasurably. We will concentrate on the precincts in which we suspect that vote fraud manipulations will be carried on.

"We also will watch the individuals who are suspected as vote fraud perpetrators. Our efforts will thus be much more effective."

Assistants to Be on Call.

Barrett said his office is coöperating with civic and business organizations interested in preventing vote frauds. On election day, Barrett declared, a number of his assistants will be on duty in the attorney general's Chicago office. In the event of trouble in any precinct, he invited fraud watchers to call for advice and assistance.

"The telephone number is Randolph 8600," Barrett said. "If it is necessary or advisable, assistant attorneys general will go immediately to the precinct in which trouble is reported to render any aid and assistance vote fraud watchers may need."

REDS SEEK RULE THRU F. D. R. AID, TYRRELL WARNS

President Roosevelt has allied himself with men whose avowed purpose is the dissolution of the American democratic system and the introduction of communism, John F. Tyrrell, chairman of the Illinois Republican state central committee, charged yesterday at a meeting of the Women's National Republican club of Oak Park.

Speaking before an audience of several hundred women in the Oak Park Arms hotel, Oak Park, Tyrrell accused Earl Browder of dissolving the Communist party in America, which he headed, for the sole purpose of merging it with the New Deal. Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO political action committee, joined Roosevelt, Tyrrell said, because he saw a chance to establish "communistic ideology."

See Hillman in Cabinet.

"The reëlection of President Roosevelt means that Hillman will be secretary of labor and honest labor leaders will be obliterated," Tyrrell declared. "Labor and business will be regimented and the citizens of this country will be controled in all fields of professional and social life."

In a radio speech prepared for delivery last night, Lt. Gov. Cross, Republican candidate for reëlection, charged that the New Deal was taking credit for a "false prosperity bought by the blood of our sons."

"The record of the failure of the New Deal to create work and foster industry under normal conditions is an open book for all to see," Cross declared. "In 1933 there were 13 million unemployed. In 1940 10 million still were seeking jobs. From 1933 to 1940, the New Deal squandered 58 billion dollars on unworkable schemes which utterly failed to restore prosperity."

G.O.P. Achievements Cited.

Cross contrasted this record with that achieved by Gov. Dewey and Gov. Bricker in the management of their respective states. Each of the 26 Republican governors in the United States has created a surplus in his state treasury, Cross said, while the New Deal has succeeded only in creating greater deficits.

Cross asked voters to support the Illinois state Republican administration on the basis of a record he said which shows improvement in every department.

Green and Lucas Speak.

Gov. Green pleaded for a greater Chicago after the war in a talk before 500 members at the launching of the New Town club at 505 N. Michigan av. He urged particularly that Chicago be made preëminent in the air. "Chicago's aviation facilities must be greatly expanded so that the city will become the hub of air commerce as it is now the hub of rail commerce," Gov. Green said.

Another speaker, Sen. Lucas, cited himself as an example of how America enables a poor boy to rise to high position. He said that he started out as the son of a tenant farmer, and eventually became a senator. Only in America is that possible, he said.

Rep. Charles S. Dewey [R., Ill.], who is seeking reëlection, will be a guest tonight at a dinner given by Italian-American business men and civic leaders of the district. The dinner will be given in the Como inn at 546 Milwaukee av. It is sponsored by a committee of 50 headed by Peter Nanni, publisher of the Italian Bulletin.

WORLD POLICING WON'T BE WAR, LUCAS ASSERTS

Would Halt Hitlers in Time, He Says.

A post-war foreign policy for the United States which will give the nation the greatest security without resorting to war was advocated last night by Sen. Lucas, Democratic nominee for reëlection at campaign meetings in the 33d and 35th wards.

"The United States has no selfish ambitions," Lucas said. "She wants no foreign lands or riches. But this does not stop a warring, plundering nation from trying to destroy us. Japan is the deadly and threatening example.

Urges Realism in Policy.

"There is one way to work for world peace, and only one way. That is thru order, law, and justice. Nations must assume a serious responsibility for keeping the peace. This is only possible when nations are banded together to stop war before it starts by stopping aggressors when they are still weak and before they can foment war."

He urged a realistic foreign policy with its objective to see that other nations never again get into a position from which they can try to destroy the United States.

"There are some people who fear world coöperation, saying it is a breeder of conflict and that American lives will be sacrificed needlessly," the candidate asserted.

Aggressors "Outnumbered."

"First of all," he said, "the United States isn't the only nation which doesn't want war and the sordid gains from war. The peaceful, law abiding nations far outnumber the aggressors. Collectively, and with authority to act, they can stop gangster dictators before they ever get started."

He said he was an advocate of international coöperation which would call for the penalization of any nation's leaders who would not submit problems to a world court of arbitration. Even force might be used, but it would not be the force of war, he said.

"It would be more like policing as we know it in any civilized community," Lucas said.

MILLION SPENT BY DEMOCRATS IN TEN MONTHS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27 (AP).—The Democratic national committee spent $1,052,589 between Jan. 1 and Oct. 25, out of $1,093,178 in contributions during the same period, it reported to the clerk of the house of representatives today.

With a bank balance of $40,588 Oct. 25, the national committee, in a report submitted by Mae Oliver, assistant treasurer, said it had unpaid obligations of $131,015.40.

President Roosevelt, candidate for a fourth term, has contributed $1,000 to the committee, the report showed. Among the various contributors were:

Francis Biddle, $500; Samuel Goldwyn, Hollywood, $5,000; Daniel J. Tobin, Indianapolis, $1,000; Dave Beck, Seattle, $500.

Cordell Hull Gives $250.

Herman B. Baruch, New York City, $2,500; Cordell Hull, Washington, $250; Walter Kirschner, Los Angeles, $4,000; Mrs. D. F. Zanuck, Los Angeles, $3,000; Frank Altschul, 40 Wall street, New York City, $5,000; Mary E. Rosett, 11 South La Salle street, Chicago, $5,000; Otto L. Spaeth, Dayton, O., $5,000; Floyd V. Odlum, New York City, $5,000; R. S. Reynolds, Richmond, Va., $5,000; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr., $2,000; R. S. Reynolds Jr. of Reynolds Metal company, Richmond, $2,500.

Albert, Jack and Harry L. Warner, $5,000 each; Andrew J. Higgins, New Orleans, $350; Roosevelt for National Security club of Higgins employes, New Orleans, $4,109; Col. H. L. McAlister and Sam J. Watkins, state finance directors, Little Rock, Ark., $35,000; Paul Eisner, 580 Fifth av., New York City, $5,000; Tennessee State Democratic committee, $27,500.

Committee Contributes $15,000.

Democratic National committee, Myron G. Blalock, director, Dallas, Tex., $15,000; Louis Pokrass and Harry Davis, 385 Gerard av., Bronx, New York City, $5,000 each.

The National Citizens Political Action committee reported to the house clerk that up to Oct. 23 it had received contributions totaling $271,531 and spent $165,018.

Receipts of $912,713.18 from Jan. 1 to Oct. 25 were reported by the Pennsylvania State Republican finance committee, which also said it had spent $609,477.17.

The political action committee reported that it had received $5,000 from Frank Sinatra, the singer.

TRUMAN CALLS HIS OPPONENTS IN RACE 'FAKERS

Akron, O., Oct. 27 (AP).—Sen. Truman tonight attributed what he termed degeneration of the national election compaign in its closing weeks to Republican opponents whom he called "a couple of fakers who just want to get into power."

"They've misquoted me," the Democratic Vice Presidential candidate told a party rally here tonight, "they've misquoted the President, they've called him a Communist. They've called me a Ku Kluxer when I've fought the Klan organization all my political life.

"They're a couple of fakers who just want to get into power."

Truman did not elaborate the reference to "fakers," a departure from his prepared address.

From Akron he hurried to Northfield, O., and Cleveland, on his way to Albany, N. Y.

The senator, in his Akron speech, asserted that Thomas E. Dewey, Republican candidate for President, should be compelled "to tell the American people whether he wants a senate composed of isolationists like Robert Taft and Gerald Nye and the six other isolationists" he said were running on Dewey's ticket.

F. D. R. CITES RISE IN U. S. POWER TO WAGE WAR

Denies He Didn't Prepare Nation's Defenses.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 27 (AP).—Following is the text of President Roosevelt's speech here tonight:

"Today is the anniversary of the birth of a great fighting American—Theodore Roosevelt.

This day is celebrated every year as Navy day—and I think Theodore Roosevelt would be happy and proud to know that our American fleet now is greater than all the navies of the world put together.

"And when I say all the navies, I am including what was—until three days ago—the Japanese fleet.

"Since Navy day a year ago our armed forces—army, navy, and air forces—have participated in no fewer than 27 different D-days—27 different landings in force on enemy held shores.

Hazardous Undertaking.

"Every one of these landings has been an incredibly complicated and hazardous undertaking, requiring months of most careful planning, flawless coördination, and split second timing in execution. The larger operations have required hundreds of warships, thousands of smaller craft, thousands of airplanes, and hundreds of thousands of men.

"And every one of these 27 D-days has been a triumphant success.

"It is a remarkable achievement that within less than five months we have been able to carry out major offensive operations in both Europe and the Philippines—thirteen thousand miles apart from each other.

"And speaking of the glorious operations in the Philippines—I wonder—whatever became of the suggestion made a few weeks ago, that I had failed for political reasons to send enough forces or supplies to Gen. MacArthur?

Considered Impolite.

"I realize that, in this political campaign, it is considered by some to be very impolite to mention the fact that there is a war on.

"But the war is still on and 11 million American fighting men know it—and so do their families. And in that war I bear a responsibility which I can never shirk and never, for one instant, forget.

"For the Constitution of the United States says—and I hope you will pardon me if I quote it correctly—'the President shall be commander in chief of the army and navy of the United States.'

"I am not supposed to mention that, either.

"But somehow or other, it seems to me that this is a matter of considerable importance to the American people.

"It was due to no accident and no oversight that the framers of our Constitution put the command of our armed forces under civilian authority.

Defends Appointments.

"It is the duty of the commander in chief to appoint the secretaries of war and navy and the chiefs of staff—and I feel called upon to offer no apologies for my selection of Henry Stimson, the late Frank Knox, and James Forrestal, or of Adm. Leahy, Gen. Marshall, Adm. King, and Gen. Arnold.

"Furthermore, the commander in chief has final responsibility for determining how our resources shall be distributed as between our land forces, sea forces, and air forces, and as among the different theaters of operations, and also what portion shall be turned over to our allies.

"Our teamwork with our allies in this war has involved innumerable intricate problems which could be settled only around the conference table by those who had final authority.

"The other day, I am told, a prominent Republican orator stated that 'there are not five civilians in the entire national government who have the confidence and respect of the American people.'

News to the Japanese.

"In fact, he described your present administration as 'the most spectacular collection of incompetent people who ever held public office.'

"Well, now—that is pretty serious. The only conclusion to be drawn from that is that we are losing the war. If so, that will be news to most of us—and it will certainly be news to the Nazis and the Japs.

"The record will show that from almost the first minute of my administration I started to rebuild the United States navy which had been whittled down during previous administrations. What the navy suffered from conspicuously during these Republican administrations was a drastic false economy which not only scrapped ships but even prevented adequate target practice, adequate maneuvers, and adequate supplies. It had reached the point that on some vessels the crews 'chipped in' to buy their own brass polish to keep the bright work shining.

"The record will show that—when we were attacked at Pearl Harbor—we had already made tremendous progress toward building the greatest war machine the world has ever known.

Worst Defeat for Japs.

"Take, for example, the ships of Adm. Halsey's powerful 3d fleet which has just given the Japanese navy the worst licking in its history.

"Every battleship in that fleet was authorized between 1933 and 1938. Construction had begun on all of those battleships by September, 1940—well over a year before Pearl Harbor.

"All but two of the great force of cruisers in Adm. Halsey's fleet were authorized between 1933 and 1940 and construction on all but one of them had begun before Pearl Harbor.

"All of the aircraft carriers in that fleet had been authorized by the present administration before Pearl Harbor, and half of them were actually under construction before Pearl Harbor.

"There is the answer—once and for all—to a Republican candidate who said that this administration had made 'absolutely no military preparation for the events it now claims it foresaw.'

"Less than three months before Hitler launched his murderous assault against Poland the Republicans in the house of representatives voted 144 to 8 in favor of cutting the appropriations for the army air corps.

"I often think how Hitler and Hirohito must have laughed in those days.

"They are not laughing now.

"In the spring of 1940, as you well remember, I called for a production of 50,000 airplanes—and that same Republican candidate spoke scornfully of such a proposal, calling it a 'publicity stunt,' and saying it would take four years to reach such a goal.

"Nevertheless, we have since then produced more than 240,000 war planes. We have attained a production rate of more than 9,000 per month—more than 100,000 per year.

Training of Pilots.

"We have trained more than 850,000 pilots, navigators, bombardiers, aerial gunners, and other aerial crew members.

"I admit these figures seem fantastic—but such results were not impossible for those who had real faith in America.

"In 1940 we had a regular army of approximately 250,000, and a reserve, including the National Guard, of 350,000.

"Today we have 8 million in our army, including 126,000 women. More than half of our army is overseas.

"Our navy in 1940 had 369 combat ships and 189,000 men.

"Today we have more than 1,500 combat vessels, supported by an armada of 50,000 other ships, including landing craft. We have more than 3½ million men in our navy and over 100,000 women.

"Never before in history have the soldiers and sailors of any nation gone into battle so thoroly trained, so thoroly equipped, so well fed, and so thoroly supported as the American soldiers and sailors fighting today in Europe, Asia, and the Pacific.

Matters of Personnel.

"In his report to the secretary of war in 1943 Gen. Marshal wrote: 'In matters of personnel, military intelligence, training, supply, and preparation of war plans, sound principles and policies had been established in the preparation for just such an emergency as arose.'

"After we were attacked by the Japanese and Hitler and Mussolini declared war on us some people urged that we go on the defensive—that we pull in our fleet to guard this continent—that we send no forces overseas.

"That policy was rejected. In my first war message to the congress, a month after Pearl Harbor, I said:

"'We cannot wage this war in a defensive spirit. As our power and our resources are fully mobilized we shall carry the attack against the enemy—we shall hit him and hit him again wherever and whenever we can reach him. We must keep him far from our shores, for we intend to bring this battle to him on his own home grounds.'

"And that is the policy we have successfully followed.

"In our over-all strategy we planned our war effort in three phases:

"The first phase could be called 'plugging the line'—which meant stopping the Germans and Japs from expanding their conquests to such key points as Australia and the British Isles—for England then was still very vulnerable to invasion.

Forces Sent Overseas.

"Within a month after Pearl Harbor American expeditionary forces were moving across the Pacific to Australia and across the Atlantic to Northern Ireland. Our air forces went to the Southwest Pacific, to India, China, the middle east, and Great Britain.

"In this first phase we furnished arms to the British which helped them to stop the Germans in Egypt—and arms to the Russians which helped them to stop the Germans at Stalingrad.

"And our own growing forces stopped the Japanese in the Coral sea and at Midway.

"The second phase was the shattering of the enemy's outer defenses—establishing bases from which to launch our major attacks.

"This phase began with the operations in New Guinea, the Solomons, and North Africa. It continued thru all of the operations in the Marshalls, Gilberts, Aleutians, Marianas, Carolines, and now the Philippines—and in Europe with the landings in Sicily and Italy and finally in France.

"The war in Europe has reached the final, decisive phase—the attack on Germany itself.

"But we have much longer and much farther to go in the war against Japan.

"All of these operations had to be planned far in advance—and that does not mean merely drawing arrows on maps. It has meant planning in terms of precisely how many men will be needed and how many ships—warships, cargo ships, landing craft—how many bombers and how many fighter planes—and how much equipment and what types of equipment down to the last cartridge. And it has meant getting all of them to the right place at the right moment.

Long Supply Lines.

"It has meant establishing for our army and navy supply lines extending over 56,000 miles—more than twice the circumference of this earth. It has meant establishing the lines of the air transport command—150,000 miles of air supply systems running regularly.

"It has meant moving supplies along these lines at the rate of almost 3 million long tons a month, requiring 577 cargo ships to leave our ports with supplies every month. It has meant moving more than 14 million barrels of gasoline and oil a month, requiring 156 tanker sailings a month. And those ships and those tankers were all built in American shipyards.

"The production necessary to equip and maintain our vast force of fighting men on global battlefronts is without parallel.

"I need not repeat the figures. The facts speak for themselves. They speak with the thunder of tens of thousands of guns on battlefields all over the world. They speak with the roar of more than 1 million tons of bombs dropped by our air forces.

"The whole story of our vast effort in this war has been a story of incredible achievement—the story of the job that has been done by an administration which, I am told, is 'old and tired and quarrelsome.'

"And while we have been doing that job we have constantly investigated and publicized our whole management of the war effort. I call particular attention to the thoro and painstaking and completely nonpartisan work of that committee of the senate which was organized and presided over by Harry Truman.

Honest Government.

"The Truman committee has done a job which will live in history as an example of honest, efficient government at work.

"There is one thing I want to say—and it cannot be told in figures.

"I want to express the conviction that the greatest of our past American heroes—the heroes of Bunker Hill and Gettysburg and San Juan hill and Manila bay and the Argonne—would consider themselves honored to be associated with our fighting men of today.

"Those boys hate war.

"The average American citizen is not a soldier by choice.

"But our boys have proved they can take on the best that our militaristic enemies can put forward—they can take them on and beat them. And we must never forget that our allies, by resisting the aggressors to the last ditch, gave us time to train our men and prepare their equipment before they went into battle.

A Matter of Spirits.

"The quality of our American fighting men is not all a matter of training or of equipment or of organization. It is essentially a matter of spirit. That spirit is expressive of their faith in America.

"The most important fact in our national life today is the essential fact of 11 million young Americans in our armed forces—more than half of them overseas.

"When you multiply that 11 million by their families and their friends you have the whole American people personally involved in this war—a war which was forced upon us, a war which we did our utmost to avoid, a war which came upon us as inevitably as an earthquake.

"I think particularly of the mothers and wives and sisters and sweethearts of the men in service. There are great numbers of these gallant women who do not have the satisfaction and distraction of jobs in war plants. They have the quiet, essential job of keeping the homes going, caring for the children or the old folks.

Loneliness and Anxiety.

"Mrs. Roosevelt and I hear from a great many of these women who live in loneliness and anxiety while their men are far away.

"I can speak as one who knows something of the feelings of a parent with sons who are in the line of battle overseas. I know that regardless of the outcome of this election our sons must go on fighting for whatever length of time is necessary for victory.

"When this great job in winning this war is done, the men of our armed forces will be demobilized and returned to their homes just as rapidly as possible. The war and navy departments are pledged to that. I am pledged to that. The very law of this land, enacted by the congress, is pledged to that. And there are no strings attached to this pledge.

"While the agony of war lasts, the families of our fighting men can be certain that their boys are being given and always will be given the best equipment, the best arms, the best food, the best medical care that the resources of this nation and the genius of this nation can provide. And I am not indulging in undue boasting when I say that that is the best in the world.

Health Improved.

"The health of our army and navy, marines and Coast Guard is now better than it was in peace time. Altho our forces have been fighting in all climates and exposed to all diseases, the death rate from disease has shrunk to one-twentieth of 1 per cent — less than one-seventh of the death rate from disease for men in the same age group in civilian life. The mortality rate among the wounded is less than 3 per cent as compared with more than 8 per cent in the last World war.

"I have chosen Navy day—today—to talk about the 11 million Americans in uniform who with all their strength are engaged in giving us a chance to achieve peace thru victory in war.

"Those men could not have been armed and equipped as they are had it not been for the miracle of our production here at home.

"The production which has flowed from this country to all the battle fronts of the world has been due to the efforts of American business, American labor, and American farmers—working together as a patriotic team.

Highest Type of Business Man

"The business men of America have had a vital part in this war. They have displayed the highest type of patriotism by their devotion, their industry, their ingenuity, their coöperation with their government.

"I am proud of the fact that in this administration today there are a great many Republican business men who have placed patriotism above party.

"But unfortunately there are some Republican politicians—in and out of the congress—who are introducing a very ugly implication into this campaign—an implication of profound concern to all Americans who believe that this war must be followed by a just and lasting peace.

"These politicians are stating that the Republicans in the congress would coöperate with a Republican President in establishing a world organization for peace—clearly intimating that they would not coöperate toward the same end in the event of a Democratic victory.

Calls It Indefensible.

"That, it seems to me, is a deliberate and indefensible effort to place political advantage not only above devotion to country but also above our very deep desire to avoid the death and destruction which would be caused by future wars.

"I do not think that the American people will take kindly to this policy of 'vote my way or I won't play.'

"May this country never forget that its power in this war has come from the efforts of its citizens, living in freedom and equality.

"May this country hold in piety and steadfast faith those who have battled and died to give it new opportunities for service and growth.

"May it reserve its contempt for those who see in it only an instrument for their own selfish interests.

Racial Struggles.

"May it marshal its righteous wrath against those who would divide it by racial struggles.

"May it lavish its scorn upon the faint hearted.

"And may this country always give its support to those who have engaged with us in the war against oppression and who will continue with us in the struggle for a vital, creative peace.

"God bless the United States of America."

GREAT SCOT! MARINES BLOW INTO CAPITAL WITH BAGPIPE BAND

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27 (AP).—Eleven marines swung down Connecticut av. in the Navy day parade today splitting the air with the darndest spine-shivering skirls ever heard.

It was the unveiling of the only bagpipe band in the marines, a band that started because some Irishman told a marine there was something the marines couldn't do.

The challenge was hurled one night in January, 1943, when marines and naval officers were shooting the breeze with members of the royal Ulster constabulary in Londonberry, Northern Ireland.

"My marines," said Capt. Van Leer Kirkman, "can do anything."

"Everything but play the bagpipes," came a voice from the rear.

Kirkman turned to Lt. Col. James Dugan and pleaded:

"I want a bagpipe band. I'll supply the instruments if you'll supply the men."

Sgt. Carleton E. Hyland of Danvers, Mass., went to Scotland the next day, bought 11 bags of wind for $90 each and called for volunteer pipers. Now the bagpipers are at the marine base in Quantico, Va., which will never be the same again.

date") that the New Deal had made "absolutely no military preparations for the events it now claims it foresaw."

Mr. Roosevelt said he would never "shirk" nor "forget" his constitutional responsibility as commander in chief of the army and navy. He outlined at length the war strategy which "we planned."

Mr. Roosevelt again denied the Republican charge that his administration contemplates keeping men in military service after the end of the war as a cheaper way of solving the expected unemployment problem.

Victory Over Japs.

He struck at Gov. Dewey for what he said was a suggestion that Republicans in congress would coöperate with a Republican President but not with a Democratic one.

In his listing of achievements under his regime as commander in chief, the President spoke of the recent victory over the Japanese fleet.

The President put in a plug for his running mate, Sen. Truman. He said the Truman committee's investigation of the war effort would live in history as an example of honest, efficient government at work.

He concluded in fighting language, labeling Republican tactics as "a deliberate and indefensible effort to place political advantage not only above devotion to country but also above our very deep desire to avoid the death and destruction which would be caused by future wars."

45 Mile Tour in Car.

The President spoke after a busy day of campaigning in Delaware, Pennsylvania, and near-by New Jersey. He exposed himself to rain and near freezing weather in a three and one-half hour drive in an open car thru 45 miles of streets lined for the most part by applauding crowds.

The 13 car Presidential special arrived at Wilmington, Del., where the President made an appearance on the rear platform, at 11 a. m. He arrived in Philadeluphia at noon, where he began the tour that took him thru the busiest sections, both of that city and near-by Camden, N. J. The crowds during the day were not wholly hospitable. Dozens of Dewey banners were displayed by persons along the route.

LOOP PURSE SNATCHING REPORTED.

Mrs. Irene Neilmann, 4427 N. Maplewood av., yesterday told police that some one snatched her purse on Wells st. between Madison and Monroe sts. and stole a bracelet valued at $50 and $16.50 in cash.

700,000 TICKETS OUT FOR F. D. R. RALLY TONIGHT

BY GUY GENTRY.

With some 700,000 tickets distributed for the 110,000 seats that will be available in Soldiers' field tonight at the political rally for President Roosevelt, standing room outside the field may be at a premium.

Democratic ward organizations, CIO and other labor groups, and various party organizations will be given first call to the available seats. Blocks of seats have been set aside for these groups. If they fail to fill the field, the gates will be thrown open to the public at 7 p.m. and tickets no longer will be necessary. Possession of a ticket, however, is no guarantee of a seat.

10,000 to Each Ward.

The extremely large number of tickets was distributed to assure an overflow crowd for Roosevelt in his only midwestern appearance in this campaign. Each of the 50 ward organizations received approximately 10,000 tickets. CIO shop stewards received another 100,000, with the expectation that the political action committee would muster at least 40,000 CIO members. Democratic country towns organizations and special party groups received additional tickets so that no one possibly could be overlooked.

In addition to these tickets George F. Ross, manager of Democratic headquarters, said every theatrical ticket agency in the city had been amply supplied with tickets. Gates of Soldiers' field will be opened at 5:30 p. m. Party and labor organizations are expected to fill their reserved blocks of seats before 7 p. m., when all ticket restrictions will be removed.

Shortens War Plants' Day.

CIO political action committee orders to CIO workers of the city to be in the street south of Field museum at 5 p. m. when each union member's presence or absence will be noted, will cut short the afternoon shift in scores of war plants by one to three hours.

For the entertainment of those who must wait from the opening hour until Roosevelt's address at 8 p. m., Hal Halperin, chairman of the entertainment committee, announced that musicians and night club entertainers will be on hand. Giovanni Martinelli, opera star, will sing "The Star Spangled Banner."

No definite announcement as to the arrival time of the Roosevelt train is expected. The President will make a stop in Fort Wayne, Ind., and is scheduled to reach Chicago late in the afternoon. He will remain on his train until shortly before his scheduled appearance in Soldiers' field, and will go by auto from the train, which will be stationed on an Illinois Central siding near Cermak road.

Bar Spectators on Field.

No spectators will be permitted on the grounds of Soldiers' field and news reporters and photographers have been restricted by secret service officials. The President's auto will be driven upon a ramp in the center of the field where he will speak.

The President's address, scheduled from 8 to 8:30 p. m. will be broadcast over stations WMAQ, WCFL, and WLS in Chicago and over the National and Blue networks. After his address the President will go directly to his train and start the return journey to Washington.

GEN. R. B. REYNOLDS NAMED TO HEAD 6TH SERVICE COMMAND

Gen. R. B. Reynolds.

Brig. Gen. Russel B. Reynolds, director of military personnel at army service forces headquarters in Washington, yesterday was assigned to command the 6th service command. He will report for duty in Chicago Monday to succeed Maj. Gen. Henry S. Aurand, now in Washington en route to an overseas assignment.

Gen. Reynolds, 50, is a native of Dundee, Mich., and attended the University of Wisconsin. He started his military career as a private in the Michigan National Guard and served with the 31st infantry on the Mexican border in 1916. He was commissioned in the officers' reserve corps in August, 1917, and assigned to duty at Camp Custer, Mich., where he remained until December, 1918.

Gen. Reynolds accepted a commission as first lieutenant in the regular army in July, 1920, and holds the permanent rank of lieutenant colonel which he received in August, 1940. He became a temporary brigadier general March 17, 1943. He is a graduate of the army's command and general staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., and the Infantry Officers' school at Fort Benning, Ga.

Chicago WAVE Is Killed in Naval Hospital Fire

Farragut, Idaho, Oct. 27 (AP).—La Verne Ruth Peterson, 21, Chicago, a WAVE at the United States naval hospital here, died of suffocation last night in a fire which for a time trapped a number of women in a barracks building, the Farragut naval training center public relations office reported tonight. WAVE Peterson, pharmacist's mate third class, was the daughter of Mrs. Ruth Peterson, 3116 W. Marquette rd., Chicago.

DEWEY TO ASK 2 MORE HOURS FOR N. Y. VOTING

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 27.—Gov. Dewey this afternoon issued a call for a special session of the legislature for Monday noon to extend the closing hour for the polls on Nov. 7 from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m. The change was sought for New York City by Mayor La Guardia, Democrats, and the CIO-PAC, which are anticipating a heavy vote in the metropolis.

The governor, it was announced, will recommend the extension in voting hours. The change, for constitutional reasons, will be statewide. Upstate New York will give Dewey a majority, and the question to be decided on Nov. 7 is whether this majority will be large enough to overcome the anticipated Roosevelt advantage in New York City.

Recommendation of Counsel.

Dewey acted this afternoon on recommendation of his counsel, Charles L. Breitel, who reported that the additional two hours of voting time were desirable in New York City for the following three reasons:

[1] The later closing hour will permit voting with a minimum of interruption of war industries; [2] While the city's total registration of 3,217,751 is slightly less than in 1940, the number of newly naturalized electors has increased to 300,000 from the usual 100,000 and these will require more time with their ballots; and [3] There will be an unusually large number of inexperienced election clerks.

Farm Address Today.

Gov. Dewey, entering the final 10 days of the campaign, will outline his farm program tomorrow in a speech at a meeting in Syracuse, N. Y. The address will be broadcast over the Blue network on the Farm and Home Hour, from 11:30 a. m. until noon, Chicago time.

The Republican Presidential candidate will renew his pledge of adherence to the agriculture plank of the Republican platform, promising protection for farmers against wide price fluctuations such as followed the last war. The program would be administered by farmers and not by burocrats.

Dewey will stop in Utica tomorrow afternoon en route from Syracuse to Albany. On Tuesday night he will deliver a major address in Buffalo. En route there he will talk briefly in Rochester. Wednesday night he will speak in Boston.

His only other nation-wide broadcasts now scheduled are Saturday night, Nov. 4, in Madison Square Garden, and the night before the election from a radio studio.

SON WHO SOUGHT TO AVENGE HIS BROTHER KILLED

Third Brother Is Held Prisoner by Japs.

MRS. THERESA CAHILL, a widow, has given her second son to her country. He was Joseph Eugene, 21, who joined the air forces to avenge the death of his brother James, 23, and the capture of John, 25, by the Japs. Joseph was killed Aug. 30 when his plane plunged into the icy waters between Greenland and Iceland.

Yesterday Mrs. Cahill, who lives with her daughter, Dolores, 16, at 3838 Broadway, recalled a premonition she had when Joseph reported back for duty Aug. 11 after a furlough.

"Both of my other sons left on the 11th," she said, "and when Joseph left me that day I felt I would never see him again. I tried to persuade myself that it was just nerves, but I was scared."

Her other sons, John and James, were members of the 1st Maywood tank company of the Illinois National Guard. When it was mobilized as the 192d tank battalion they went with it. James was killed in action on Bataan, Jan. 15, 1942, and for many months the fate of John was unknown.

Now her prayers are for John, who was ill the last time she heard from him.

LT. FREDERICK C. BAKER, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Baker, 332 Wesley av., Oak Park, was killed in France Aug. 25. A solemn high requiem mass will be sung in St. Edmund's church, Oak Park av. and Pleasant st., Oak Park, at 9 a. m. next Saturday. He joined the army in August, 1942, and went overseas in May, 1944. Besides his parents, he is survived by his widow, Binkie, and two sisters, Kathryn and Marilyn.

Lt. F. C. Baker.

SECOND LT. EDWARD LARSON JR., 21, a Leo High school graduate, was killed in action in Belgium Sept. 2 while he was serving with the 3d armored division, his parents, who live at 7003 S. Winchester av., were informed by the war department yesterday. He joined the army Nov. 11, 1942. A brother, Pvt. William Larson, also survives.

TECH. SGT. THEODORE NYKAZA, 27, has been killed in action in France, his widow, Mrs. Joan Nykaza, 2531 N. Ridgeway av., has been notified by the war department. Nykaza entered the army in March, 1941. His parents live at 3306 N. Hamlin av.

PVT. LAWRENCE TERCO, 23, who lived at 4207 North av., was killed in action in France Oct. 9, his widow, Ann, said yesterday. He also is survived by a daughter, Shirley Ann, 1. A memorial mass will be said at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday in St. Philip Benizi church, Oak st. and Cambridge av.

MEMORIAL services for Pvt. John B. Meixner, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard A. Meixner, 7608 Phillips av., will be held at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday in St. Bride's church, 78th st. and Coles av. He was killed July 29 in France. He had been in the army one year. A brother, Robert, is a lieutenant in the army.

PURPLE Heart medals were awarded yesterday to two Chicago and one La Grange infantry men who were wounded in France and now are patients in Vaughn General hospital, Hines. The Chicagoans are Pvt. Joseph P. Cecarla, 21, son of Mrs. Christine Cecarla, 739 N. Ridgeway av., and Pvt. Conrad S. Wisinskis, 31, whose wife, Marie, lives at 4330 Hermitage av. Pvt. Nick M. Pavich, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Pavich, 9350 W. 47th st., La Grange, was injured on D day in Normandy.

SECOND LT. WILLIAM A. SCHOBERT, 20, has been missing in action over Germany since Sept. 28, the war department yesterday informed his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Schobert, 7341 W. Hoyne av. Lt. Schobert, who was awarded the air medal with two clusters, joined the army in October, 1942. He has been overseas as a bombardier with the air force since June.

STAFF SGT. WILLIAM R. HICKEY, 21, a member of the crew of a B-26 Mitchell bomber, failed to return from a mission over Italy on Oct. 3, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hickey, were informed yesterday. He went overseas 10 months ago, and received the distinguished flying cross, the air medal, and a Presidential citation. He wrote in his last letter that he hoped to be home by Thanksgiving.

BULGAR CAPTIVE MONTH AGO NOW HOME ON LEAVE

Staff Sgt. Joseph J. Barta, 20, army air forces tail gunner who was reported missing July 5, yesterday came home on furlough. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Barta, 2751 S. St. Louis av., never had given up hope that he was alive.

His mother completed a novena for him at Our Lady of Sorrows church on Sept. 17, the day word came that he was in a prison camp in Bulgaria. He was released after the Russians invaded that country.

Sgt. Barta, who entered the air force two years ago after graduation from Farragut High school, has received a Presidential citation, the air medal, and the Purple Heart. The last was for an injury from enemy anti-aircraft fire during a raid.

Husband Is Fined

John Popovich, 37, of 6315 Harper av., a war worker, was fined $200 and costs on disorderly conduct charges yesterday by Judge Frank E. Donoghue in Women's court. Popovich was arrested on complaint of his wife, Pauline, 36, also a war worker, who testified her husband left his job at the Chicago Dodge plant yesterday "because he wasn't feeling well." When she returned home, she said, she found him asleep with Mrs. Bonnie O'Hara, 36, of 6445 Drexel av.

Mrs. Popovich said she awakened Mrs. O'Hara by thumping her on the head with a vacuum bottle.

"My husband then knocked me down, broke my nose and pulled a handful of hair out of my head," she told the court. She displayed a fist full of hair to prove her point.

Judge Donoghue also found Mrs. O'Hara guilty but continued the hearing until Nov. 9 and ordered a social service investigation. She is the mother of five children.

MESSAGE HINTS KIN OF McCAHEY IS JAP CAPTIVE

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Bransfield, 6911 Euclid av., learned from the provost marshal general's office yesterday that a message from their son, Lt. [j. g.] Charles M. Bransfield, long reported missing in action, had been heard in a Japanese broadcast. This would make it appear that young Bransfield, a nephew of James B. McCahey, president of the board of educaton, is a prisoner of war.

Lt. C. M. Bransfield.

The fighter's father said he received letters from three other persons who heard the broadcast. The message they quoted said: "Dear mother and Judy: I am well and in good shape, so please don't worry. It's best to exchange messages with you by radio. Hope this message finds you in the best of health. Praying for a reunion in the future."

Lt. Bransfield, 27, was a fighter pilot operating from a carrier. He was reported missing after his plane was shot down in action over the Gilbert Islands Sept. 18, 1943.

KELLY OVERSEAS 'BALLOT CLASS' KICKS UP REVOLT

Overseas soldiers in letters received by THE TRIBUNE yesterday assailed the political propaganda sent to service men by Mayor Kelly. Hundreds of thousands of letters bearing Kelly's signature went out with a plea that it is "not only our privilege but our duty to aid you" in voting for Roosevelt. A sample ballot marked for all Democratic candidates was inclosed.

"Speaking as a soldier 12 months overseas whose congress has seen fit to withhold from the armed services all writings of a political nature," wrote Edward A. Bailey from New Guinea, "I deem Mr. Kelly's pre-digested ballot a sample of the arrogance of the Democratic party.

"Ballot and Blindfold."

"It presumes me incapable of thinking beyond the limits of Mr. Kelly's wishes and of writing more than a fairly legible 'X.' For the serviceman overseas the coming election is fast turning into an intrigue of ignorance.

"I commend the Republican party for being above such propagandizing as the party in power is using, but I also warn the Republicans to make themselves known. We are a long way from our homeland. News becomes no more than a trickle by the time it reaches us. In my present predicament I have been handed a ballot and a blindfold."

Another soldier in the Pacific, William Clark, expressed the opinion that the Kelly letter should be a penal offense.

"Where Do They Get Off?"

"If such books as 'Yankee from Olympus,' 'America Unlimited,' and 'Ten Years in Japan' are banned as dangerous political propaganda, where does the central committee of the Democratic party of Cook county get off sending out this stuff?" he wrote. "I've seen captured Japs with a greater sense of fair play. Hope the committee gets its ears pinned back.

"Our 'sacrifices' to which they so gallantly refer are not made for outfits that operate like that."

A Particular Target.

This soldier particularly criticized the following paragraph in the Kelly letter:

"When you do receive an official ballot the simplest and quickest way to indicate your loyal support is by making a cross [x] in the circle in front of the word 'DEMOCRATIC' at the top of the first column on the ballot. One single cross in that circle means a vote for each of our candidates."

The soldier said it might seem unreasonable, but some of his colleagues out of touch with the world would interpret this paragraph as official instructions.

MRS. ROSENBERG MAY BE CABINET AID, UMW WARNS

Seen as Labor Chief Under 4th Term.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27.—Mrs. Anna Rosenberg may be the next secretary of labor if President Roosevelt is re-elected, the United Mine Workers' Journal says in its Nov. 1 issue.

Mrs. Anna Rosenberg.

Mrs. Rosenberg, reputed advocate of keeping American soldiers in the service until they go thru "reorientation" courses to fit them for civilian life, has gained such stature in the behind the scenes councils of the White House that the Journal ranks her with Harry Hopkins and Interior Secretary Ickes.

Labor spokesmen say her star is rising as that of Secretary of Labor Perkins is falling. They add that Mrs. Rosenberg is the unofficial but recognized White House emissary with whom they have to deal in labor controversies.

Born in Budapest.

Mrs. Rosenberg, who was born in Budapest, was disclosed two years ago as the holder of two government jobs from which she collected $13,500 a year while enjoying $22,500 a year more from two other jobs in private industry.

Warning that labor's collective bargaining rights are at stake in the Nov. 7 election, the Journal attacks the fourth term, saying:

"For the past 12 years, labor has been denied representation in the cabinet by President Roosevelt. Of the few boards or agencies in which labor has been given a sprinkling representation, the membership has been overwhelmingly weighted against labor.

Assails F. D. R. Action.

"The President even appointed Anna Rosenberg, a personal director for millionaire department store owners, to see to it that the CIO-AFL labor victory committee membership did nothing which would run afoul or cross up the planning of the burocrats to regiment labor for the ex-New Deal party, regardless of economic consequences to the membership of the CIO and AFL.

"Madame Perkins is secretary of labor. Why in the name of heaven didn't President Roosevelt either ask for Secretary Perkins' resignation, as being totally incompetent to sit in with the labor victory committee, or give her the recognition and authority now vested in Anna Rosenberg?

"How does Anna Rosenberg come into the picture? The answer is simple. Anna Rosenberg is an out-and-out Roosevelt politician. . . .

"If President Roosevelt is re-elected, he may appoint Anna Rosenberg as your next secretary of labor. This would be a clever maneuver—and he is good at maneuvering."

Wells High to Be Saluted by Citizens of Tomorrow

The Citizens of Tomorrow program will salute Wells High school on the northwest side in its broadcast over W-G-N from 10 to 10:30 a. m. today. Dr. Paul R. Pierce, principal, will speak, and the school's mixed chorus, directed by H. E. Nutt, will sing. Philip Maxwell, who conducts the program, will add two more names to the Future Citizens' roll of honor: Emil Zamorski, 17, of Wells high, and Ruth Saxby, 16, of Freeport, Ill. Emil Bruni, Wells senior, will play "Dark Eyes," on the accordion, and Marion Kalina, 17, of Wells, will present "Interscholastic News."

I met an old friend the other day. He had not seen me since I was still a wealthy man. "Henri," he asked, "what ever happened to you?" I laughed—"Everything. You know, Jack, I may have lost all my money, but I didn't lose the U. S. A.—and that makes me still a rich man. Sit down, friend, and have a good dinner—and remember, America is the only country that can offer you one." Back the attack—buy MORE bonds.

BRICKER SAYS F.D.R. IGNORED MENACE OF JAPS

Assails Boondoggling in Hour of Peril.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 27 (AP).—Gov. Bricker, labeling the President's foreign policy an "utter failure," declared tonight that for eight years Mr. Roosevelt failed to heed evidence of German and Japanese aggression.

During that period, said the Republican candidate for Vice President, the administration was "spending billions of taxpayers' dollars on nonuseful made work and boondoggling" and "neglecting the defense of the United States."

"Even now Mr. Roosevelt is committing the same kind of blunders in handling foreign relations. He is pursuing a course of personal, secret diplomacy," Bricker said in a speech prepared for nation-wide broadcast.

Hits in Truman Home.

The Ohio governor selected the home grounds of his Democratic rival, Sen. Truman, for one of the major addresses of the campaign. It was here, he has said, that Sen. Truman was boosted to political prominence by "the corrupt Pendergast machine."

Bricker reviewed the period of 1933 to 1941, and said that while Germany and Japan were preparing for large scale war and launching upon preliminary aggressions, Mr. Roosevelt continually talked disarmament and devoted his attention to a domestic program that included "attacks on business" and "his bitter fight to pack the Supreme court."

During that time, he added, the state department was advised of German-Japanese war developments and the President's military advisers cautioned him that the army and navy were not adequately prepared.

Arming Long Delayed.

Not until May of 1940, after Japan invaded French-Indo China, Italy invaded Greece, and Hitler conquered Norway, Denmark, France, and the low countries, did the President "for the first time plainly" point out the danger to America and ask for rearmament, Bricker asserted.

"But even then he did not discuss the Japanese menace. Instead he turned his attention to the campaign of 1940."

The Republican candidate summed up:

"Here then is the year to year account of the events that led up to Pearl Harbor. Mr. Roosevelt gave word service to peace, did nothing to preserve it here or elsewhere. His foreign policy was an utter failure. He did not keep us out of war. Moreover, he knew, or should have known, that America would be drawn in. Yet he refused to take us into his confidence. He minimized the danger and lulled us into a sense of security until after the fall of France."

Wants Fresh Viewpoint.

The Ohio governor said "there is no reason whatever for believing that he will be any more successful in the future than he was in the past."

"We desperately need a President who will courageously speak out for America's convictions—who will speak with the same sturdy voice that Churchill speaks for Britain and Stalin speaks for Russia—and who will be just as diligent in protecting our own national rights as they are diligent in protecting theirs," Bricker said.

A VOTE FOR F.D.R. MAY BE A VOTE FOR TRUMAN.

The consciously forgotten man of the fourth term campaign is Mr. Harry S. Truman. He has become one of the hallroom boys, forlornly flitting about making one night stands while the bosses of the New Deal turn their backs upon him. He sidled into Chicago the other day and hung up his hat in a hotel room. The Hon. Edward J. Kelly and the rest of the machine sedulously looked the other way. Mr. Truman wasn't paid even the courtesy of the temporary loan of a soap box. A candidate for dog catcher could have expected that much.

This isn't madness and there is method in it. Mr. Kelly and the bosses are making their campaign on the indispensable man because they recognize the fatal weaknesses of his running mate. Mr. Truman can't make votes for himself or for anybody else, and he would actively lose enormous numbers of votes if the city gangs failed to distract the attention of the electorate from the ominous fact that the Throttlebottom may well wind up in the White House.

Boss Kelly in Chicago, Boss Flynn in New York, and the New Deal bosses of Philadelphia are making sure that Mr. Roosevelt takes all the bows in the big cities. They get him in his open car and parade him around to make sure that everybody remembers he's still with us. Mr. Truman is routed about the Chautauqua circuit. He rides the milk trains and sees little but haystacks when he wakes up in the night and peers thru the windows, wondering where he's at. The crowds and the attention are marshaled for the commander in chief. That personage and Mr. Truman apparently are a twain that shall never meet.

In their way, the bosses of the city gangs are as callous in their treatment of Mr. Roosevelt as they are of Mr. Truman. They get him out in the rain and display him. They put him in front of the microphone and he opens his mouth so that their jobs and power may be preserved. They know that 12 years in office have taken a terrific toll and that their man would be 63 years old and far from well at his fourth inaugural. There is something gruesome about the display of animation the bosses are requiring of their candidate.

Mr. Kelly's reasons for hiding Mr. Truman in a closet are not hard to find. Mr. Kelly, as he frankly states, is interested in votes for the party. The scandalous story disclosed by Sen. O'Daniel as to how Kelly forced the transfer of Lt. Comdr. Edward F. McGinnis from his assigned post as vote officer of the Pacific area demonstrates the single minded attachment of the Chicago boss to his purpose.

Commander McGinnis in civil life was a Republican. In the navy, and particularly in the assignment which had been given him by Adm. Nimitz, he could not be partisan. Mr. Kelly, it develops, wanted and expected a partisan in this position of trust within the navy—but he wanted the partisan to be a New Dealer. He compelled the navy department to oust Comdr. McGinnis from his job of supervising the service vote in the Pacific.

In demanding Comdr. McGinnis' removal Mr. Kelly is quoted as telling the navy's assistant war ballot officer that "he [McGinnis] won't get any votes for Roosevelt." When the ballot officer responded that McGinnis had better not attempt to get any votes for anybody or he would face a court martial, the honorable mayor replied, "Well, I am going to see that he is removed and, if necessary, I'll go direct to the White House and see that it is done."

Mr. Truman has been conjured out of sight by Mr. Kelly and the other city bosses for the very same reason that Comdr. McGinnis failed to commend himself to Mr. Kelly: he won't get any votes for Roosevelt—and, by transference, for the city machines. That is why Mr. Truman has been cast in the role of the silent candidate. Mr. Kelly and his associates don't want the disturbing intimation to gain circulation that, in view of Mr. Roosevelt's age and brittle health, a vote for Roosevelt is very likely to be a vote for Truman for President.

PROPAGANDA.

Sidney Hillman's political action committee, which has distributed an estimated 52 million fourth term propaganda hand-outs, uses a familiar smear device in its Oct. 18 bulletin. "Joe Goebbels wasn't listed on the program," it states, "but the ideas of Hitler's master propagandist found expression in every major address delivered at the Republican national convention which nominated Dewey."

As regards the New Deal burocracy, the PAC quotes a German propaganda broadcast of Feb. 9, 1944, which spoke of "The New Deal . . . raking up . . . ever more unwieldy . . . burocracies . . ." [The dots are Hillman's.] Then it quotes Mr. Hoover's reference to "such dictatorship of burocracy," and Gov. Green's description, "a fascist minded federal burocracy." It also mentions Gov. Bricker's appeal, "Free America from the clutches of burocracy," and the Republican platform's charge that "the national administration has become a sprawling, overlapping burocracy."

This game of playing with parallels is easy, especially when the New Deal radio monitoring service works overtime to torture a few comparisons for Sidney out of the yappings of Dr. Goebbels. It is surprising, however, that the PAC overlooked another eminent Republican's observations about burocracy. That statement was: "Of all forms of government, those administered by bureaus are about the least satisfactory to an enlightened, progressive people. Being irresponsible, they become autocratic and, being autocratic, they resist all development. Unless burocracy is constantly resisted it breaks down representative government and overwhelms democracy. It is the one element in our institutions that sets up the pretense of having authority and being responsible to nobody."

The man who in Sidney's judgment was "playing Hitler's game" when he made these remarks was the late President Calvin Coolidge. He spoke his views on burocracy at Williamsburg, Va., May 15, 1926, seven years before the Nazis came to power and the New Deal began building the greatest burocracy in history. Sidney can't charge Mr. Coolidge with following the Nazi line, for there wasn't any those days. Mr. Coolidge was describing a phenomenon of government and its dangers. He anticipated it. Mr. Hoover, Gov. Green, Gov. Bricker, Sen. Taft, and the other Republican platform drafters did not create the actuality they recognized and described. That was Mr. Roosevelt's doing.

SPHERES OF INFLUENCE.

Mr. Churchill has reported to parliament that Russia and Britain have reached "a very good working agreement on the future of Greece, Romania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, and Hungary." The Polish question is still troublesome. The Baltic states have been handed, bag and baggage, to Russia.

What this means is that Russia and Britain have agreed on spheres of influence. Greece will surely fall within the British orbit. Italy is there already. Romania and Bulgaria certainly will go to Russia and probably Hungary and Yugoslavia also.

The details remain more or less shrouded in secrecy, but there can now be no doubt that the forthcoming peace, like every other settlement following a great European war in modern times, will be based, not on principles of right and justice, but on power.

No reader of history and no one experienced in the ways of the world is going to be greatly astonished by Mr. Churchill's revelation. Things are being arranged now pretty much as they have always been arranged, with the victors pursuing their own real or fancied interest in the distribution of the territories of the vanquished. With Germany's power broken, Russia expects to play the dominant role in eastern and middle Europe. Britain expects to dominate western Europe and the Mediterranean. The conference in Moscow dealt with the distribution of spheres of influence and, of course, the difficult questions were those concerning the territories in Europe relatively remote from both England and Russia.

There is nothing in this to excite any one unless he happens to be a One Worlder, persuaded that this time it is going to be different. Those who are demanding that America unconditionally guarantee the peace with our army, our navy, and our wealth believe or pretend to believe that the peace soon to be written will be just and inherently stable. Therefore, they have said, we can readily afford to underwrite it. They can't say that any longer.

The division of Europe into spheres of influence, the grabbing of the Baltic states by Russia, the inability of the Russians to come to an acceptable agreement with Poland, all point to future wars to alter the balance of power. If we guarantee this peace, we cannot avoid participation in the next war, and we shall then find ourselves fighting for the preservation of injustice and oppression.

TWO YEARS TOO LATE.

Mr. Roosevelt has ended martial law in Hawaii, two years too late and less than two weeks before the election.

The battle of Midway in June, 1942, ended the danger that the territory might be invaded. The results of that battle were fully appraised by August or September of 1942 and since then an invasion of Hawaii has seemed scarcely more probable to reasonable minds than an invasion of Chicago.

The reluctance to yield authority, whether rightly vested or usurped, is of course typical of Mr. Roosevelt. So long as the rule of law remained superseded by force in Hawaii, he had a precedent, however bad, for extending the same tyranny in the continental United States. He would not have yielded to the obvious even now if it had not been for the resolute courage of Judge Delbert E. Metzger of the United States District court in Honolulu. In the face of overwhelming military force, deserted by Mr. Biddle's department of justice, which threw its influence behind tyranny and against the rights of the people, Judge Metzger stood stanchly for the law and the Constitution. He will be honored as a representative of all that is best in American and Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence.

Mr. Roosevelt's sudden decision to back water may very well have been motivated by the knowledge that the United States Circuit Court of Appeals is soon to rule on habeas corpus cases decided by Judge Metzger. It is to be hoped that that court will refuse any plea by Biddle that it consider the cases closed by the revocation of martial law.

THE BIBLE READING PROGRAM.

The American Biblical society, in coöperation with committees of laymen and the presiding officers of churches, has brought out a program of Bible reading for the 33 days from Thanksgiving to Christmas. The proposal is that families at home and men in combat will, if they follow the program, be able to read the same inspiring chapters.

Countless American families will gain comfort and strength from the knowledge that on the same day those at home and a son, brother, or husband on the battlefield will be reading the same portion of the Word. Ten million folder bookmarks listing the chapters have been printed. It is to be hoped they are being distributed abroad as well as in this country. If that is impossible, the list can easily be included in the next V-mail letter.

MR. PEPYS GETS AROUND.

28th Oct.—Have been worked up over the naval battles around the Philippines, and took to drawing diagrams of the strategy for the instruction of my colleagues. But I am a prophet howling in the wilderness, for these blasé wretches say my sketches look like the stuff a football coach chalks on his blackboard when teaching the flea-flicker play.

Went into cocktail society a while ago to meet Kathleen Winsor, the "Forever Amber" author, who was surrounded by journalists, novelists, society editors, booksellers, and librarians, all anxious to know if things were really like that in the reign of Charles II. Found her the literary pin-up girl of the season, and coaxed her to the flowing bowl for a toast to her eyes, but was baffled when she called for a bobby-sock soft drink.

Had a fine Saturday afternoon at Dyche stadium watching the Wildcats emerge from their trance and come close to a moral victory like the Maroons of old, who were the greatest moral victory team in the country. But am thwarted today, for the boys are resting in preparation for greater exploits. On the Sabbath, walked four miles in the country to observe the autumn leaves, which were giving a fine exhibition.

Attended a quiet soirée at the Art institute to open a new gallery of oriental art, and saw my favorite Chinese saint or archangel, called the goddess of compassion, sitting in an attitude that reminded me of Mae West relaxing in pajamas. Learned that the Chinese call this the attitude of majestic ease.

Now to prepare my speech for the contributors' dinner, which is in the offing, and shall try to make it a record-breaker in shortness.

TOO YOUNG TO KNOW.

You are so young and lovely that it numbs
The ache that autumn brings to see you gaze
Brightly at grapes and dark, voluptuous plums
Frosty with dawn, sweet with the summer days.

Now Time takes longer strides, and yet you lie
Across its path upon the copper ferns
And watch a scarlet feather on the sky,
Laughing to see the way it dips and turns.

You are too young to wish that you might stem
This glowing tide that quickens on the crests;
You scoop up paisley leaves and scatter them
Across the meadow larks' small, secret nests.

You cannot know what autumn means to us,
For you and April are synonymous.

Political Voice of the Turtle.

After reading the Line [Oct. 23-25] I rapped on the glass tank of Ol' Bill, my 7 year turtle. Bill poked out, blinked a bleary eye, and hissed, "Whatzit now, more of them lousy ant eggs?"

"No, I see by the Line that all the animals—cripes, Bill, you smell of liquor, what . . ."

"And why not, after you rinsing all those highball glasses in my tank last night instead of the sink—kinda high, eh?"

"Let's not speak of last night. Do you realize all the animals are getting in the Presidential race? Why, Fala and Choppy already have chucked their collars into the ring and . . ."

"A couple of stuffed feists—let dog eat dog."

"Next it'll be Ferdinand the cat, and . . ."

"That alley bum yowls too much."

"Just wait until Quizzicuss stirs up his menagerie."

"Shucks, none of 'em naturalized and can't speak English."

"All right, you do something then. Arise, proclaim, denounce, orate. Let the voice of the turtle be heard in the land, let . . ."

"Let's not get het up, Chig; these hangovers might catch fire."

"Aw, you're just a lazy, no-good——go back to your mud and stay there."

"Now is that nice, and me with a headache? Listen, Chig, you just remember what my grandpap did to that smart-aleck rabbit. Now you keep your shirt on and you'll see Ol' Bill come in wide and handsome at the finish. And say, Chig, for Pete's sake, drop some ice cubes into this tank along with a few hairs from one of those dogs and pull down those shades!"

ANNIVERSARY SONNET.

(Two years in the army of the United States.)

"How soon hath Time, that subtle thief of youth" . . .
Ah, Milton, help me mourn the years just past.
So quickly spent. And yet, to tell the truth,
I hope the next will imitate the last.
Be like the last? Perhaps, but in reverse
Like Hamlet's crab, go backward toward the day
Two years ago when I, sad eyed and terse,
So neatly packed my old blue suit away.
My old blue suit! O, Time, turn things around
And steal upon some other, brighter year.
Let me forego this martial job I've found;
Exchange some brown hairs for the gray ones here.

But still, my loss is small and must increase,
For multiplied it means a world at peace.

UNCONSCIOUSNESS FROM MANY CAUSES.

THE QUESTION is asked frequently, what is delirium? Is it a type of temporary insanity? Emphatically, no. The interval is short and may persist from a fraction of an hour to a day or two. Subsequent to recovery, no permanent mental aberrations remain. We must look upon such episodes merely as events in the course of a given disease. The implication is that the patient is poisoned so severely, or the temperature is so high, that restlessness and irritability will fill the mind with delusions and hallucinations. At times, fantastic visions may be so fearsome that the victim will be pale with anxiety.

Reducing the temperature by increasing elimination, and thus combating toxemia, will prove effective. Rarely will the sufferer retain memory of his odd sayings or peculiar behavior. Commonly called "lightheadedness," the symptom will appear more often with highstrung people. They seem to be on a narrow edge of stability and hence respond readily to slight stimuli.

With infants and young children, the same causes may be responsible for convulsions, even unconsciousness. This latter state is always alarming unless we know the reason. It may be a momentary fainting attack, wherein blood pressure falls. The brain is thus insufficiently supplied with circulation. Such incidents manifest themselves time and again in crowded rooms where the air is stifling. Furthermore, these bouts are more likely to be encountered should weakness or ill health be exhibited.

But deep coma, from which the patient cannot be roused, may mean diabetes, uremia, poisoning from some source, or apoplexy. Some maladies can strike with overwhelming force and rapid dulling of the senses may be followed by collapse. This may happen in pneumonia. Many an individual found dead to the world is falsely accused of alcoholic intoxication whereas the real trouble is a severe infection.

Finally, we must not overlook the rôle of trauma—injury. A violent blow may rupture a blood vessel beneath the coverings of the brain and lead to hemorrhage. True enough, the conduits themselves were probably deteriorated, but enough pressure may ensue to bring on complete insensibility.

As a rule, physicians have little difficulty in determining what has happened. If the breath has a characteristic odor, the medical examiner can tell whether the condition is due to uremia or to diabetes. The appearance of the victim, if signs of paralysis exist, will tell bleeding within the skull.

The importance of hospital care, if the person cannot be roused within 15 to 20 minutes, cannot be overemphasized. Perhaps insulin will be needed. Other cases will demand fluids and stimulation. The first duty of the bystander is to call an ambulance. Next, he may make certain that the clothing about the neck region is loose enough to permit breathing. If false teeth are present, it is usually well to remove them. Before the doctor comes, if choking is obvious, the tip of the tongue may be grasped and pulled forward gently. It is wiser, however, to do too little than too much.

OUTSIDE CARE.

J. R. writes: Why do physicians call in outside help for their own families?

REPLY.

Public policy decrees that a physician should not treat members of his family for serious ailments.

WORRIER.

H. D. writes: What is an anxiety neurosis?

REPLY.

One in which apprehensions, fears, and forebodings occupy the horizon. The antidote is confidence and the assurance of safety.

WAIT AND SEE.

B. C. writes: Would it be dangerous to the health to have a pair of white shoes dyed black?

REPLY.

Not unless you are sensitive to the dye. You will soon find out.

RESULT OF X-RAYS.

W. R. writes: I broke into a rash after taking a series of X-ray treatments. Will this eruption disappear?

REPLY.

It should. If the rays are carefully filtered, there is no danger of a burn.

PRESENT AT BIRTH.

W. L. writes: What is congenital heart disease?

REPLY.

A "born with" defect.

No Time Slave, She.

What is time? A minute lost, a moment to be met, the inexorably moving hands on the face of a clock. What is time? An appointment to race to, an event to be remembered with sorrow or delight. What is time? That which cripples all ardor and pegs all endeavor, that which prompts the diurnal inquiry, "What time is it?", that which no man owns or can control.

Not until two weeks ago did this timebound human realize what a burden time is. Realization came one morning when time no longer mattred, when time, for us, no longer existed. Never until then had we known the freedom that must have been that of the Neolithic man, the freedom that must have been that of Thoreau, but a freedom outdoing theirs because it was aided by the electric light which ignored the 12 hours when there is no light and turned night into day.

There must be others in America today who are awakening morning after morning to find the finger of time no longer directs their every movement. There must be many others whose alarm clocks, having worked overtime for three long years of war with neither grease, affection, nor proper curative measures have gulped out a final clangor and collapsed forever. Those persons, too, must now know perfect bliss.

The death of our own slavedriver, a noisy affair with heavy-beetled black hands on a pale ivory face that quivered with every tick [original investment: $1.39], was not sudden. That very time which it so perfidiously chronicled took care of it. Months ago [See how awareness of time controls our language?] it decided to take time out. For eight hours it would tick. Then it bowed to the minimum wage and hour law and stopped. It never gave advance warning. It simply stopped. But such had been the noise of its tick that silence was shattering. Cessation of the tick thus would arouse the deepest sleeper. To disregard it was stupid. How could one disregard time in this ordered world? What does any idiot do? He lurches out of bed, fumbles for the telephone, dials Cathedral 8000, and restores time to its proper place in his life. Once that is done, he again can sleep, the dope.

The eight hour pause was as easily coped with as it was understood, but as time went on its demands became greater. Soon the eight hour pause became a six hour pause. The six hour pause became a four hour pause. The clock now would start again only after a brutal shaking. Then it misbehaved atrociously. It would start with a fierce, loud ticking which every 30 ticks would subside to a flutter as soft and tender as the flutter of a humming bird's wings when first working up for flight. The listener would be tense, fearful that the flutter would end in silence, but, no, the loud tick always came back in for its 30. Soon the clock became personalized. It was a venomous, malevolent thing, always waiting for the moment when it could ruin the next day.

None of this would have been too great a strain had there been a watch from which to reset the alarm, but the watch, far from being reluctant to chronicle time had been eager. It was always two, three, or four hours ahead of the sun. It occupied a permanent niche in a repair shop. Nor could a new alarm clock be found. And if the old one were left to be repaired, how would one cope with time while it was being fixed?

It was at this point that this faithless object to which we entrusted our destiny first went on a one-hour work day and then crumpled completely. The crumpling came when it was thrown to the floor. It crumpled, and so did time. It could not be [1] coaxed, [2] repaired, or [3] replaced. Appointments fell. So did duties. For three days and three nights this freeman reveled. Time, sidereal, solar, or Greenwich, at last was our slave. And then some person, probably envious of our freedom but posing as a friend, came thru with two hands, 12 figures, a tick, and an alarm bound up in cardboard and known as a Waralarm. It works.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

NO "COMMANDER IN CHIEF" FOR HIM.

Great Lakes, Ill., Oct. 19.—I am proud that I am and always have been a Democrat. I am ashamed that the party has permitted New Deal encroachments upon its integrity. I have cast my G. I. ballot for the Bricker-Dewey slate, as have many of my colleagues here. I can see only impending catastrophe, and soon, for the United States should the Roosevelt administration be permitted to continue its rape of American ideals and the liberty of our posterity.

Several important reasons are hereby tendered as to why Mr. Dewey and Mr. Bricker will get my vote and as many votes as I can muster for them:

1. The ruthless bungling of the selective service system.
2. The record breaking shipments of American steel, iron, scrap metals, and petroleum products to Japan from 1937 thru 1941 — for use against our ally China, and in preparation for the campaign against the United States in the Pacific by Japan.
3. The utter waste of hundreds of millions of dollars on a WPA program for votes and the building of a Roosevelt political machine that destroyed the self-respect of many hundreds of thousands of citizens.
4. The all-time high of debt, mortgaging of the income of ourselves and our posterity.
5. The strangulation of the small business man—the backbone of our historical development.
6. The establishment over the last 10 years of a burocratic syndicate of nearly 4 million New Deal torchbearers on the federal pay roll, and the loss of the right of the separate states to an inefficient madhouse government of bureaus at Washington, D. C.
7. The continual violation of the confidence of the citizens of America by a policy of secret and treacherous foreign agreements to be fulfilled with American sweat, blood, tears, natural resources, and ultimate sacrifice of a great many of America's freedoms and traditions.
8. The many attempts to coerce the American men in the service by restriction of news from home and certain other restrictions. The bobtailed ballot must not be overlooked. New Deal puppet groups are also making use of supposedly confidential information contained in personnel lists of the men and women in service to engage in solicitation of New Deal votes.
9. Overzealousness in planning the future of the American service man—as if he were a new arrival into the society of this country. These plans, of course, are designed to obligate these men to the ways and purposes of the New Deal philosophy. SEAMAN.

PETER REILLY.

A CANADIAN WITNESS.

Nashua, N. H., Oct. 12.—Herewith I am sending you a copy of a statement that appeared on the first and second pages of the Financial Post of Montreal:

"About Mr. Roosevelt, no argument raged more frequently or more fervently than this increasingly important question of his health.

"After sitting not more than two yards away from him for some 40 minutes on the deck of the Citadel last week, I put myself unequivocally on the side of those who are genuinely alarmed at the change in his appearance. This man seemed haggard and drawn compared to last year. Of the trio, he seemed the oldest; Mackenzie King by all means the youngest. It was hard to believe that King and Churchill are reaching 70 next month; that Roosevelt is still 8 years their junior.

"Of course it is easy to argue that Roosevelt with his heroic struggle against sickness, starts with a terrible handicap. All that is true. But it makes one wonder all the more how he is going to be able to stand the terrific heat of another campaign battle, plus the overwhelming responsibility of his executive position in the days which lie immediately ahead."

MR. ROOSEVELT'S EMOTION.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 23.—We are told that President Roosevelt exhibited great "emotion" over Gen. MacArthur's return to the Philippines to raise our flag again there. No one ever heard of the President exhibiting any emotion over our flag during the past three years it has been left lying there beneath Japanese feet, while he busied himself helping save the flags of foreign nations. The President seems a bit late with his emotion. Maybe he has been saving it to exhibit just before the election.

LIFE A PENALTY AT ARCTIC DEVIL ISLAND AIRBASE

Yanks Fight Mud, Ice, and Floods.

BY FRANK STURDY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GALENA, Alaska, Oct. 27.—There is a gray line around the four walls of the small office of Lt. Col. Fred C. Johnson, comanding officer of the Galena air base, about a foot above the colonel's desk. Some one observed:

"That was the high water mark of the Yukon river when we were flooded out last spring."

Galena lies inside an elbowlike curve of the Yukon. It is the Alaskan division's last airport south of the Nome terminus on the Bering sea on the Alaska-Siberian air route.

Routed by Flood.

When the flood hit Galena last May the water came thru a hole in the broken dike faster than any one thought it would, and the men were driven to a couple of small gravel hills. Later they rowed from hut to hut, rescuing some of their possessions.

There is a new and better dike going up around the base now. In some places it will be 20 feet high, and its top everywhere will be two feet over the high water of the last flood.

The base sits on top of a thin layer of rotten muskeg. A few feet beneath the muskeg lies the arctic table of permanent ice and frozen ground. Drillers punched shafts down 150 feet thru ice and frozen gravel before their bits broke into flowing water.

Galena's floods, almost annual events, are caused by ice blockades when the Yukon thaws. Dynamiting river blockades is an old dodge. The army gave it a new twist by sending planes to drop bombs on the block threatening Galena last winter, but not knowing where the channel lay beneath the ice, the pilots were in effect blindfolded.

A Study in Mud.

When the river receded into its banks, the men cleaned up their quarters and got to work on the air port. The runway had been damaged. A new one was laid out, higher than the old one, and is now completed. A large hangar is going up. Air traffic is now going thru Galena with the same dispatch as at other bases.

To have a real understanding of mud, it is necessary to stroll around Galena for a day or two. There is no surface anywhere that gives solid footing. After a walk of a hundred yards, it is necessary to knock about five pounds of mud off each shoe.

A couple of roads curve thru the camp for short distances, and they were surfaced last summer with gravel, but the gravel has been sucked into the mud and trucks bog down to the axles in places. No motor vehicle lasts long.

Quonset hut barracks are now being arranged end to end, with spaces between in which baths and latrines will be housed in small connecting buildings to avoid long walks at night at 50 degrees below to facilities out of doors.

Not for Bad Boys.

During a short visit it is not possible to estimate morale at a place like Galena, but the officers and men seem to have a certain wry liking for the place. Galena's reputation up and down the line for a long time had been that of a Devil's island, a place where the bad boys go, or where men are assigned for punishment.

Brig. Gen. Dale V. Gaffney, commanding general of the Alaskan division of the air transport command, recognizing that this situation was bad, made an inspection of the base early in September. Then he sent an official commendation to all officers and enlisted men, praising them for their accomplishments and assuring them they were selected not for punishment, but because their capabilities fitted them for their tasks.

There is no railroad within hundreds of miles of Galena, nor any highway. During the four or, at best, five months when the Yukon is not frozen all nonperishable supplies for Galena for a year are brought in by barge from Nenana, about 321 miles up the Yukon.

More than 26,000 tons have been barged to the base this season of a total requirement of 35,000 tons. The stocks requisitioned included aviation fuel, motor fuel, and diesel oil. Food and clothing amounted to 5,681 tons; supplies for the post exchange, 500 tons; and construction materials, 15,000 tons. From January to July 1,300 tons of supplies were flown to the base.

Aid by Caterpillar.

Last winter 500 tons of steel landing mats were hauled overland from Fairbanks. The distance was 380 miles, over ice and snow covered bush country. It was done by "cat" train and took from Feb. 14 to May 1.

The landing mats were loaded on wanigans, which are caboose like wooden freight carriers mounted on steelbound timber runners. Caterpillar tractors equipped with steel bladed bulldozers for breaking thru brush and smoothing a path in the snow pulled the wanigans. When the going was fairly smooth each tractor could pull two wanigans.

The report of the expedition's progress for April 10 is typical:

"Started to cross the Knoure river. Hauled half the loads across and one cat went thru the ice. Three cats worked 15 hours getting it out. The truck spring was broken when the cat was removed. It required two men all day to fix it. Two cats started for Ruby breaking trail and four more to get fuel oil."

When the journey ended all the hardships undergone by the men turned out to be fruitless. The landing mats were no longer needed and most of them are still stored at the Galena base.

THE QUESTION.

What article do you misplace most frequently?

WHERE ASKED.

Hyde Park Y. M. C. A.

THE ANSWERS.

Boris Fonarow, designer, 1400 Hyde Park blvd.—I usually carry quite a bit of money because I have to make change. I start out with it in my left pocket, make change, and put it accidentally in another pocket. Then I search frantically for the money I believe I have lost, and usually find it in my vest.

Edward Schlaffer, student, 5220 Drexel av.—When I receive letters from friends I visualize myself putting them away where I'll be able to find them, but when I look they're gone. I leave them all over the house. Mother puts them away for me. I never find them because she does such a thoro job.

Tom Barton, student, 5203 Harper av.—I'm constantly misplacing my keys. Once when I returned home after a late date I was surprised to find that I had no keys. I had to remain on the doorstep until my mother returned from her work as a nurse. That, however, didn't teach me a lesson. I still forget them.

Marvin Hornstein, student, 5520 South Shore dr.—When I need my fountain pen in school I never find it. I don't believe I've ever written a test with my pen. The ones I have borrowed haven't been much better than no pen. I always find the pen when the examinations are over. In a logical place, too.

Edgar Claude, radio work, Hyde Park Y. M. C. A.—Ping-pong is one of my favorite games and I have a very fine paddle. I keep it in my room most of the time. Quite often, however, I leave it on a chair in the ping-pong room and nearly turn my room upside down before I remember where I left it.

Jack Kooperman, student, 5318 Cornell av.—Just when Friday night rolls around and I'm looking for a beautiful blonde for a date I reach for my little red book and find that it's gone. Then I have to depend upon my friend's numbers. My book later shows up in the most peculiar places. It is quite an experience.

LAKE AND LOOP SMOKE SCREEN LAID BY NATURE

A blanket of smoke pressing down on Lake Michigan, the loop, and the near loop industrial district yesterday morning was due to a meteorological phenomenon known as an inversion, Frank A. Chambers, deputy city inspector in charge of smoke abatement, said last night. The amount of smoke was not unusual, he said, but it was slow in rising.

An inversion, he explained, is a condition that occurs when low lying air currents are cooled rapidly. This was the case early yesterday when the temperature took a sudden drop. A layer of warmer air a few hundred feet from the ground held down the colder air which was permeated by smoke from industrial plants and other sources.

Chambers said the smoke stayed low in the downtown area until late in the morning because the westerly wind was too light to push thru a high pressure area over the lake front. The smoke formations in the lake attracted particular attention and gave rise to conjecture that a man-made smoke screen was being laid down in observance of Navy day.

Cops Get a Pig in a Pokey —but It Takes 2 Squads!

It took two squads of policemen and a wagon to capture a 400 pound pig which obstructed traffic yesterday at 125th st. and Doty av. The porker was taken to a station stable at Kensington police headquarters only after it had been lassoed and trussed.

MIGHTY BLOWS STAGGER JAPS, SAYS FORRESTAL

U.S. Power Described at Navy Day Dinner.

Cracked and weakened, but holding together only because of barbaric and fanatic determination, the pillars of the Japanese militaristic temple are being reduced by the mightiest sea power in history—the United States navy—Navy Secretary Forrestal said last night.

Speaking at the dinner climaxing Chicago's observance of Navy day, Forrestal said the Japanese navy went into the Philippines battle last Monday as strong or stronger in some major units, such as battleships or aircraft carriers, as it was when Pearl Harbor was attacked.

Means Loss of Face.

"That battle," said Forrestal, "laid up at least temporarily two-thirds of the Japs' battleships. It chewed up a sizable portion of her carriers, and it subtracted further from an inadequate number of cruisers and destroyers."

Retreat from the Philippines, Forrestal said, was a hard thing for Japan because it has meant a loss of face in the orient. For two years, he added, the Japanese navy refused to come out of hiding and fight. During that period it repaired its strength which had been worn down by earlier scraps in the eastern Philippines, Solomons, Rabaul, Truk, and the Bonins.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Great Lakes Naval Training station float in Navy day parade.

To his own question about the position of the United States navy today, Forrestal revealed that since Pearl Harbor the number of combat ships has been tripled and the navy's air arm multiplied by 10.

27,000 More to Come.

"This year," Forrestal continued, "we shall receive 27,000 new combat aircraft, two new battleships of the big 45,000 ton Iowa class, seven big aircraft carriers of the 27,000 ton Essex class, about 40 escort carriers, 15 cruisers, 85 destroyers, more than 200 destroyer escorts, and almost 80 submarines.

"On this Navy day we hold superiority in the Pacific as well as, in conjunction with Britain, nearly complete dominance in the Alantic. Our margin over the Japanese is substantial, but our margin needs be large."

The navy secretary paid tribute to the officers and men who built up the supplies necessary for the return to the Philippines.

Basis of Security.

"Let us here resolve," he concluded, "that we will never permit that power again to dwindle. It will be the foundation of our security and for that reason one of the greatest foundations in the world."

Before dinner guests of the Chicago council, Navy league of the United States, Forrestal awarded the bronze star for heroism to Ensign George T. Hill, 23, of Piqua, O., who was wounded during an enemy air attack at Saipan. Ensign Hill was graduated from the midshipman school at Abbott hall, and now is a patient in the Great Lakes naval hospital.

Yesterday morning 4,000 sailors, marines, coast guardsmen, WAVES, SPARS, and women marines thrilled thousands who lined loop streets for more than an hour to watch the Navy day parade.

Sprinkled among the marchers were scores of beribboned and decorated enlisted men whose service ribbons bespoke action in every theater of war where United States forces have fought. Bands from navy installations in Chicago played for the marchers and a dozen or more floats gave watchers an insight into the specialized and technical training the navy is giving to thousands of sailors and marines in Chicago.

Passengers Driven Off by Sheridan Rd. Bus Fire

Passengers aboard a crowded Sheridan rd. bus disembarked at 3140 Lake Shore dr., last night when the motor burst into flames and filled the double decked vehicle with smoke. No one was injured.

POWER OF JAP FLEET HALVED, SAYS ADM. KING

'Beaten and Broken' in Philippines Test.

New York, Oct. 27 (AP). — Adm. Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet, said tonight that the battle of the Philippines reduced the Japanese fleet "to not more than one-half of its maximum strength."

He gave this appraisal in an address prepared for the Navy league and indorsed a statement by Adm. William F. Halsey Jr., commander of the 3d fleet, that "it is a certainty that the Japanese navy has been beaten, routed, and broken."

"The enemy is welcome to know that we will continue to press them with every means at our command," King continued.

"It would seem that even the sons of heaven can read that handwriting in letters so tall and so clear that they are visible around the world."

Jap Plan "Ruined."

Also appearing before the Navy league were British Ambassador Halifax and Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff.

Calling it a privilege to render homage to the navy "on the morrow of so resounding a victory," Halifax said "the Japanese strategic plan has crumbled into ruin."

Gen. Marshall, besides paying tribute to the navy, cautioned against any "belief that the war is practically over in Europe and we are free to turn to other interests."

Just back from a visit to France and Belgium, Marshall said he hoped soldiers fighting "in the present bitter grip of battle" hear no echo of such ideas at home.

Says Japs Won't Crack.

Columbus, O., Oct. 27 (AP).—Rear Adm. O. B. Hardison asserted today at a Chamber of Commerce dinner that "I, for one, don't believe the Japanese will crack or fold up," as the saying goes.

"Predictions are dangerous," he said, "but the best authorities agree that we are likely to have a year or more of fighting against the Japs after the war is over in Europe. We are beginning to crack the island chain that protects the heart of Japan."

Heavy Rocket Use.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 27 (AP).—Rear Adm. George F. Hussey Jr., chief of the bureau of ordnance, said today that early in 1945 the navy will be expending 100 million dollars a month for rocket ammunition alone.

In an address before the Advertising club of Boston he said "the overall peak of ordnance expenditures will not be reached until the latter part of the first quarter of the coming calendar year. By that time our expenditures will be approximately 350 million dollars per month.

"Right now," he added, "we are expending approximately 100 million dollars per month for ammunition."

TAXI DRIVERS BACK ON JOB IN EVANSTON; HINT ODT CONCESSION

Evanston taxicab drivers who were on "strike" three days against an office of defense transportation order forbidding them to carry passengers to Chicago returned to their jobs last night when Frank T. Corcoran, district ODT manager, hinted that the rule would be canceled.

Dewey Robinson, president of the Evanston Cab Drivers' association, announced that the men had agreed to operate their cabs while waiting for a reply to a petition which will be sent to Washington, D. C., for permission to make Chicago trips. The drivers are asking the right to carry fares from Evanston to the Drake hotel or the North Western railroad station, and to pick up fares on their return trips.

Seventy per cent of the persons who get into taxicabs in Evanston want to be taken to Chicago, he said. Relief from the ODT ban against intercity cab service, which is national in effect, is asked under the ODT hardship clause, he said. The clause permits lifting of the rule in instances where it works hardships on drivers or communities.

Fire Destroys Ordnance Office at Terre Haute

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 27 (AP).—Fire of undetermined origin in the main office of the Terre Haute ordnance depot early today caused damage estimated by military authorities at $125,000. A building which housed 225 office workers was destroyed with all equipment and supplies.

Native Chicago Man, 89, Fatally Injured by Auto

Alfred E. L'Hommedieu, 89, a retired painter, of 11836 Parnell av., was fatally injured last night when he was struck by an automobile in front of 604 W. 119th st. He was a native Chicagoan. The automobile driver was George S. McCann, 73, of 424 W. 117th st., a produce dealer.

CHOOSE DYKSTRA FOR CALIFORNIA UNIVERSITY POST

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 27 (AP).—Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, for the last seven years president of the University of Wisconsin, at Madison, was selected today as provost of the University of California to administer the affairs of the Los Angeles campus.

The regents made the appointment on the recommendation of Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul, president of the University of California. Dr. Dykstra will fill the vacancy created by the death of Dr. Earle R. Hedrick.

Dr. Dykstra, national director of selective service in 1940 and 1941, at one time was professor of political science at U. C. L. A., and had also served on the faculties of the University of Chicago, Ohio State university, and the University of Kansas.

Before the war he was a member of the technical advisory board of the national emergency public works administration, and is now a member of the advisory committee on education, recreation, and welfare of the army and navy.

Between 1930 and 1937 he was city manager of Cincinnati, O., leaving to become head of the University of Wisconsin.

University authorities declined to disclose what salary he will receive, and said it was uncertain when he will assume his new post.

Dykstra "Thinks It Over."

Madison, Wis., Oct. 27 [Special].—Dr. Clarence Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin, when informed tonight that he had been selected as provost of the University of California at Los Angeles, said he had no comment until after the Wisconsin regents meet tomorrow. "I'll have to think it over," Dr. Dykstra said.

CHURCH SERVICE MARKS GREEKS' LIBERATION JOY

Chicago Greek-Americans last night attended a service of thanksgiving at the Greek Orthodox Church of the Annunciation, 1017 N. La Salle st., to mark the liberation of much of their ancestral homeland. The ceremony was held on the eve of the fourth anniversary of the Italian attack on Greece. Oscar Broneer, executive vice president of the Greek War Relief association, in commenting on the impending anniversary, said the struggle of the Greek people is far from ended and that they now face the task of rehabilitating their country.

DEWEY NEEDED FOR PRESIDENT, VOTERS WARNED

Without using names Ralph W. Carney, Wichita, Kas., manufacturer, pleaded yesterday for the election of Gov. Dewey and a return to free enterprise in business.

Known as "the most traveled man in America" and one who has adressed many business men's meetings thruout the country, Carney spoke before 800 members of the Executives' club in the Sherman hotel.

He defined free enterprise as "the right of free men to show enterprise" and drew a burst of applause when he asked: "And what in the hell is wrong with that?"

Carney told the executives that business and business men today are caught between upper and nether millstones: "Between government on top, seeking to perpetuate a bunch of wild-eyed spenders and replenish its treasury by constantly increasing raids on the pockets of business men who are expected to meet their own losses when losses come, and the nether millstone of labor minorities."

MRS. L. B. JAMES, A BELLE OF OLD CHICAGO, DIES

Louise Brega Had Many Suitors in Her Youth.

Mrs. Louise Brega James, former president of the Alliance Francais, long active in the English Speaking union, and in her youth considered one of Chicago's most glamorous society girls, died yesterday in St. Luke's hospital. Cause of death was a cerebral hemorrhage.

Mrs. L. B. James.

Mrs. James was 71, the wife of Lt. Col. Ralph H. James, 220 E. Walton pl., a former British cavalry officer, and in Chicago identified with the electrical industry. Their marriage was an international romance.

Had Dozens of Suitors.

Only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Brega, wealthy Chicagoans, Mrs. James traveled to all parts of the world with them, and in the chronicles of an earlier day, they were welcome everywhere because of her beauty and popularity. Dozens of titled suitors, it was said, sought her hand.

However, it was Col. James, then Capt. James of the Royal North Lancashire regiment, who won the hand of the "pretty, gay and tuneful Louise Brega." They had met in 1903 while she was on a world cruise, and he was homeward bound from duty in China.

The then Miss Brega and the then Capt. James were married in Chicago in 1904. Mr. Brega, formerly for years vice president of the board of St. Luke's hospital, apparently did not wholly approve, for, when he died in 1906 he cut off his daughter without a penny, and stipulated in his will that none of his half million dollar fortune should go to the captain.

Lived in London.

The Jameses lived for many years in London, then in the mid-'20s, returned to Chicago. Mrs. James resumed activities in local affairs, particularly in the English Speaking union and the Alliance Francaise. She headed the Alliance in 1938-'39. Only yesterday she was announced as a scheduled hostess at a Nov. 10 luncheon by the union for Carl A. Berendsen, minister from New Zealand.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. James is survived by a son, Charles James of New York, a gown designer, and two daughters, Mrs. Frances Stannus, and Mrs. Margaret Smith, both residing in England.

F.D.R. EXPRESSES GRIEF IN DEATH OF CANTERBURY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27 (AP).—President Roosevelt, in a message of sympathy sent to King George VI. of England after the death yesterday of the Archbishop of Canterbury, said the churchman "exerted a profound influence thruout the world."

The text of the message, released today at the White House:

"I am deeply grieved to learn of the death of the Archbishop of Canterbury. He was rightly considered a good friend of the United States, and his efforts to promote Anglo-American understanding and cooperation were unceasing. As an ardent advocate of international cooperation based on Christian principles he exerted a profound influence thruout the world. The American people join me in extending this expression of sympathy."

CARL M. WERNTZ, ARTS ACADEMY FOUNDER, DIES

Established Chicago Institution in 1902.

Carl M. Werntz, president emeritus of the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, 18 S. Michigan av., and for nearly four decades an influence on art in Chicago, died yesterday in Mexico City. Word of his death was received by Mrs. Ruth Van Sickle Ford, present owner and director of the academy.

Mr. Werntz and his wife had been living in Mexico City for the last two years. Previously and since his retirement 10 years ago, he and Mrs. Werntz had lived in England and in New York. He was 70.

Established in 1902.

Born in Sterling, Ill., Mr. Werntz came to Chicago, an obscure cartoonist, at the turn of the century. He worked on several newspapers, now no longer in existence, then in 1902 founded the academy, specializing in cartooning and commercial art. His training courses covered only two years, a revolutionary project in the study of art.

Thru the years, Mr. Werntz expanded the curricula of his school, and attracted many students who later became noted for their work in pen and ink, and oils. Among them were Carey Orr and Frank King of THE TRIBUNE, Billy De Beck, Dick Calkins, E. C. Segar, Walt Disney, Eugene Savage, Helen Hokinson, Dale Nichols, and Carl Ericksson.

A Prodigious Worker.

Mr. Werntz himself was a prodigious worker with easel and pen, and during his two year sojourn in Mexico made 180 sketches. At the height of his career he also was in demand as a speaker, and in 1921 provoked a nation-wide storm when he said that "90 per cent of women are homely."

Mr. Werntz retired in 1934, and in 1937 sold the fine arts academy to Mrs. Ford. He had no children. His body was to be cremated in Mexico.

Lounsbury, all of Oak Park. Interment will be in Forest Hills cemetery, Madison, Wis.

DIETICIANS TOLD MOST VITAMINS ARE WORTHLESS

Only 15 per cent of the vitamins bought by the public do any good. The remaining 85 per cent of the total consumption constitutes "an utter waste," Dr. Edward L. Tuohy, chief of medicine of the Duluth [Minn.] clinic told the concluding session of the American Dietetic association's 27th annual meeting in the Palmer House yesterday.

Synthetic food is not the answer to improving the nutritional status of the American people "despite all the furor over vitamins," Dr. Tuohy contended.

Speaking on "Geriatrics and Hospital Diets," he urged that increased emphasis be placed on a program of better diets for middle aged and aged persons whose life span, he pointed out, is constantly lengthening.

Dr. L. B. Pett of the Canadian government's department of pensions and national health at Ottawa, reported that food production in the dominion "has increased so enormously" that Canada is able to ship more food to the allies than it ever previously exported.

ST. RITA'S PLANS TRIBUTE TO ITS 24 DEAD IN 2 WARS

Judge William V. Daly of Municipal court will preside Sunday, Nov. 5, at memorial services for members of St. Rita's High School Alumni association who have been killed in battle. A mass will be said in the school chapel, 63d st. and Oakley av., at noon, and flag services will be held on the school grounds.

Six alumni died in World War I. and 18 in the present conflict, with six more missing in action. There are 1,304 alumni serving in the army, navy, and marines. Judge Daly, who left college to serve in the army at the outbreak of World War I., is president of the association.

Judge Daly has taught mathematics and the history of the federal Constitution. Now completing his first six year term on the bench, he recently received the highest number of votes of any of the 24 candidates for the court in a poll of members of the Chicago Bar association.

Barbara Bennett to Become Bride of Navy Officer Today

BY JUDITH CASS.

MISS BARBARA BENNETT and Lt. Thomas B. Satterwhite of the naval reserve have been so fortunate in obtaining a number of young friends to attend them at their marriage today in St. Chrysostom's church that the wedding party approaches pre-war days in its size. The bride's four sisters will be among her attendants, Miss Betty as maid of honor, and the Misses Ruth Ann and Janet and Joan, who are twins, as bridesmaids with Mrs. Frederick Keith [Sidney Meeker] of Philadelphia. Mrs. Kendall K. Fish of Pelham Manor, N. Y., will be matron of honor.

The bridegroom and his best man, Lt. William Blum Jr. of Washington, D. C., and the ushers arrived yesterday in time for a luncheon which the Richard Gambrills gave in the Pump room, and the bridal dinner, which the bride's godparents, the Frank Millers, gave last night in the Racquet club. The ushers are Clement M. Biddle of Chicago, Lt. Comdr. Marvin J. Coles of New York, William B. Gess of Lexington, Ky., Lt. Comdr. Francis C. Nash of Washington, Lt. Leonard T. Nicholson III. of Rockville, Md., Howard S. Turner of Philadelphia, and Lt. Col. Derek W. Pritchard of London, who is stationed in Washington and who has visited in Chicago before.

James E. Bennett will give his eldest daughter in marriage. His sisters, Miss Dora M. Bennett of Pasadena, Cal., has arrived to head the receiving line at the reception in the Bennett home which will follow the 4:30 o'clock ceremony. Lt. Satterwhite's mother, the senior Mrs. Satterwhite, and a number of his close relatives have come from Lexington for the ceremony. Lt. Satterwhite and his bride will live in Washington.

Other Wedding News.

Before a small family circle gathered in the Foster Hannafords' home in Winnetka, their daughter, Priscilla, and Lt. Frederick Greeley of the army air forces will be married early this afternoon, with a larger reception following from 4:30 to 6:30. The Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard will perform the ceremony. Miss Hannaford will have her younger sister, Charlotte, as maid of honor, and Mrs. Thomas Nathan of New Orleans, La., will serve as matron of honor, altho she will not march in the wedding procession. Lt. John Washburne, just returned from overseas with the army air forces, is to be best man, and Hugh Washburne and Lt. Foster Hannaford Jr., who recently was honorably discharged from the army air forces, will usher.

Present at the wedding will be Lt. Greeley's parents, the Samuel A. Greeleys, and his sisters, Mrs. Nicholas Blatchford, here from New York, and Miss Dixie Greeley, and the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Jule M. Hannaford, and their daughter, Gertrude, who have come from St. Paul, Minn. Miss Hannaford's tulle veil, trimmed with rosepointe lace which belonged to her great-grandmother, was worn by her sister, Mrs. Albert G. Churchill [Tayloe Hannaford], when she was married several years ago. The Churchills were not able to come from California for the wedding, nor could the bride's other brother, R. Ogden Hannaford, leave his work there. Lt. Greeley's brother, Lt. [j. g.] Samuel Sewall Greeley, is on active duty with the navy. After a brief wedding trip, Lt. Greeley and his bride will return to Winnetka for a few days before he reports for reassignment Nov. 12.

Week-End Events.

More than 700 reservations have been made for the "Ace-Hi" benefit dinner-dance the Chicago committee of the Arden Shore association is giving at 8 o'clock tonight in the Drake hotel. Among the many cocktail parties planned before the benefit are one the Raymond Horns and the Roy Sorensons are giving at the Tavern club and one the Homer Langes are giving in Oak Park for their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph K. Bywaters of Dallas, Tex.

One of the largest "young" parties is being given by the William Palmer Winslows for their debutante daughter, Barbara.

Pumpkins and cornstalks will be the theme of most of the parties planned for this week-end, as Halloween is Tuesday. The Knollwood club is having its harvest home dinner-dance tonight, with guests invited to come in costume if they wish. The Hinsdale Golf club is calling its party tonight a "Witches and Goblins" dinner-dance. A farm style dinner will be served at 6:45 o'clock tonight in the Lake Shore club's annual harvest home party.

The South Shore Country club is having its annual Halloween party tonight. Frederick Herendeen has been reelected president of the club, with Herbert I. Markham, Wilson W. Lampert, and Leroy F. Pape as other officers.

The Evanston Junior auxiliary of the Cradle society has had to cancel

Parisian Styles Women's Suits in Men's Lines

BY ANNE BRUYERE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 27.—Creed opened his 1944-'45 winter fashion show with flawless man tailored suits. Most of his costumes for women are based on the same pure classic lines that he created for men.

This season jackets for men are long, wide at the shoulders, and fitted at the waist. Trousers are narrower than usual. For sports wear there are tweed action back suits with six pocket waistcoats to match. His models for women are identical with those for men, except skirts. Straighter and longer than last year's, they are trimmed with single kick plaits.

For riding Creed shows suits with contrasting color. Striped waistcoats go with brown woolen jackets. Gray trousers are worn with black coats. Breeches are full in the seat and tight in the legs. One black costume for women is trimmed with a tiny white velvet collar. Blouses to wear with these suits are tailored and in sheer wool, pongee silk, or satin.

Special jewelry created by Van Cleef & Arpels and by Mellerio, Dits & Meller relieve the severity of Creed's fashions for women.

Small flowers of diamonds and emeralds are set in gold to form a large square ring for the little finger, matching a pair of earrings and a huge lapel pin. These ornaments were designed by Van Cleef & Arpels.

Mellerio, Dits & Meller has created large, leaf shaped gold jewelry studded with rubies. Clips are worn at the neck, and there are earrings and wide bracelets to match.

A sparkling, heart shaped clip of gold trimmed with sheaves of diamonds and rubies is Mauboussin's favorite jewel to wear on flawlessly tailored suits or magnificent furs. He has designed several large multicolored clips of sapphires and rubies on platinum, or diamonds and emeralds on white gold, to go with luxurious sable coats shown by Revillon.

Revillon also presents a floor length mink coat belted with a three inch wide sash adorned with precious stones. A belt of large gold chains encircles the waist of an astrakhan coat with balloon shaped sleeves and a circular skirt.

Crippled Children's Aids Told Plans for New Summer Camp

Details of a new summer camp for crippled children at Oconomowoc, Wis., were outlined yesterday by Mrs. Barthold J. Strauss, president of the Outing Association for Crippled Children, at a meeting of more than 100 officials and interested workers in schools and organizations for the crippled at the Standard club.

The Outing association, founded in 1900 by Mrs. Emma S. Haskell, has maintained a camp at Brown's lake, Burlington, Wis., for 30 years, but the camp recently became inadequate for rising needs, Mrs. Strauss said. She reported a new 38 acre site has been acquired at Oconomowoc. It is wooded, with a quarter mile of lake frontage, and includes garden land, an orchard, tennis court, main house, guest house, and garage. A new lodge will be built.

Building plans call for an expenditure of $60,000, Mrs. Strauss said, and donations will be welcome. Other speakers were Dr. Stanley Gibson, medical director of Children's Memorial hospital; Miss Celestine Igoe, principal of Spalding school; Mrs. Olive Bruner, principal of Jahn school; Edgar Stephens, executive secretary of the Illinois Association for the Crippled; Mrs. Howard Emig, president of Peacock camp, and Mrs. Babette Jennings of Children's Memorial hospital.

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"Will you reprint the recipe for catsup made with tomato soup? It's really very good—and what a point saver!"

Here's the recipe for this emergency type of tomato catsup:

Combine 1 can condensed tomato soup, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon white pepper, ¼ teaspoon cloves, ⅛ teaspoon allspice, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, and 6 tablespoons cider vinegar. Simmer these ingredients together in a covered saucepan for half an hour. Cool thoroly and use.

"How can nuts which have lost their crispness be freshened? Also, what is meant by blanching nuts?"

Nuts which have become soft thru absorbing moisture may be restored to their original crispness by drying in a moderate oven, 350 degrees. The nuts must be watched and stirred to prevent browning. In blanching most nuts, cover with boiling water and allow to stand 5 to 10 minutes until skins are loosened. Drain, cover with cold water, and remove skins. Dry on absorbent paper before using.

"Is the hard Kieffer type pear canned like the Bartlett?"

Before being canned the Kieffer pear should be well ripened [turned yellow or russet], but even in this state it will not be a soft pear. For this reason it must be cooked in boiling water until nearly tender before being cooked in a sugar sirup. After boiling the fruit, the sugar sirup is made from the pear cooking water in order to retain flavor.

"What is fillet of sole? I have often heard that this term is a misnomer."

The genuine sole is a European flatfish. For years much of the "sole" eaten in this country actually has been a domestic flatfish or flounder which resembles the sole in flavor and appearance.

They're Here; Nightshirts —for Women

BY REA SEEGER.

Cotton flannel nightshirts, quite frankly filched from and fashioned after the masculine styles, are causing quite a little merriment in the showings of cold weather underlayers. But after the first chuckles subside practical shoppers buy them gratefully and, what's more, will wear them in blissful comfort come the first cold wave.

They're tailored and fitted with an undeniable masculine simplicity, the sleeves are easy to slide into, collar lines neat and rounded, and there isn't a single smidge of feminine embroidery or any doodads on two of the models. The third goes feminine with narrow frills of the cotton flannel edged with color. Otherwise it is as simply streamlined as the tailored nightshirts of men.

The one gesture to women is the color, delicate pastel blue and pink, and the crisp little blue and white check bar pattern. The pink shade is exceptionally effective, with the collar and panel for buttons edged with a narrow line of white. The checked affairs have a collarless neckline with the band of deep blue. You really have to see these nightshirts to fully appreciate the results of combining fragile feminine colors with a sternly tailored masculine swank.

If the nightshirts leave you unimpressed and you still crave something soft and warm for cold weather, see the showing of flannelette nightgowns, truly feminine, and cut and fitted like an evening gown. The sleeves are long and cuffed, skirts ample in length and width, and the tops are trimmed with cotton fringe braid, cotton lace or embroidery, and contrasting white or pastel tinted yokes. There is a tie sash belt to keep them neat around the waistline. Prints as well as pastel colors are plentiful.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

So Goes Monday.

A company employing a number of white collar girls is putting out a brochure, "So Goes Monday So Goes All the Week," urging employes not to come back to their desks fatigued on Monday morning. These suggestions are made:

1. Try to plan your week-ends to include rest and recreation in healthful proportions.
2. Allow yourself at least one to two hours extra sleep at night.
3. Get out of doors.
4. Read something enjoyable, unrelated to your work.
5. Seek companionship among congenial people.
6. Eat your meals in as quiet and leisurely manner as you can. Don't nibble instead of eating substantial food. Drink milk.
7. Don't try to do a week's housework in one day.
8. Don't devote the hours away from the office to worry and anxiety, especially if you are alone.
9. Find amusement and relaxation away from crowds if possible.
10. Don't hurry, rush, and dash for appointments.

Our Funny Language.

Our funny language—a man feels put out when he discovers he has been taken in!

JOSEPHINE GRIFFIN.

Moreau de Mae.

Poor young Mae; she was sweet
But she couldn't compete
With the girl down the street
With neat pylons.
Tho she painted her face
Mae couldn't keep pace
With her rival, named Grace.
Who wore nylons.

Mae said, "I can't buy 'em—
I can't even try 'em
For size; what a mess I am
In."
Then she said, "There must be
Other methods for me
To win men. We shall see.
I shall win."

So she entered the WACs.
Now the soldiers make tracks
To her desk for she lacks
Not in poise;
They ALL give her a play
And she's happy, young Mae.
[She distributes the pay
To the boys.]

RICK MORAN.

Dis and Data.

There are now two old-age counseling centers, one in New York, the other in Los Angeles, patterned after the center founded in San Francisco in 1921 by Dr. Lillian J. Martin. It was her belief that "our second half century, like our first, should be both happy and useful." . . . Was that a donkey loose in Grant park the other afternoon attracting the crowd—or were we dreaming? . . . A reader says this sentence can be punctuated by some bright WCG: "Jane where Mary had had had had had had had had had had had the boss' approval"—but how? . . . Lucile forwards the prayer: "O, Lord, give me patience to endure the things I cannot change; give me the courage to change the things I ought to change, and, above all, give me the wisdom to know the difference." . . . As winter approaches and a cold sandwich at a desk is less adequate, more and more white collar girls are hoping the housewives will come out of the kitchen and help in the present restaurant help shortage.

Vaudeville Has Its Day Again—in Lively Movie

"THE MERRY MONAHANS."

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

With characteristic myopic nostalgia, Hollywood takes up the subject of ye old time vaudeville in "The Four Monahans" and paints it as glamorous, romantic, and exciting, tho to the best of our memory it was pretty much a shabby business. But it's just as well we don't all remember alike, for then we wouldn't have had "The Four Monahans," which, in its way, is rather nice.

It's nice because there's a minimum of hokum, where you might expect it to be spread on with a shovel, and because it has a part for Jack Oakie that fits him better than his pants, a couple of kids—Donald O'Connor and Peggy Ryan—who are natural and unaffected besides being good hoofers, and Ann Blyth—who once played a straight part here in "Watch on the Rhine"—a charming youngster with a voice like a robin in spring.

"The Four Monahans" is really a misnomer, because they start out as two, proliferate into four, drop back to three for most of the time, and end up as five. How come? Well, Jack, a trouper from way back, is tricked into marrying the wrong girl, tho he really loved Rosemary De Camp. He makes the best of it and the act goes on, and pretty soon there are two more Monahans—that would be Donald and Peggy. But the mother tires of cheap clothes, cheap hotels, and cheap theaters and goes off with a gent who has a better act. So Jack and Donald and Peggy form a stout threesome and do right well singing and dancing up and down the circuit—the while yards and yards of montage portray the passage of the years.

Then one day, en route to Philadelphia for their first appearance in big time, Donald meets Ann, whose mother is Rosemary De Camp, the same Father Jack once loved and lost. Ann is traveling with a time worn matinee idol [John Miljan] whose act is kept alive only by her ministrations. Jack and Rosemary strike it up as before, but before Jack can pop the question again the old Hamlet beats him to it and Jack is crushed. He seeks solace in the bottle, and while he is in the cooler cooling off after some alcoholic overexuberance, the kids go on to a big success. But when they loyally insist on Jack's rejoining the act, the management says no—Jack's thru.

It all unravels in a big Liberty Loan rally in which every one takes part—including, it would seem, all the available boys and girls in Hollywood. But it's slick and eye-filling, and better than most.

What we don't understand is how they ever resisted technicolor.

Mrs. Robert K. Stafford's marriage to Maj. Stuart Prosser will take place Wednesday in the New York apartment of her mother, Mrs. George D. Terry. Maj. Prosser, son of Mrs. William Adams Prosser and the late Mr. Prosser of Highland Park, and his bride will live in the Churchill. He recently returned to inactive duty from the army air forces.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

WAVE Jane Halleck of Chicago, in training at the Great Lakes Naval Training center to become an anti-aircraft gunnery instructor, was a commercial artist before enlisting. She also studied drafting at Illinois Institute of Technology and was one of the first members of WEEDS [Women's Emergency Engineering Drafting society]. Much of her volunteer time was devoted to sketching men in uniform at the officers' club in the Knickerbocker hotel.

The club will mark its second year of service to commissioned men and women in United States forces and those of allied nations with a formal party in the hotel's grand ballroom tonight.

Since the club was organized, it has provided showers, found hotel rooms and apartments for 200,000 visiting officers, arranged weddings, and made many other friendly gestures to men and women in uniform. The club now is a place of reunion for returning veterans and their wives, for whom the staff finds nursemaids to care for babies so that couples may go sightseeing.

Fifty-five women, comprising the first class to complete the army signal corps' six month inspection training program at Illinois Institute of Technology, will be graduated at 10:30 a. m. today on the west campus, 1951 Madison st.

The graduates all formerly held inspection jobs in war plants and undertook the additional training in order to qualify for more technical work or for supervisory inspection positions. The signal corps subsidized their training and will place them in industrial jobs.

Most of the women are in their 20s, but one is a grandmother. They were selected on the basis of ability before being enrolled in the course, in which they studied radio and electricity 48 hours a week.

The class will attend a formal dinner Wednesday night at which Illinois Tech faculty members and their wives will be present.

At a tea from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m. today in the Schweppe memorial building of the St. Luke's hospital school of nursing, A. Watson Armour, president of the board of trustees, will present 135 award pins, each representing 100 or more hours of volunteer service to the hospital, to Red Cross nurses' aids, Gray Ladies [hospital and recreation corps], dietitians' aids, and members of the women's auxiliary of the hospital.

More than 425 invitations have been issued to all St. Luke's volunteers, headed by volunteer supervisor Dorothy Starr, to attend the tea and presentation.

The business women's group of the American Camp and Hospital service, 540 Briar pl., will have a Halloween party for service men at 8 o'clock tonight at headquarters. Games, prizes, dancing, and refreshments will be on the program. Miss Bess C. Myers heads the business women's unit.

'Trovatore' Has Its Strength and Its Weaknesses

"IL TROVATORE."

Opera by Giuseppe Verdi, book by Salvatore Cammarano from the Spanish drama by Antonio Calderon. Presented by the Chicago Opera company, in association with the board of education, at the Civic Opera house Friday evening, Oct. 27, 1944.

THE CAST.

Leonora.....Zinka Milanov
Azucena.....Kerstin Thorborg
Manrico.....Kurt Baum
Count of Luna.....Richard Bonelli
Ferrando.....Virgilio Lazzari
Conductor.....Giuseppe Bamboschek

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Add to the heap of defunct legends the belief that no one who goes to hear "Il Trovatore" can make head or tail of its blood and thunder story. Last night when the Board of Education series packed the Civic Opera house the arrival of Manrico to rescue Leonora from the dastardly Luna was greeted with a spattering of the acclaim lavished on commandos in the newsreels. Fortunately, tho, the Verdian tale took place before the day of the stab in the back, for Manrico is a reckless fellow even for a tenor. He strides in without bodyguard and stands scornfully with his back to 20 or 30 drawn swords, concentrating on the soprano.

Last night's was a performance difficult to classify without seeming ungrateful for undeniable improvements. It was smooth, generally competent, sometimes beautifully sung, altogether a long way from some of the dismally dull performances of the last few seasons. But it was a long way, too, from the flaming brilliance that can set the score blazing with beauty. It badly needed a better conductor than Mr. Bamboschek, who at his best was no more than facile, and at his worst seemed to be trying to make a train just pulling out of the operatic station. He took the trio in the third act at such a clip Bonelli's eyebrows rose a justifiable inch in amazement.

But there were far better things to think about. Zinka Milanov's Leonora, for instance, by far the best she has sung in Chicago, almost as vivid a stride in development as her Aida. A beautiful woman with one of the loveliest smiles in the theater, her voice is rich almost to the point of the sumptuous, and superbly handled. She sent "Tacea la notte" floating over the big house in the grand style, and she soared over the full orchestra with a skill that suggested the effortless.

Kerstin Thorborg, singing her first Azucena here, achieved another sound success. Her native dignity refuses to let the gypsy grovel, and her sense of vocal style comes to the rescue when the music threatens to outdistance her range. It gives her contralto an edge less metallic than biting, and it counts in the climax.

Mr. Baum was in good voice, and he sang the offstage serenade admirably. Not a clarion tenor, his Manrico is happiest in the more lyric passages, where it takes on a lambent tinge genuinely beautiful. If you heard Richard Bonelli's Luna 20 years ago when it was matchless, you heard quite a lot of that beauty again last night. The superb arch of the high lyric baritone has sagged a little, but the style is there, and much of his famous "Il Balen" was still brilliant Bonelli. Mr. Lazzari, apparently, is eternal. I can't tell a nickel's worth of difference between his masterly Ferrando now and when it was one of the resident opera's standbys.

The chorus sang its Verdi like veterans who like their jobs, and the best of the "Trovatore" settings looked as handsome as ever.

INSTALMENT XXXVI.

AN ABSENCE.

Lamb sat forward in his chair, his jaw hard under heavy muscle and firm flesh.

"You should have said all this before. Holding your tongue like this, you've thrown suspicion on others. When did you see Ezra Pincott last?"

"Last night—in the Bull."

"Did you leave together?"

"No."

"What time did you leave?"

"Seven minutes to 10."

"What did you do?"

"I went my round."

"Did you go into the church?"

"Yes."

"Sure you didn't take Ezra in with you?"

For the first time Bush looked disturbed. He said:

"What would I do that for?"

"You know he had been boasting that he knew something about Mr. Harsch's death, and that it would put money in his pocket?"

"Any one could know that. He was there in the Bull, saying it for all to hear."

"You keep brandy in your house?"

Bush moved in his chair. A slight frown creased his forehead.

"There's nothing wrong about that. Mrs. Bush's aunt, she takes it for her spasms."

"So I've been told. Did you give Ezra some of it last night?"

The frown straightened out.

"Ezra never needed for no one to offer him drink. What makes you think I'd give him my good brandy?"

"Some one gave him brandy, and some one knocked him out and put him in the water to drown."

Bush stared.

"You don't say! Whatever for?"

Lamb gave him back look for look.

"To stop him opening his mouth about who killed Mr. Harsch."

Bush dropped his cap on the floor. It seemed as if it just slipped from his hand and fell. He stooped to pick it up.

"Whoever 'ud do a thing like that?" he said.

"They would never forgive me if I did not take a visitor to call," said Miss Sophy. "I have known them all my life, and Mary Anne is such a sad invalid."

Miss Silver smiled, and spoke the simple truth.

"I shall be delighted to call on the Miss Doncasters."

"Then I will just finish the letter I was writing to my cousin, Sophy Ferrars. It will not take me long, and it will give them time to finish their tea."

The afternoon was mild and fair. Miss Silver put on her hat, her gloves, and a light summer coat, and strolled in the garden, where the trees made a shady pattern across Miss Sophy's lawn. She walked up and down upon the grass and considered the unsatisfactory details of the Harsch case.

From somewhere on her left a voice of peculiar shrillness spoke her name. No one who had heard that voice could possibly mistake it. She had made it her business to encounter Cyril Bond that morning. She turned now to see him astride the wall between the rectory and Meadowcroft, one hand holding an overhanging branch, the other flourishing a stick in a manner which suggested that he regarded it as a spear.

"What is it, Cyril?"

"D'you reckon you know what 'Spricken see Dutch?' means?"

"You are not pronouncing it correctly. It should be, 'Sprechen sie Deutsch?' It means, 'Do you speak German?'"

"I arst Mr. Everton, and he said he didn't know any German. There's a boy at our school, his father's a refugee. He knows a lot of German—he can talk it ever so fast."

Miss Silver smiled.

"You are a great climber, are you not? I hope you are quite safe upon that wall. Which was the window you climbed out of?"

"That one there"—he pointed with the spear—"over the library. That's how I got down. I won't have to get in a row if Mr. Everton knows."

"Were you not afraid that Mr. Everton would hear you?"

"Naow," he said. "I don't do it except when he's out."

"And he was out on Tuesday night?"

"Acourse he was! Up at Mrs. Mottram's fixing something for her. She can't do nothing by herself."

"How do you know he was there?"

"'Cos I heard him say so. Called right out in the hall he did. 'I'm just going up to Mrs. Mottram's,' he says, 'to fix her wireless set.'"

"When did he come back?"

"I dunno—I went to sleep. Oh, boy! When I think I might have heard the shot!"

"How do you know Mr. Everton was not in when you got back?"

Cyril dropped his voice.

"The black-out isn't all that good in the study. There's always places you can see if there's a light on."

"Perhaps he'd gone up to his room."

"Naow! He sits up ever so late, Mr. Everton does."

"You couldn't be sure," said Miss Silver mildly but firmly.

"Well then, I could!" He made a sudden cast with his spear into the garden of Meadowcroft and slid down after it.

As she walked with Miss Fell past the intervening two houses to Pennycott Miss Silver had not a great deal to say. Miss Sophy found her a delightful listener. Scarcely drawing breath, she managed to impart a good deal of information about the Miss Doncasters in the short time at her disposal. It went back to their school days, and contained some particulars which interested Miss Silver very much.

"But of course it all rather faded during the war—the last war—and for some years afterwards. And we all hoped there wouldn't be any more of it."

"And was there?" said Miss Silver in a most attentive voice.

"O, yes." She leaned towards Miss Silver and whispered. "And when it came to such an inordinate enthusiasm for a house painter—"

It was some minutes before they resumed their interrupted progress towards Pennycott.

They were admitted by an elderly maid and taken upstairs into what had been the best bedroom, now converted into the drawing room for the convenience of Miss Mary Anne, who slept in the room behind and could be easily wheeled to and fro. She was there when they came in, propped up by cushions in an invalid chair with rubber tires.

Miss Sophy made the introductions.

"My friend Miss Silver. Miss Doncaster—Miss Mary Anne."

F. D. R. IGNORES CHICAGO IN U. S. AIR DELEGATION

LaGuardia Among 10 Men Assigned to Parley.

The Chicago area was ignored in the selection of the 10 man delegation to the international civil aviation conference, announced by the state department in Washington, D. C., yesterday, despite the fact that Chicago is host to the conference and the hub of American and world air travel. The conference opens at the Stevens hotel next Wednesday with more than 700 representatives of 56 nations attending to help draft post-war international air policy.

The American delegation to the conference is headed by Assistant Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle Jr., 49, of Boston, who is said to have gotten on well with the British in London air talks last spring.

Mayor La Guardia Named.

Another member is Mayor F. H. La Guardia, 62, of New York, who in a senate committee hearing two years ago was accused of ordering the Alaska highway built where it would be of the greatest service to Canadian air and rail monopolies and where it would be virtually useless to American business interests. He has worked to improve New York's airports and directed the port authority of New York.

Other members are L. Welch Pogue, 45, of Grant, Ia., chairman of the civil aeronautics board; Edward Warner, 50, of Washington, D. C., CAB vice chairman; William A. M. Burden of New York assistant secretary of commerce for air; Rear Adm. Richard E. Byrd, 56, of Boston; Sen. Bailey, 71 [D., N. C.], chairman of the senate commerce committee; Sen. Brewster, 56 [R., Me.], a member of the commerce committee; Rep. Bulwinkle, 61 [D., N. C.], and Rep. Wolverton, 64 [R., N. J.].

Staff of 20 to Aid Delegates.

The delegates, designated by President Roosevelt to represent this country at what has been described as the aviation branch of the peace conference, will have a staff of four consultants, seven advisors, and nine technical experts.

Air transport leaders, including officials of 17 major air lines, some of which have headquarters in Chicago, look to the delegation to protect the right of American planes to carry passenger and freight cargoes anywhere in the world. The delegates will have the task of protecting America's system of open competition and free enterprise against air monopoly and global regulation schemes of foreign nations. British proposals for an arbitrary international authority to regulate post-war traffic are expected to meet opposition from the Americans.

Airline Chiefs Advisers.

Appointed as consultants were Artemus L. Gates and Robert A. Lovett, both of New York, assistant secretaries for air of the navy and the war department, respectively; Maj. Gen. C. R. Smith of the air transport command, and Dr. J. C. Hunsaker of Boston, chairman of the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

The advisors will be John C. Cooper, vice president of Pan-American airways; Ralph Damon, vice president of American airlines; Carleton Putnam, president of Chicago and Southern airlines; Col. H. R. Harris, chief of staff of the air transport command; Frank Russell, manager of the national aircraft production council; Stephen Latchford, advisor on air law in the aviation division of the state department, and Commander Paul Richter of the navy.

BRITISH PICK DELEGATES.

LONDON, Oct. 27 [Reuters].—Membership of the British delegation to the international aviation conference in Chicago was announced by the air ministry tonight. The delegation will be headed by Viscount Swinton, minister for civil aviation. Other delegates are Sir Arthur Street, permanent undersecretary of state for air; W. P. Hildren, director general of civil aviation; J. H. Magowan, commercial counselor of the British embassy in Washington; Sir George London of Newfoundland; W. C. G. Cribbett, assistant undersecretary of state for civil aviation; G. G. Fitzmaurice of the foreign office, and the Hon. A. J. Walsh of Newfoundland.

The British technical and advisory staff at the parley will include Air Chief Marshal Sir Frederick Bowhill, chief of the royal air force transport command; Viscount Knollys, chairman of the British Overseas Airways corporation; Air Commodore R. B. Jordan, director of air transport policy and organization in the air ministry; Air Commodore H. G. Brackley, deputy senior air staff officer in the R. A. F. transport command, and Maj. J. R. MacRindle, deputy director general of the British Overseas Airways corporation.

Other staff members are Wing Comdr. J. Davison of southern Rhodesia, Squadron Leader H. A. L. Pattison of Newfoundland, P. Gore-Booth, first secretary of the British embassy in Washington; G. K. Boyd-Shannon of the dominions office, W. J. Bigg of the colonial office, B. F. St. J. Trend of the treasury, N. J. A. Cheetham of the foreign office, L. J. Dunnett of the air ministry, Charles Campbell, press officer, and R. D. Poland and F. A. Butters, private secretaries to Lord Swinton.

Coroner to Discuss Jury Probe on Infant Deaths

Coroner Garfield R. Leaf of Lake county said yesterday that he will confer with State's Atty. Harry Hall in Waukegan on the question of a grand jury investigation into the deaths of two babies Sept. 27 in the Highland Park hospital. The infants were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Marion C. Jahn, 1401 Marion av., Highland Park, and Dr. and Mrs. Welton E. Richburg, 850 Glencoe rd., Glencoe. A pathological report to the coroner stated that enough boric acid was found in the infants' internal organs to cause death.

Evanstonian Takes Bride in East Today

Mr. and Mrs. Leigh Bowles are in Great Neck, N. J., today for the marriage of Miss Nan Harris Latimer to Mrs. Bowles' son, Ronald Woodbury, which will take place at 5 p. m. in St. Paul's Episcopal church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund C. Latimer of Great Neck. Mr. Woodbury will have his stepfather as best man, and among the ushers will be Dr. J. Elmer Shea of Westmount, Quebec, a cousin of the bridegroom.

The bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Preston E. James [Eileen Woodbury] of Chevy Chase, Md., will be among the wedding guests, but Lt. Col. James has left for England and so will not be able to usher as originally planned. Mr. Woodbury, who was educated at Northwestern university, recently was honorably discharged from the army air forces after a year and a half of active service overseas. As radio operator in a bomber squadron, he participated in three major engagements in North Africa and Italy. After a wedding trip to Florida, he and his bride will live in Evanston.

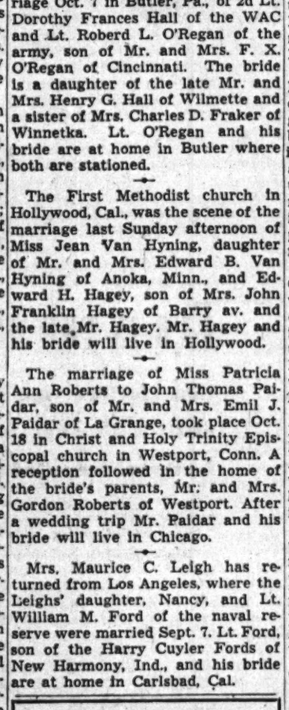
Announcement is made of the marriage Oct. 7 in Butler, Pa., of 2d Lt. Dorothy Frances Hall of the WAC and Lt. Roberd L. O'Regan of the army, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. X. O'Regan of Cincinnati. The bride is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Hall of Wilmette and a sister of Mrs. Charles D. Fraker of Winnetka. Lt. O'Regan and his bride are at home in Butler where both are stationed.

The First Methodist church in Hollywood, Cal., was the scene of the marriage last Sunday afternoon of Miss Jean Van Hyning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Van Hyning of Anoka, Minn., and Edward H. Hagey, son of Mrs. John Franklin Hagey of Barry av. and the late Mr. Hagey. Mr. Hagey and his bride will live in Hollywood.

The marriage of Miss Patricia Ann Roberts to John Thomas Paidar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil J. Paidar of La Grange, took place Oct. 18 in Christ and Holy Trinity Episcopal church in Westport, Conn. A reception followed in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Roberts of Westport. After a wedding trip Mr. Paidar and his bride will live in Chicago.

Mrs. Maurice C. Leigh has returned from Los Angeles, where the Leighs' daughter, Nancy, and Lt. William M. Ford of the naval reserve were married Sept. 7. Lt. Ford, son of the Harry Cuyler Fords of New Harmony, Ind., and his bride are at home in Carlsbad, Cal.

Dutch Bonnet



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

A beguiling little Dutch bonnet for the young girl is quick and inexpensive to create, since only 2 ounces of knitting worsted are required. It is trimmed at the back with a tailored velvet bow.

For instructions in crocheting Dutch bonnet, No. 961, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th av., New York 1, N. Y.

its series of three benefit lectures, scheduled to start tomorrow afternoon, because the speaker, Dr. Horace J. Bridges, is ill. Dr. Bridges is leader of the Chicago Ethical society.

Here and There.

Mrs. Ernest R. Graham was hostess yesterday at a luncheon in the Pump room in honor of Mrs. Frank O. Butler, who will leave next week for her home in Palm Beach, Fla., to spend the winter.

A group of prints by Jean Francois Millet, the most complete collection in existence, has been given to the Chicago Art institute by Mrs. Marshall Ludington Brown in memory of Cyrus Hall McCormick and will go on view to the public today. The collection is supplemented by a group of Millet's drawings lent by Mrs. John Alden Carpenter and two of his paintings from the institute's collection.

Mr. and Mrs. John Anthony Cassin [Georgia Bader] of Kenilworth announce the birth of a daughter, their third child, Oct. 19, in Passavant hospital. The baby is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Cassin of Kenilworth and of George T. Bader of Detroit.

Mrs. William H. Lyman Jr. and Miss Julia Hursen will entertain at luncheon today at the Woman's Athletic club for the young women who are to assist at the Misericordia hospital's benefit breakfast Nov. 5 in the Stevens hotel.

Miss Marifran La Vezzorio is entertaining seven Barat college classmates in a box party at the opera tonight. She is a member of the Illinois Opera Guild Juniors, and her mother, Mrs. Nicholas J. La Vezzorio of Evanston is active in the Illinois Opera guild.

'Peter and Pumpkin' on W-G-N to Salute Girl Scouts Tonight

Heralding the opening of Girl Scout week, the Chicago Theater of the Air will present an original Halloween fantasy, "Peter and the Pumpkin," over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 o'clock tonight.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak during the broadcast.

Colleen Moore, former movie star and radio favorite, will be a guest on the program.

The fantasy, written and produced by Jack La Frandre, relates the amusing albeit frightful dream of a scientist who falls asleep on All Saints' eve. John Barclay will take the part of the scientist and Hope Summers that of the witch, with Ray Suber providing support.

The W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus, directed by Henry Weber, will provide the musical accompaniment. Bruce Foote and the chorus will sing "Brown October Ale,"; Virginia Haskins, and the chorus, "Kiss in the Dark."

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 27.—Veronica Lake will probably marry Director Andre De Toth Dec. 3. Her divorce is final on the second. She's being so good [at least she was yesterday] Paramount is polishing up two stories for her—"Victoria Grandolet" and an original which John Houseman will produce. In the meantime she and Alan Ladd do a hot routine at "Duffy's Tavern." . . . Laurence Olivier is out of the navy and directing pictures in England. . . . David Niven is afraid we're forgetting him over here. No danger. . . . Ben Goetz and Alex Korda have two new discoveries for M-G-M. They'll soon be landing on our shores. One is Pat Kirkwood, a young Betty Grable, and the other is Deborah Carr, co-starring in "Perfect Strangers" with Robert Donat. But Ben says, "I want no publicity. I'm working for Schenck, Mayer, and Mannix." . . . Strange situation in the Jon Hall-Tommy Dorsey fight case. It comes up Nov. 14, but no subpenas have been issued to any of the participants, three of whom are already out of town. What do you bet the rest won't be here Nov. 14 either? I don't know where this will leave Jon Hall, who has a serious plastic operation coming up which will cost around $7,000. Only a few nights ago, I'm told, a couple of his pals, trying to get more information, were beaten up, but that's all been very hush-hush. In fact, the whole case is. Why?

No Snow for the Haywards.

Leland Hayward tells me that they won't open their Connecticut house this winter. Soon as Margaret Sullavan finishes "Voice of the Turtle" she comes home to spend Christmas here with their three children. Leland says, "Gosh, it's wonderful being able to breakfast with the kids again." He's off again for New York any second. . . . Nice seeing Lt. Col. Jack Votion, who was here a couple of days. . . . Col. Jock Lawrence was here only 24 hours. Flew back to Washington, taking his wife, Mary, with him. . . . Zasu Pitts, arriving here with "Ramshackle Inn" Nov. 14, will also find lots of movie jobs lined up for her, since Charlie Feldman is taking on her business. . . . Reason Paulette Goddard is selling her house is that there isn't room for Paulette and husband, Burgess Meredith, too. . . . Arthur Hornblow's farewell party for Elsa Maxwell ended in a friendly political rally. Did I say friendly? Anyway, it gave Sam Goldwyn a chance to speak, and did he go to town! I thought he'd bust!

Tish, Tish! Isn't This Something?

I hear David Selznick will not be allowed to look at daily rushes of Jennifer Jones or Joan Fontaine at Paramount. Jennifer is being followed around the lot by that beautiful face, Anita Colby, who attends her fittings, photographic sittings, in fact, she's in attendance. Joan Fontaine is shifting for herself, and from where I sit, her shifting isn't bad, brother! . . . The story of why Warners didn't get "Junior Miss" when they bid $425,000 for it, was this: Metro claimed it was a take-off on their property, "The Youngest Profession," and if Warners made it, they'd bring suit. In the meantime, Twentieth Century put in a bid and got it. But I hear all thoughts of a suit have now been forgotten. . . . Ethel Merman wants to pick her own cast, with her name the only one in lights. Nice pickings, if you can get it. . . . Katharine Hepburn's stand-in came on to the set of "Without Love" the other day, and was asked to wear a coat—which she did. Nature had so blessed her that the crew and cast couldn't keep their minds on their

PAROLE ALLOWS WAR HERO OF '18 3D CHANCE AT 52

Robber-Rapist to Go Free After 11 Years in Cell.

Frank Rusdorf, who won the congressional medal of honor for valor in the Argonne in World War I, and afterward made a mess of his life trying to pay back $95 he had misappropriated, is to have a new chance to redeem himself at the age of 52.

The Illinois division of correction yesterday listed Rusdorf among 135 convicts granted paroles. He is to be freed two days after Thanksgiving after serving 11 years, two months, and seven days of a one year to life sentence for robbery, rape, and arson.

Seized as Burglar-Arsonist.

Rusdorf, a sergeant in the motor corps of the 33d division, was wounded twice, shell shocked, and gassed in France. Back in Chicago, Rusdorf, who was married, got a job as a lawyer's chauffeur.

On Oct. 19, 1921, Rusdorf, then 29, was seized while breaking into a house at 7217 Wabash av., as the burglar sought for several months who ignored money and jewelry in home forays and took mostly silken wearing apparel, then set fires to cover his tracks.

Rusdorf confessed, and said he had set fires because he "loved flames." Psychiatrists agreed he was a pyromaniac. Then it was disclosed Rusdorf became a thief to make restitution of $95 he had taken from the armory of the 1st Infantry regiment, Illinois National Guard, of which he was a member.

Heroism Wins Him Freedom.

Friends cited his war heroism and he was freed. He lived a model life until 1932 when he was seized and identified as a rapist. Twelve other women identified him as a robber.

Paroles were granted two women serving sentences in Dwight. One of them is Mrs. Fannie Piccone Venezi, 50, midwife, in whose office at 228 W. 26th st., a hotel clerk confessed he had performed about 1,500 abortions at $10 to $15 a patient. Mrs. Venezi served two years, nine months and 16 days of her one to 10 year sentence.

The other woman, Anna Bara served an even five years for robbery. Before she was sentenced with her Indian accomplice, another confederate got out of jail on a worthless bond. The revelation led to the indictment of former Municipal Judge Eugene McGarry on charges of conspiracy and malfeasance in office, but that bill was quashed. Anna's confederate is still listed as a fugitive.

Two Bandits Get $2,000 in Holdup of Tavern

Two men carrying revolvers fled with $2,000 last night after holding up Mrs. Gertrude Dukes and several customers in her tavern at 4456 Armitage av.

Husband Cited

MRS. GERTRUDE HOPPER.

Wilbur Hopper, 25, a machinist, was ordered yesterday to appear before Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg next Friday to answer a contempt of court citation on the complaint of his former wife, Gertrude, 22, who said he owes her $280 for the support of their child, Russell, 3. Mrs. Hopper, who lives at 2014 N. Kedzie av., said she has not received the $5 a week Hopper was ordered to pay when they were divorced in August, 1943. She appeared in court with Atty. Samuel Starr.

LABOR BOMBER SEIZED FOR RAID ON RATION BANK

Richard Raymond Burke, ex-convict bomber for labor racketeers, was arrested yesterday by agents of the federal bureau of investigation in the basement of a home at 937 Wilson dr., Kankakee. As the agents hammered on the door, seeking admission, Burke slashed his throat and wrists with a razor. He was taken to a hospital where he is expected to recover.

Richard R. Burke.

Burke had been sought by the FBI since last Aug. 6, when two men were caught in the Halsted Exchange National bank, 1929 S. Halsted st., as they were preparing to carry off ration coupons for 1,625,440 meat points, 1,041,717 gallons of gasoline, and 321,000 pounds of sugar, stolen from the bank's ration accounts with merchants. Burke was the bank watchman.

Duplicate keys to the bank door were found on the pair and the bank watchman was missing. The watchman was Burke, who got the bank job after he was released from prison in 1942. His arrest in Kankakee was announced by Spencer J. Drayton, agent in charge of the Chicago office of the FBI.

DIVORCE JUDGE HOLDS 11 MONTH BIRTH POSSIBLE

After considering conflicting testimony by obstetricians, Judge William J. Lindsay in Superior court yesterday dismissed the divorce suit of Jack Santucci, 24, a merchant sailor, who charged his wife, Evelyn, 18, with adultery on the evidence that a child was born to her 11 months after he went to sea.

More than 50 women attended the hearing, and several mothers volunteered to testify as witnesses in behalf of Mrs. Santucci. One said a child was born to her after a gestation period of 16 months.

Judge Lindsay ruled that the medical testimony "did not completely eliminate the possibility of a 325 day gestation period and the possibility that Santucci could be the father of his wife's baby."

One expert, Dr. Frank Dry of 433 Briar pl., said he had been in attendance at a birth after 308 days. The normal period is 280 days.

Mother Asserts Innocence.

Mrs. Santucci, who lives at 3713 W. 63d pl., said that she is innocent of the charge and that her husband is the father of her baby, now 4 months old, whom she has named Jack Jr.

Obtetricians called as witnesses for each side debated the question of whether a child can be born two months after the end of the normal gestation period. Santucci, a chief freezer in the merchant marine, whose home is at 5914 S. Tripp av., testified that he went to sea July 14, 1943. The baby was born last June.

Judge Lindsay suggested that a jury of 12 women be sworn as an advisory body, but Atty. Max O. Rosenzweig, representing Santucci, objected, and said he wanted six men on the panel. The judge ordered the hearing to proceed without a jury.

Baby Expected in April.

Christian D. Hauch of 6200 S. Troy st., who was Mrs. Santucci's physician, said she had expected the baby to arrive April 21.

The physician, cross-examined by Atty. Norman Becker, representing Mrs. Santucci, said he would be "surprised" if a baby were born 14 or 16 months after conception, but added as an afterthought that "nothing would surprise me in obstetrics."

Dr. Alfred J. Kobak of 5521 Lakewood av., a witness for Santucci, said a birth 325 days after conception "would be impossible." Dr. Kobak is assistant professor of obstetrics in the University of Illinois.

BURGLARS LOOT WAREHOUSE.

Burglars took 20 kegs of nails, 12 rolls of roofing, and two gas engines, all valued at $300, from the warehouse of the Carl E. Erickson Construction company, 6455 Ridge av., yesterday.

GIRL CASHIER ORDERS A DRINK; GETS IT AND A $4,000 HOLDUP, TOO

Miss Esther Broccolo, cashier in a currency exchange at 941 Van Buren st., telephoned an adjoining grocery yesterday and ordered a cold drink. The grocer called to a Negro and asked him to hand a bottle to Miss Broccolo. When she reached thru her cage to take the bottle, the Negro grabbed her wrist and forced her to open a door. Then two confederates, carrying revolvers, entered the cage and scooped up $4,000, and the three fled.

STATE INQUIRY BACKS 6 WOMEN WHO QUIT PLANT

Charges by six women employes that they left their jobs at the Diamond Tool company, 938 E. 41st st., Sept. 26, because of insanitary working conditions in the plant and not because they were prevented from talking to a "handsome mailman" seemed to be borne out yesterday by an announcement from Louis J. Meyers, Illinois state chief factory inspector, that 12 separate infraction of the state health and safety laws have been found to exist in the plant.

After the women had left the plant Sept. 26, Sheldon Booth, owner of the company, accused them of quiting because he had closed the windows in their department to prevent them from "wasting war production hours talking to the handsome mailman who delivered mail to the plant."

Meyers made known his findings yesterday. Booth has been ordered to enclose machinery belts and saws; secure and fasten welding tanks to benches; cover loose wires; provide safety glasses for workers; provide an exhaust system for for bench grinders; install separate dressing rooms and rest rooms for men and women workers; provide fire extinguishers for the plant and exit marking with all exits to remain open at all times during working hours, and remove all salvage material from the shop.

Meyers announced that Booth will be given 45 days in which to comply with the state law. His failure to comply will cause his department to submit the case to the United States's district attorney for action, Meyers said.

REPORTS RATION BOOK LOSS.

Mrs. Carrie L. Brooks, 17071 Bulger av., Hazelcrest, reported the loss of her ration books in the loop yesterday.

HUNT SUBURBAN FIRE BUG AFTER $50,000 BLAZE

Three fires in South Holland, one of which caused $50,000 damage, were investigated yesterday on the suspicion they had been started by a firebug.

Most extensive damage was at the Wausau Coal and Lumber company, 158th st. and Wausau av. Fire broke out there at 3:30 a. m. Wednesday and caused $50,000 damage to stocks of lumber and coal before it was extinguished at 6:30 p. m. that afternoon. The other two fires were started several hours earlier in farm barns within 1½ miles of the lumber company. The first was discovered at 11:30 p. m. Tuesday in the barn of William Vroegh, a truck farmer on 155th st. near Cottage Grove av.

The third fire, apparently started the same night, was in the barn on the farm of Harry Van Deraa, 157th st. and Evans av. Chief Van Deraa said he was unable to determine the cause of any of the fires and notified Robert J. Daly, deputy state fire marshal in charge of the Chicago area office, who sent deputies to investigate.

ILLINOIS FACES NOTRE DAME BEFORE 60,000

RAY ROBINSON STOPS WOODS IN NINTH ROUND

10,622 See Battle; Gate $41,246.

Fight Decisions

LAST NIGHT.

At Chicago Stadium—Ray Robinson stopped Sgt. Lou Woods [9]; Robert Earl and Charley Parham drew [8]; Elmer Ray knocked out Bill Petersen [2]; George Costner knocked out Phil Williams [2]; Dan Robinson beat Jerry Pittre [6].

At Worcester, Mass.—Phil Terranova stopped Georgia Kean [3].

At New York—Cleo Shans beat Lee Francis [10]; Harris Johnson and Roosevelt Thomas drew [8]; Rudy Richardson beat Tom Collins [6].

At Boston, Mass.—Jimmy McDaniels beat Billy TordiglIone [10]; Jimmy Doyles beat Henry Jordan [10].

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Ray [Sugar] Robinson, ranked second among the world's welterweight boxers, was awarded a technical knockout over Sgt. Lou Woods in the ninth round of a scheduled 10 round bout which opened the indoor season in Chicago Stadium last night. Referee Tommy Thomas called a halt after 2 minutes and 10 seconds of the ninth had elapsed. Robinson dealt the Fort Sheridan noncom a beating in eight of the rounds, but Lou still was on his feet when the end came, as he had been all thru the bout. It was Wood's third defeat in 35 encounters.

Strategy Is Not Enough.

Woods' cautiousness and hit, grab, and run tactics were unpopular with the 9,600 paid spectators and 1,022 disabled service men, guests of Promoters Irving Schoenwald and Jack Begun. However, it was smart strategy and was one of the reasons the sergeant was able to last as long as he did without once being knocked down.

Early in the match it became apparent that only a miracle would save Woods from absorbing his first knockout. His best opportunity for an upset came in the fifth round when Lou landed a right which opened an old cut on Ray's left eye. Another blow or two on the injury might have earned Lou the victory and at the same time dealt Robinson his second setback in 49 professional starts.

Ray Cuts Loose.

The reverse was true, however, because Robinson, who up to this point had given the fans the idea he might be loafing suddenly went to work. He unleashed a vicious two handed offensive that damaged Woods' left eye to a greater extent than the injury Robinson's had suffered.

Gross receipts were $41,246. Ten per cent of the net receipts of $30,946.13 will go to a disabled veteran's fund, as will 20 per cent of Robinson's purse.

Earl, Parham Box Draw.

Robert Earl, former city Golden Gloves lightweight champion, and Charley Parham of Milwaukee fought a draw in the eight round semi-windup. Earl scored a three-count knockdown in the fourth.

Elmer Ray, Los Angeles heavyweight, knocked out Bill Petersen of Indiana Harbor in the second round of a scheduled eight rounder.

George Costner, Cincinnati, and Dan Robinson, Chicago, both welterweights, won the first two bouts, the former by a second round knockout over Phil Williams of Philadelphia, and Robinson on a six round decision over Jerry Pittro.

MICHIGAN STATE DEFEATS WAYNE, 32 TO 0; 5 IN ROW

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 27 (AP).—Michigan State college's undefeated and untied football team pounded out its fifth straight victory here tonight, scoring in every period for a 32 to 0 triumph over Wayne university, before a crowd of 10,500 fans at University of Detroit stadium.

State, rolling up 16 first downs to Wayne's three, never was forced to punt. Wayne's farthest advance was to its own 40 yard line.

Jack Breslin, triple threat Spartan full back from Battle Creek, broke thru right tackle for runs of 18 and 13 yards for the first two Michigan State touchdowns. Other Spartan scoring was by Fred Aronson on a pass, Herbert Speerstra on an 11 yard run, and Bill Siler on a 35 yard pass play.

Bill of Sale.

For years they had talked of "selling the place"—
You know how older folks will.
Then they'd change their minds and put it off
For a little while until
Help became harder and harder to get.
They no longer could swing it alone,
So came the day when they made up their minds,
The saddest they'd ever known.

But what in the world were they going to do?
The children were scattered and gone,
The neighbors said it was foolishness
For them to keep carrying on.
A buyer was not at all hard to find—
Their place was an envied one,
So they bade it good-by from the doorway
In a setting October sun.

The bill of sale was the hardest,
But, of course, it had to be signed.
Small wonder that both their hands trembled—
Only think what ran thru each mind;
Just a simple bill of sale, it looked,
One sees such every day,
But all those rich years with their laughter and tears
They silently signed away!

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 27.—Every now and then, even in these hectic times, a football game comes along which is likely to explode right in your face, one of those dynamite-laden battles to which Michigan customers are accustomed. Nigh on to 40,000 of these are expected to attend the most important game of the Western conference schedule here tomorrow, when the Wolverines meet Purdue's Boilermakers.

The Boilermakers will go into the contest with a league record of two victories, tying them with Ohio State for the conference leadership, while Michigan has whipped Northwestern and Minnesota after undergoing a rather startling 20 to 0 defeat by Indiana's Hoosiers.

Shades of Stagg—Purdue Feared.

A fellow by the name of Herbert Orrin Crisler, better known as Fritz in the University of Chicago days when his old coach, A. A. Stagg, coined the perennial phrase of fearing Purdue, today still was carrying over the ancient dread. Fritz's boys had a day off last week while tomorrow's rivals were winning, 26 to 7, in a game in which Iowa led them, 7 to 6, at the half.

The Iowa game was witnessed by the same Mr. Crisler, who this afternoon reached another day in the process of telling his Wolverines that tomorrow they are going to run into a team which capitalizes on any mistake which the opposition makes. Iowa, last week's foe, led at the half by a point, said Mr. C., but the Hawkeyes booted three chances in the last 30 minutes and the Boilermakers made the most of them, and instantly.

Both Teams to Lose Stars.

Both teams are going to be dented by service transfers come next week. Tomorrow's game will be the last before the transfer of Michigan's two top backs, a couple of Roberts who have done special gridiron service for the Wolverines, Full Back Bob Wiese, and Bob Nussbaumer, the Oak Park boy who has done such a splendid job of helping Michigan compile a record in which the local lads have lost only to Indiana in five starts.

Then Dick Rifenburg, the basketball player who scored three of the first four Michigan touchdowns this year on a few performances as offensive end, today indicated that he won't be around, in view of an army induction call.

Transfers removed Joe Oeming, third string tackle, and Dave Adams, substitute quarter back, from the Michigan squad today.

Isbell at Quarter!

The Boilermakers are scheduled to lose Frank Bauman, Chalmers [Bumps] Elliott, Stan Dubicki, Walter Poremba, Jim Walley, Calvin Dugas, and Ted Held after tomorrow's game, and after the Wisconsin game next week, the same route will cost Purdue's invaders their No. 1 quarter back, Ray Schultz, the old Lane Tech guard who has been switched to the boss job in the Purdue T formation.

Master Schultz, by the way, was not one of the 19 civilians who were absent from the traveling squad who moved thru Chicago to the Dearborn Inn, outside of Detroit, today.

The highlight of the Boilermakers' workout today, as they frolicked on the front lawn of the Inn, was the spectacle of a new quarter back in the Boilermaker squad. He was a fellow named Cecil Isbell, an old Purdue man who now happens to be the coach of the Boilermakers. Cecil was slightly short of quarter backs this morning, Schultz and Jim Walley being among the 17 naval trainees who can't get here until tomorrow morning. So the Texan who was one of the greatest passers in football history in his time at Purdue, in the All-Star football game, and with the Green Bay Isbell-Hutson battery, jumped into a uniform.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 27.—On the evidence of games played this season it would seem certain that Indiana's football team should defeat Iowa here tomorrow afternoon. The Hawkeyes have lost to Ohio State, Illinois, and Purdue and have scored only two touchdowns. Indiana has defeated Michigan and Northwestern, as well as two non-conference opponents, and has lost only to Illinois.

Yet, the Hoosiers consider Iowa their particular football jinx. More times than not, since Bo McMillin took over as head football coach in 1934, Indiana has stumbled over the Hawkeyes when victory seemed assured. Last year, Iowa managed a 7 to 7 tie. During the competitive span of Bill Hillenbrand, Lou Saban, and Chuck Jacoby—three of the Hoosiers' greatest back field stars—Iowa always managed an upset.

Recall Wildcat Game.

It is no wonder, then, that Indiana fears this Iowa team. Moreover, the Hoosier coaches are also concerned over the second half of the game last week at Northwestern. Indiana led, 14 to 0, at the half but was unable to score in the final periods and yielded a touchdown. All of which points to a much closer game tomorrow than might otherwise be expected.

Coach McMillin also has a special reason for wishing to subdue the Iowa jinx, altho it is likely he doesn't realize it. Indiana's teams, coached by McMillin, now show 40 victories and 40 defeats with nine tied games. Victory tomorrow would shove McMillin's score over the .500 mark.

Iowa Uses Modified T.

Indiana has drilled diligently this week on defense against Iowa's modified T formation which combines ball handling by the quarter back with a back field shift similar to Notre Dame's of the 1920s. Occasionally a direct pass from center is used with the quarter back in motion as a blocker. Last night's drills concluded with a review of attack, in which Bob Hoernschemeyer was pitching laterals and forwards and George Sundheim and Harry Jagade were plunging into the line.

Indiana is the only Western conference university which has not used any play this year from a T formation, but the Hoosiers have a larger percentage of passes and wide runs.

Badgers Plot Upset Victory Over Sailors

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 27.—Wisconsin's Badgers, who inadvertently stepped into a schedule figuratively dripping with dynamic enemies, have laughed off the recent past and are ready to lay out the welcome mat again tomorrow for another armor-plated football crew. This time its the Great Lakes Bluejackets who, at least on paper, constitute a rather rollicking lot for Stuhldreher's boys to take on after successive week-end strife with Ohio State's point collectors and Notre Dame's unstoppables.

No preparations have been made by the student body to knock the dome off the capitol in the event of victory, but there is a feeling that the Badgers, despite defeats in their last two games and despite limited experience, are going to click and surprise somebody before the season ends. Tomorrow might be that day and even the sailors profess to be concerned lest they prove unable to bounce back after their jousting with the Ohioans.

Badgers Plan Aerial Attack.

Strictly on a comparative basis, which usually means nothing, the sailor lads should be giving more than a little thought to what might happen. The sailors were taken apart with consummate ease once the Buckeyes decided to start rolling a week ago. But the week before that the Badgers startled even the battle tested Ohioans by carrying a 7 to 7 tie into the last period and then falling apart because of their own miscues as much as enemy strength. From this alone the sailors probably have been able to deduce that the lads in the cardinal colored sweaters bear watching.

Seemingly outmatched in the line just as they were while wrestling with the Ohio and Notre Dame problems, the Badgers, more than at any previous time, are figuring on devoting themselves to an all-out aerial attack. And they have just the weapon for that particular line of endeavor in 17 year old Earl [Jug] Girard, the freshman who pitches for distance and accuracy and thinks it so much fun that he insists on Columbus, O., Oct. 27.—Undefeated Ohio State, the surprise team of the Western conference, tomorrow will seek to even the series score with Minnesota before a crowd which is expected to exceed 50,000.

The Buckeyes and Gophers, two of the leading football powers of the conference for many years, have met only five times in a span that stretches back to 1921. Minnesota has won three of the five games. The infrequency of gridiron contacts between the two universities has been due mainly to transportation problems. They are the most widely separated conference institutions.

Three Regulars Injured.

The Gophers, whipped by Michigan and the Iowa Seahawks and victorious over Nebraska and Missouri, will be strengthened for tomorrow's contest by the return of Vic Kulbitski, recently discharged from the marine corps. Kulbitski, who was with Notre Dame last fall, will give Minnesota power at full back which it has lacked in earlier engagements.

Coach Carroll Widdoes, who stepped into the head coach spot vacated by Paul Brown's enlistment in the navy, is depressed no end by injuries that beset the Ohio State squad. Three of his most experienced players—Center Gordon Appleby, Tackle Bill Willis, and End Jack Dugger—all of whom were members of the 1944 All-Star squad—have injuries which may keep them on the sidelines for part of the game, at least. It is unlikely that Appleby, whose ankle was hurt in the Great Lakes contest last Saturday, will play at all.

Bierman with Gophers.

The Buckeyes have another defection that may weaken their line. Cy Souders, who has been a regular right end for three years, reported to Great Lakes Monday after helping his alma mater defeat the Bluejackets last Saturday. He will be replaced by Traian Dendiu, freshman from Campbell, O., who is the youngest member of the

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 27.—Coach Ray Eliot of the extremely rapid and touchdown crazy University of Illinois football team, had his speedsters and his strategy under blankets today. And Eliot, altho of the sob school of football professors, was moaning only softly as he rested his boys and his nerves for the big Illini-Notre Dame battle to be played before 60,000—possibly 70,000 here—tomorrow.

The Illini, well rested by the day's layoff, relaxed tonight in the Champaign Country club. The Irish arrived early this evening and they looked rested, too, and certainly relaxed for the team most highly touted to become the national champion.

The Illini had no national championship dreams to clutter their youthful and alert minds. They feel that if it was an honor to shake the hand that shook the hand of John L. Sullivan, it will be, in this modern athletic age, honor enough to shake the confidence of the team that is being voted the nation's tops. Gosh! How they want to beat Notre Dame.

Illini Aren't Scared. They Say.

Notre Dame, on arriving here, still was rated favorite by a fair margin, but this, according to all reports and symptoms, didn't scare the Illini one iota. Scoffers from South Bend, and the Chicago synthetic Notre Dame alumni belt may point out that there will be eight freshmen in the Illinois starting lineup and that lads with peachfuzz whiskers aren't old enough to sense danger. But you can't put that thought over down here, where Illinois homecomers are arriving by the thousands—hours before tomorrow's 2 o'clock kick-off.

We have been here for two days and haven't been in a pool parlor or smoke shop and in very few saloons. We understand, however, that, with all the excitement, there has been little betting. Quotations are 5 to 2 on Notre Dame and those wicked pool cards are asking Notre Dame to take a handicap of 13 points.

It's Young vs. Kelly.

Fans who usually can take football or leave it alone, are well wrought up over the prospect of seeing a yardage duel between Illinois Buddy Young, national sprint champion, who will start at left half, and Bob Kelly, Notre Dame's ground-gaining ace, who will start at right half. There will be many other fine young men in the contest, however, and we, if you don't mind, will pick no star until after we've had our binoculars in focus for an hour or so tomorrow afternoon.

Both teams use the T formation, each with considerable tinkering on the standard pattern of the system. The Irish, for instance, use the back in motion device, the Illini do not. The quarter back handles the ball on every scrimmage play for the Irish, he does not in the Illini scheme. The Irish quarter back does all the forward passing. Others may pass in the Illini plan and from this fact may spring one of the surprises of the game. Paul Patterson can pass with his left hand very well, but hasn't passed much thus far. He may do a lot of pitching tomorrow.

LANE CLINCHES SECTION CROWN; TRIUMPHS, 52-0

Gains Revenge for 1943 Loss to Amundsen.

Lane Tech, undefeated but once tied this year, yesterday gained a 52 to 0 revenge on the Amundsen eleven which knocked them out of the North section race last year. The victory, won in Lane's stadium, clinched the Lane right to represent the north section in the city play-offs.

Lane will meet Waller next week but it will be all for exercise. Even should Lane lose and another team tie in the final percentages, league rules specify that, when teams are tied, the team which has defeated the other in regular play shall represent the section. The two other teams who figured in the north race, Senn and Schurz, have both been defeated by Lane.

Leads 26 to 0 at Half.

Lane opened its title clinching victory by scoring 19 points in the first quarter and held a half time lead of 26 to 0. Dick Berger, substitute right half back, led the scorers with three touchdowns. He went over from the 12 yard line in the first quarter, took a pass from Bizzotto in the end zone in the third period, and in the final quarter scored after a 20 yard run.

Alex Cichanski, who started at right half, scored twice for Lane. He went over from the 7 yard line for one of the first period scores and took Berger's 20 yard pass in the second quarter and ran 45 yards to score. The other points were divided between Chuck Koehler, Frank Seyerlich, and Al Bizzotto, all who crossed the goal line, and Chester Hulbert, who made all the conversions.

Phillips Is Victorious.

Horace Chandler scored three touchdowns as Wendell Phillips defeated Gage Park, 25 to 7, in a Central section game at Yates avenue stadium. Phillips led, 13 to 0, at the end of the half, and Gage Park's score came in the final period.

In two night contests in Shewbridge field, Farragut defeated Kelly, 18 to 12, in a central section game and Bowen defeated Calumet, 26 to 12, in a south section meeting.

Schurz, idle in north section play this week, beat Morton of the Suburban league, 31 to 6, in Hansoh Park. John Miller ran for a 45 yard touchdown in the first quarter after taking Dick Redman's pass and went 60 yards thru a broken field in the second period.

Buckeyes and Gophers Meet in Columbus squad. Dendiu will not be 18 until May.

The Minnesota squad, accompanied by Lt. Col. Bernie Bierman, arrived this morning and worked out in Ohio stadium this afternoon, the first visiting team to follow the pre-war routine in Columbus this season. Coach George Hauser announced one change in the Gophers' starting lineup. Bill Marcotte, freshman from Minneapolis, replacing Tom Wainwright at right end. Wainwright, who is injured, has been in the opening lineup every game this fall.

Kulbitski Will Help.

Presence of Kulbitski in the Minnesota back field is certain to help the team's rushing power. It will take some of the heat off Wayne Williams, who against Michigan was the Gophers' most consistent ground gainer. Minnesota, however, has no back to match the all around talent of Ohio State's Les Horvath, who already is recognized as one of the top flight half backs of 1944 football in the middlewest.

REED FLATTENS SAM HARDER IN SECOND ROUND

One knockout and one technical knockout featured last night's amateur bouts at the Madison Athletic club. Tom Reed of the Trainers' Club, fighting in the 130 pound class, knocked out Sam Harder, of Memphis, Tenn., in the second round, and Stanley Sheeley, 165 pounds, of the Savoy A. C., stopped Leroy Scales, of the Kaleb A. C., in the fourth round.

Harold Williams of Milwaukee beat Douglas Jordan, Savoy, and Al Were of the Savoy beat Ted Spicer, Madison, in the 165 pound class; Leroy Stark, Trainers' club, defeated Marcus McDonald, Savoy, 142 pounds; and Len Thomas, Union Park, beat Ed Rawlins, Kaleb, in the 128 pound class.

BRITISH MOVE QUICKLY TO GET FRENCH TRADE

Rivalry Rises Fast in Freed Nation.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 27.—Recognition of the De Gaulle provisional government almost immediately opened opened the way to a trade campaign by commercial interests seeking to regain a foothold in France. British companies, closer geographically, apparently have taken the lead.

British interests, which not long ago charged that American business men "disguised" in army uniforms were getting a strangle hold on France, now plan to send over trade missions to help revive insurance, banking, industrial, and commercial businesses at the earliest moment.

More Difficult for Yanks.

As communications improve, individual firms will get into preliminary contact with the French thru postcard correspondence which now is permitted, it was asserted. For American firms, farther away and with more severe army controls, the situation is more difficult.

Some progress already has been made by the British. The London Daily Mail has resumed printing for civilian readers in France at two francs [4 cents] per copy.

Other impulses to restore trade across the channel are expected from the visit Prime Minister Churchill soon will make to Paris and by the resumption of full mail service between France and England after Nov. 1.

Travel Bureau Jammed.

The Paris edition of the Daily Mail said: "We may expect a much freer exchange of civilians and a gradual return to normal communications."

Cook's agency [international travel bureau] is operating in Paris in the Place de la Madeleine as an information office, and is thronged. It sells sleeping car accommodations from Orleans to Toulouse on the Paris-Toulouse railway. The American Express company travel office in Paris has not reopened.

Barclays' Bank of London is open for business in Paris and taking new accounts in francs, but the Guarantee Trust company of New York, the Chase National bank, and other American institutions remain closed.

The British have lifted army control on visas for civilians wishing to come to France. They may apply to the ordinary visa office, but requests are granted only to those whose business in France is considered "essential."

British Seek Edge, Complain.

Trade rivalry is taking form. The British complain against the French sending a trade mission to the United States to buy machine tools and other required products on the grounds that they could furnish these items cheaper and anyway, it is argued, the French have larger credits in England than in the United States.

The French also are told that England could furnish iron and steel cheaper than the United States, except for their pledge not to exploit the advantages conferred by American lend-lease.

GRAINS UNEVEN; FARMER OFFERS OF CORN SLOW

Farmers showed less inclination to sell cash corn yesterday as the result of a further decline in prices. Bids on the Chicago Board of Trade for October-November shipment were on the basis of $1.13⅞ a bushel for No. 2 yellow, net track Chicago, or 2¾ cents under the ceiling. About 130,000 bushels were purchased by elevator interests. Processing industries withdrew as buyers except for grain offered in the cash market or for October shipment.

Corn futures closed ¼ cent higher to ⅜ cent lower, the former on December. Wheat was unsettled, 1¼ cents lower at one time, but rallied on short covering and finished ⅛ to ⅝ cent higher. Oats lost ⅛ to ¼ cent and rye was ¼ cent lower to 1 cent higher. Barley was dull and declined 1 to 2¾ cents on scattered selling.

Acme Steel Declares 50 Cents Extra Dividend

Acme Steel corporation yesterday declared an extra dividend of 50 cents. Twentieth Century-Fox Film corporation and Ohio Oil company each voted extra payments of 25 cents. Consolidated Steel corporation voted a $1 special disbursement.

WPB Names Firms Starting Peace Output

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27 (AP).—"Spot" authorizations for civilian goods production had risen to 1,278 on Oct. 24 and were still climbing at the rate of 300 a week, the war production board reported today.

Total value of authorizations, scheduled to Oct. 1, 1945, were $202,428,000 compared with 152 million dollars a week earlier.

Approximately $79,600,000 of civilian items are scheduled for manufacture by Dec. 31 under the "spot" plan which provides that local WPB offices may permit companies to resume civilian production if labor and plant facilities can be shown to be available. However, 340 applications have been denied on the ground the requested production would interfere with war work.

List Companies and Items.

WPB made available the names of companies and items they propose to make. The number and value of items was withheld because it was considered confidential, WPB said.

[John Nuveen Jr., Chicago regional WPB director, said yesterday that his office would release no more announcements of the granting of "spot" reconversion permits because such publicity had harmed the war program by causing workers to leave war plants for jobs with post-war appeal. He said he had protested to Washington the release of such information.]

FREIGHT RECORD SET, PROFIT UP FOR BURLINGTON

The Burlington railroad set an all-time traffic record in the week ended Oct. 21 when it loaded and received from connections a total of 38,975 cars of revenue freight, Ralph Budd, president, said yesterday. Operating revenues in September were $20,609,940, an increase of $1,843,823 over September, 1943, and net income was $1,346,179, compared with $481,036. Operating revenues in the nine months ended Sept. 30 were $177,346,463, an increase of $19,050,213 over 1943.

Farm Depression Predicted

A serious agricultural depression within two years after the defeat of Germany was predicted yesterday by Theodore W. Schultz, professor of agricultural economics at the University of Chicago. He spoke at a luncheon of the citizens' board of the university in the Chicago club.

"During the first 12 to 24 months after victory in Europe our farmers will have favorable marketing conditions because that period will be required to replenish our granaries and fill European relief needs," he said. "After that one to two year period, our agricultural exports will drop materially, thereby causing a widespread and serious depression in American agriculture."

Compares with 1920 Slump.

Prof. Schultz said the post-war farm depression will be similar to that of 1920-'21, but should not be as serious. As to the length of the depression, he said that "for a decade or two after the war, the supply of farm products will increase more rapidly than the demand."

Conditions which permitted farmers to break all production records during the last three years, despite a reduction of 15 per cent in farm population, will be more forceful in the post-war era, accounting for the probable overproduction. The major factor in this increased production will be increased efficiency of farm machinery.

Three Safeguards Listed.

Prof. Schultz said cushions against the probable farm depression are threefold: New industrial uses for farm products, particularly in the manufacture of paper, plastics, and oils; the 12 billion dollars which farmers have saved since 1940, and the failure of farmers who have gone into war industry and military service to return to agriculture.

Favorable economic conditions will keep former farmers on city jobs, thus giving a higher average income to those who remain in agriculture, he said.

CANCEL CONVENTIONS SCHEDULED IN NEXT 6 MONTHS, ODT ASKS

Executives of organizations that hold conventions were asked to cancel any meetings scheduled before May 1, 1945, in a letter from J. E. Connors, assistant director of the office of defense transportation in charge of rail transport, which was made public last night by the Chicago regional ODT office.

"Organizations which contemplate holding conventions any time within the next six months should reconsider, and if possible defer their meetings or restrict attendance," said Connors. It has been demonstrated forcibly that the converging of large numbers of convention delegates on a city causes a concentrated strain on railway and hotel facilities that cannot be justified in war time.

"Hotels are urged to discourage unnecessary conventions and to warn delegates that reservations for their rooms cannot be guaranteed because important military and essential civilian travelers must be accommodated."

Toledo MESA Quits; Expect Other Strikes

Toledo, O., Oct. 27 (AP).—Members of the Mechanics' Educational Society of America began to walk out of 11 manufacturing plants this afternoon and a union official said members in Detroit and Cleveland probably would follow. Earl Streeter, local MESA secretary, said the walkout would affect at least 4,500 men in Toledo and possibly 50,000 in other cities.

He said the strike was called in sympathy with 350 MESA members in four Toledo plants of the Electric Auto-Lite company, who quit Tuesday in what Streeter said was a protest of the company's discharge of six MESA members because they failed to maintain membership in the CIO-United Automobile Workers which has a contract with the company.

After a meeting tonight officials of MESA and CIO unions said they had reached no decision after several hours of discussion. Matthew L. Smith, MESA national secretary, implied he would not call a general sympathy walkout, but said each MESA local could vote on the issue as it saw fit.

MESA has contracts with the Willys-Overland Motors, Packard Motor Car company, Northern Aircraft company, Toledo Stamping and Manufacturing company, and smaller manufacturers.

Ship Launching Halted.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 27 (AP).—A walkout by more than 500 shipyard workers at the Cargill yards at near-by Savage has forced indefinite postponement of the scheduled launching tomorrow of a navy tanker, F. L. Hague, superintendent, said today. An appeal to the idle men to return to work brought about "25 to 30 per cent" of the men back to their jobs, he added. The strike was caused by a controversy over union leadership.

Steel Output Slashed.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 27 (AP).—The strike of about 1,900 employes of Republic Steel corporation's Buffalo plant, which is in its fourth day, has caused a daily loss of an estimated 2,000 tons of steel ingots, a company official said today.

CHICAGO HOGS STEADY, BREAK IN SMALL YARDS

Hogs again sold at office of price administration ceiling prices at the Chicago stock yards yesterday, but at smaller markets prices broke sharply and top grades there sold 10 to 50 cents below the price limits.

At Chicago only the lightest hogs declined. Those weighing less than 160 pounds lost up to 25 cents a hundred pounds, but most others held steady. The average price was unchanged at $14.65. Cattle and lambs were steady.

Widen Hog Ceiling.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27 (AP).—The office of price administration tonight ordered, effective Oct. 30, an extension of the ceiling price on hogs weighing 240 pounds or less to hogs weighing up to 270 pounds. The applicable ceiling price is $14.75 a hundred pounds, Chicago basis.

NAVY TO MAKE FEDERAL PLANT OF AMERTORP

The navy's torpedo factory in Forest Park, operated by the Amertorp corporation, subsidiary of the American Can company, together with naval ordnance plants in Canton, O., Indianapolis, Ind., and Louisville, Ky., will be removed from contract operation as soon as feasible and converted to government operation as permanent shore establishments in the 9th naval district, the navy department announced yesterday.

Employes of the ordnance plants will be placed on a civil service basis when the naval bureau of ordnance takes over operations of the plants, it was said.

Prepare Now for Peace Job, Banks Urged

Banks should prepare now to aid in post-war financing which will help create jobs, Arthur R. Upgren, vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis, told the Financial Advertisers association yesterday in the Edgewater Beach hotel. He said it was not enough merely to reiterate that banks have vast sums ready for investment, but that banks must take practical steps to put borrowers in touch with capital.

"The American people expect our financial institutions to be forward looking—and to the public the interest in reasonably secure jobs is second only to its interest in really secure depositaries," Upgren said. "To obtain economic stability at high level output, banks can assist by their own direct loans or investment advances with a prudent use of their funds, or by assisting borrowers in obtaining advances from other financial institutions."

Try Every Possible Device.

He said either of these actions would require banks to review and explore every possible device by which those needing credit can have their needs supplied.

"Only in this way can there be assured an excess of business births over business deaths," he asserted, "and thus can we help to assure jobs by first profitably and productively expanding investments so that private employment may not wither and fade away in favor of public employment."

Upgren said the banks would have an opportunity after the war to aid in the private promotion of a truly adequate program of rebuilding cities as better places to live in. He said such a program may require the building of a million homes annually for a number of years.

Urges New Ideas of Service.

He urged banks to aid aggressively in the creation of credit pools to meet new needs of post-war lending, particularly with respect to helping new and small business.

"If banks are to be leaders in another field, usually called 'urban redevelopment,' he explained, "we may need to create new institutions and new ideas of their community service which can result in another expansion of future lending perhaps comparable to past consumer instalment financing.

"Some of these institutions may help us get on with one of the new forms of activities that can bid fair to sustain high level employment and output after we have completed the immediate post-war 'catching up' on our needs for consumers' durable goods."

COURT APPOINTS RECEIVER FOR SECURITIES FIRM

Federal District Judge Campbell yesterday appointed Atty. Martin S. Gerber receiver for Charles E. Greene & Co., Aurora securities dealer, and issued a preliminary injunction restraining the firm, owned by Charles E. and Jeannette Greene, from using the mails or other interstate means in selling securities or from continuing transactions alleged to violate the securities exchange act.

Investigators for Thomas B. Hart, regional administrator of the securities and exchange commission, asserted the company had induced the purchase and sale of securities by means of "manipulation, deception, and other fraudulent devices." The SEC complaint charged that the company's liabilities exceeded its assets and that it sold securities to its customers at prices having no reasonable relationship to prevailing market prices.

Greene testified that he had not engaged in any fraudulent activities.

JOHNSTON ASSAILS YOUNG-BIDDLE TALKS ON RAIL SUIT IN WEST

Charles E. Johnston, chairman of the Western Association of Railway Executives, yesterday said a conference in Washington, D. C., between Atty. Gen. Biddle and Robert R. Young, chairman of the Alleghany corporation, on the government's anti-trust suit against the western railroads was "amazingly irregular."

He explained that the western railways are not negotiating a settlement of the suit filed against them by the department of justice at Lincoln, Neb., nor have they been asked to discuss the matter with the department of justice at any time."

"It would appear that we are being treated to another one of those spectacles for which the attorney general is fast becoming famous," Johnston said. "Biddle files a suit against the western railroads and then enters into amazingly irregular negotiations with the head of an eastern finance corporation—successor to the Van Sweringen interest—who was not named as a defendant, who admitted he was not speaking for the railroads, and insisted he was not passing judgement on the merits of the suit."

Young, whose corporation is a majority stockholder in the Missouri Pacific, a defendant, said after Thursday's conference that settlement of the suit was "one of the major objectives I have."

MASSACHUSETTS BONDING AND INSURANCE COMPANY

The Board of Directors have declared a quarterly dividend of 87½ cents a share on the capital stock of the Company, payable November 15, 1944, to stockholders of record at the close of business November 3, 1944.

DONALD FALVEY, Treasurer.

TEXAS CO. HAS LARGE 9 MONTH GAIN IN PROFITS

Estimated Income $3.46 a Share.

Texas company, large oil producer, refiner, and distributor, yesterday reported estimated profits for the first nine months of 1944 of more than 38 million dollars, substantially larger than net income a year earlier.

W. S. S. Rodgers, chairman, said estimated net income was $38,884,491, equal to $3.46 a share, after reserving 4 million dollars for contingencies, compared with year ago profit of $29,110,467, or $2.67 a share, after setting aside 8 million dollars for contingencies. Figures of its European subsidiaries were excluded.

The company voted a 50 cents extra dividend in addition to its regularly quarterly disbursement of 50 cents.

Republic Steel Profit Dips.

Republic Steel corporation reported profit in the September quarter of $2,195,526, equal to 30 cents a share, compared with $2,452,869, or 34 cents a share, a year earlier. Net income in the nine months ended Sept. 30 was $6,470,792, or 88 cents a share, against $8,456,601, or $1.23 a share.

Standard Oil company of California reported September quarter profits of $11,119,172, or 86 cents a share, against $10,882,992, or 84 cents a share.

Continental Can company reported profit of $5,964,799, or $2.09 a share, in the 12 months ended Sept. 30, compared with year ago profit of $4,644,167, or $1.63 a share.

New House Sales and Rental Ceilings Increased by WPB

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27 (AP).—Higher sales and rental ceilings on new houses, ranging up to $8,000 purchase price and $65 a month rental in high cost areas, were authorized today by the national housing administration and the war production board.

Coupled with the removal of all occupancy restrictions, the action applies to NHA's so-called "H-2" housing program which was announced in July, but stalled from the start because builders were not interesting in undertaking home construction at the lower price limits then prevailing.

80,000 New Units Expected.

More than 80,000 new units of "larger and better quality housing" are expected to result from the liberalized rules. Many will be built to sell for less than $8,000 because NHA will set lower ceilings, it was said, in areas where less money is required to get needed homes built.

Lifting of occupancy restrictions means that persons other than war workers may buy or rent the new houses. This removes another deterrent to construction activity, because builders have held back because of apprehension that prospective purchasers would move away when war industry is cut back.

The new step completes a liberalization program begun last week with the lifting of some restrictions on materials and design, which, NHA said, would permit the building of houses "approximating pre-war standards." The $8,000 and $65 limits replace ceilings of $6,000 and $50, which were adjustable upward in some areas of high building costs to $7,500 and $62.50.

The $6,000 limit continues to apply to homes built under the "H-1" program, the original war housing program for war workers entering a community. This program is nearing a close, but the new program will not be allowed to interfere with its completion, NHA said.

Area Quotas to Be Set.

Housing quotas under the new program will be set for each locality, with maximum prices and rentals specified. Specific sale prices and rentals then will be approved by NHA for each project as a condition to the granting of priority aid for building materials. NHA said it would seek to have as many homes built for rental as possible.

The $8,000 purchase price ceiling is a compromise. NHA originally asked WPB to approve a $9,000 top, but the office of price administration objected on the ground such a boost would be an inflationary threat to rent ceilings.

Federal housing administration field offices have been instructed to accept applications for title II mortgage insurance on homes built under the new program, and also on those built under the "H-3" program, designed solely for hardship cases. For two years title II insurance has been reserved for existing dwellings. WPB's ban on nonessential housing has not been eased.

Builders Disappointed

Chicago home builders were disappointed when the new national housing agency sales and rental ceilings were announced yesterday. They said the ceilings were not high enough and prevented speculative building. Charles Huggett, secretary of the Chicago Metropolitan Home Builders' association, said that a $9,000 purchase price ceiling was needed and expected in the Chicago area, for which an $8,000 limit was set.

SURPLUS GOODS SALES PLAN TO BE SIMPLIFIED

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28 (AP).—The treasury's office of surplus property announced today a new national selling program based on catalogs of available goods. Previously a buyer had to learn from each of 11 regional offices what surpluses were on hand.

A "surplus reporter" will be issued at each regional office at regular intervals. It will tell companies on the treasury's mailing list what goods are for sale and where they are.

RETAIL VOLUME DECREASES, BUT TOPS '43 LEVEL

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—Retail sales volume declined slightly this week, but was 8 to 12 per cent above the corresponding period of 1943, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. The midwest gain from last year was put at 6 to 10 per cent.

"Mild weather retarded the forward movement in apparel sales in some areas and pre-Christmas buying for men overseas dropped off," the business research firm said.

STOCK MARKET RECOVERS PART OF RECENT LOSS

Size of Liquidation Brings In Buyers.

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—The stock market today recovered slightly from yesterday's selloff. Altho many leaders dipped further, selected issues rose fractions to a point or more.

Mixed price tendencies prevailed at the start, and recoveries began in most departments after noon. Low priced stocks, most of which got nowhere, came out in blocks running to 33,000 shares to swell volume, altho trading was slow at times.

Some commitments were reinstated on the belief the list had undergone sufficient liquidation for the present. Earnings, dividends, and individual situations aided favorites.

The Associated Press 60 stock average rose 0.2 point to 54.7. Of 843 issues traded, 338 were up, 271 down, and 234 unchanged.

Steels rallied in the final few minutes, United States Steel closing up ¾ and Bethlehem ⅞. American & Foreign Power common touched a new 1944 low, down 1⅜ at 2½, the second preferred lost 2 points, and the two senior cumulative $6 and $7 stocks rose 1⅜ and 2 points on proposal of a recapitalization plan.

Grumman Aircraft pushed up 1⅞ to a 1944 top. Texas company advanced ⅞ in response to an extra dividend, first since 1941.

On the Curb, Bowman-Biltmore preferred jumped 5 points.

BOND PRICES IRREGULAR.

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—Price swings were irregular in today's bond market which was one of the quietest of the year. The Associated Press rail and industrial averages each dipped 0.1 point, and the low yield group advanced 0.1.

American & Foreign Power 5s dropped 1 in large trade after announcement of a proposed recapitalization plan. Florida East Coast 5s and certificates pushed up to 2½ to 3½.

CHICAGO LIST UNEVEN.

Prices were mixed as turnover dipped to 27,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Among active issues were Chicago corporation and Marshall Field, each up ¼; Consolidated Biscuit, up ⅛, and Middle West corporation, down ¼.

WE SAW A WAY to give more people telephone service

When the manufacture of new equipment was stopped by war shortages, we had on hand more telephones than bell boxes. The problem was to find the wood and working parts needed to make the missing boxes and thus provide service.

So, telephone engineers checked over materials in storage and located some 1500 old-style wall sets which could not be used with present equipment. But parts of these sets (the boxes, ringers and terminals) could be used and have been used to build bell boxes for new telephones.

This re-use of old materials has enabled us to install telephones for more than a thousand Illinois Bell subscribers, who otherwise would have had none. And we expect to take care of many more.

This is just one example of our constant effort in wartime to s-t-r-e-t-c-h telephone facilities to give the best service to the most people. We're doing everything in our power to shorten the present waiting list. Please be sure we will care for your needs at the earliest possible moment.

HOSIERY MAKERS TO USE FOREIGN TRADE OUTLETS

Gradual Easing of Price Controls Is Urged.

United States hosiery makers plan to introduce their products abroad on a large scale after the war, Earl Constantine, president of the National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers, told the Hosiery Mills Representatives Club of Chicago in the Bismarck hotel yesterday.

He also said the "bare leg fad" would disappear as soon as women's stockings again become plentiful. He estimated that "at the most, 20 per cent of the post-war women's stockings would be made of silk."

Contantine asked a gradual relaxation of government price controls and distribution of government surpluses thru normal trade channels.

Most Pre-War Trade Domestic.

"For the first time in its history, the hosiery industry will go into the export market as soon as the war is over," Constantine said. "Heretofore we have confined most of our business to the domestic market, and used the export market for 'dumping' the goods that could not sold here at home."

Constantine said that for five years after the war there would be three good so-called "foreign emergency markets." These include those countries which customarily provide their own history needs, but lack yarn supplies and whose machinery is in poor condition; the occupied countries such as Norway, Holland, Belgium, Poland, and others, and the countries which naturally import stockings, but have been on short rations for three or four years.

Bare Leg Fad Declines.

Discussing the custom of going bare-legged, he said:

"There was good justification for bare legs during part of our national emergency, but this practice already is spending itself, and I think it will dispose of itself when normal times return and women can obtain all the stockings they need."

Constantine said the largest demand after the war probably would be for nylon stockings, but rayon yarns had been improved materially during the war and could be used satisfactorily afterward when the best types are available. Silk would be handled as a luxury item, he said.

POST-WAR PLANS FOR BUILDING TO COST 11 BILLIONS

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—Post-war construction projects totaled $11,008,748,000 on Sept. 30 in the 37 states east of the Rocky mountains, F. W. Dodge corporation reported today.

More than 20 per cent is to be built and financed by private interests when materials and man power restrictions are relaxed, it said. The remainder represents public projects. Of the total $5,118,440,000 already is in the design stage.

Of the aggregate, $2,901,418,000 represents nonresidential construction, $1,106,492,000 residential, and $7,000,838,000 heavy engineering, mainly public works and utilities.

MISSOURI RIVER PLAN BRANDED POLITICAL MOVE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27 (AP).—Bills for the creation of a Missouri river valley authority were characterized today by Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.] as political window dressing.

"They haven't got a chance of passing; they're dead," he said. The proposal was submitted to the senate "just for effect in Montana and North Dakota," he added.

The senator predicted a satisfactory settlement of the Missouri river irrigation - navigation controversy when congress reconvenes.

People and Events

W. A. Patterson, United Air Lines; Oscar G. Mayer, Oscar G. Mayer & Co.; Gen. Thomas Hammond, Whiting corporation; Paul H. Davis, Paul H. Davis & Co., and Floyd Bateman, Griswold-Walker-Bateman company, have been appointed to serve on the nominating committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce, Holman D. Pettibone, president, announced yesterday.

Edward Damstra will be in charge of a new Chicago City Bank and Trust company department to be known as the monthly payment loan department.

Edison General Electric Appliance company will establish central region sales offices and merchandise display rooms in the Merchandise Mart Dec. 1, W. H. Bondurant, regional manager, announced.

All officers of the National Automatic Merchandising association, including Nathaniel Leverone, president, were reelected by the organization.

Paul H. Eckstein has been named assistant sales manager of the radio receiver division of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, Harold B. Donley, division manager, announced. Eckstein formerly was sales promotion manager of Stewart-Warner corporation.

Arthur V. Danner has been appointed executive vice president, and Robert B. Cragin vice president in charge of sales engineering by the Houdry Process corporation, Wilmington, Del. Both were elected directors.

Clarence C. Wyckoff, Effingham, Ill., has been elected president of the Illinois Association of Small Loan companies, to succeed Thomas D. Griffin, Chicago, who was named chairman of the executive committee.

DUST TO DUST SPAN COVERED IN OPA SUITS

Baby Carriages and Coffins Included.

Man's life span from the cradle to the grave is covered in suits filed yesterday by the office of price administration. All the suits charge violations of OPA ceiling prices and ask for injunctions to restrain further violations.

Six of the actions, filed in Circuit court, are directed against retailers of baby carriages, bicycles, toys, and similar goods. The defendants are Hyman Radousky, 724 Maxwell st.; Ben Horwitz, 638 Maxwell st.; Clotilde Burton's Trading Post, 1026 Altgeld st.; Six Point Cycle shop, 2522 Lincoln av.; Uncle Roy's Top shop, 946 Altgeld st., and the Cycle Transport company, Roosevelt rd. and Michigan av.

Triple Damages Asked.

The OPA asked the court to determine the judgments against the concerns and to assess triple damages.

Similar suits were filed in the federal District court against three manufacturers of coffins. Marion W. Isbell, area OPA director, said the companies brought out new styles of coffins without getting approval of prices.

Defendants in the suits are Walter H. Rudolph, 1132 Washington blvd.; the Brenner Casket company, 2067 Roosevelt rd., and the Western Casket company, 1156 Cullerton st. The OPA asked the court to compel the companies to keep records of their costs and sales. Director Isbell said more suits would be filed soon against other coffin makers.

Cases Set for Nov. 17.

Proceedings asking the suspension of two gasoline dealers were filed before OPA Hearing Commissioner John F. Allen, who set the cases for Nov. 17. The defendants are Darwin Hinz, 601 Villa st., Elgin, charged with using counterfeit coupons for 1,000 gallons of gasoline, and Sidney Williams, 5224 S. Damen av., accused of using counterfeit coupons to obtain 7,764 gallons.

The OPA also filed a suit in federal District court against the Eagle Stamp Works, 1123 Washington blvd., makers of marking devices. The company recently was taken over by a New York firm which has higher price ceilings. The court was asked to restrain it from increasing prices on goods made in the Chicago works.

EARNS $84,000, PLEADS GUILTY IN CHECK CASE

Leonard Wallace Winton, 42, of New York City, whose admitted bogus check cashing spree netted him $7,000, pleaded guilty yesterday before Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe to an indictment charging him with violation of the national stolen property act. Judge Igoe continued sentence to Nov. 28, pending an investigation by probation officers.

Winton, former sales manager for P. F. Collier & Son, New York publishers, earned more than $84,000 in salary and commission in 1936, a federal bureau of investigation agent testified. "Winton's affection for horses and horse racing bets is responsible for his situation," the agent said.

Following his discharge by the Collier firm, Winton went to work for the West Construction company as its branch office manager in Seattle, Wash. Later he was sent to Anchorage, Alaska. He is accused of stealing 1,000 payroll checks from his employers.

WEDDING SET AFTER 2 YEARS IN S. PACIFIC

One of the first things that Chief Yeoman Merrill Pascoe, 31, of 23 S. Prospect av., Park Ridge, did yesterday on his return home after 23 months as a Seabee in the South Pacific was to obtain a license to marry Miss Margaret Simpson, 31, of 105 S. Prospect av., Park Ridge, his boyhood sweetheart. Best man at the ceremony, set for Nov. 1, will be his brother, Capt. Theodore Pascoe, 30, also of Park Ridge, who has flown 64 missions in the South Pacific area and who aided Gen. MacArthur in his temporary retreat from the Philippines. The brothers saw each other yesterday for the first time in three years.

OPEN SCHOOL FOR MIDWEST SAFETY HEADS

The Institute of Community Safety will hold the first of a series of three week-end meetings today and tomorrow in the student union building of the Illinois Institute of Technology, 3300 Federal st. Successive meetings will be held Nov. 4 and 5 and Nov. 11 and 12. The meetings will be devoted to training in the organization and administration of community safety programs with attendance from Illinois and adjoining states. The National Safety Council and Illinois Tech will be the sponsors.

32d Infantry Vets of World War I. to Meet

World War I. veterans who were members of Company A, 132d infantry, will hold a reunion at 8 p. m. Nov. 4 at 35 E. Wacker dr. Henry H. Gibbs of 3519 North av. is making arrangements for the gathering.
